Fight goes out of Laetrile advocate

She had championed the use of Laetrile.

And that is why she died, area Laetrile advocates say.

Her name is Helen Calvin. She was 49. For 16 years, she practiced medicine in South Bend, Ind. She also spearheaded the successful drive to legalize use of the controversial drug in Indiana to combat cancer.

LAST WEEK, she died. It was an apparent suicide.

Dr. Calvin had become despondent, the Laetrile advocates say, because of constant pressure from the Food and Drug Administration, unspoken threats that her license would be revoked and frustration that patients were dying while she haggled with federal officials.

"She was (psychologically) done away with because of her humanitarian efforts," says Joe Kosarek, president of the International Assn. of Cancer Victims and Friends in Chicago. "She was driven to this by harassment."

But she was not the only victim, the Laetrile advocates say.

Ms. Calvin had "quite a few" patients in the Northwest suburbs and the Chicago area, says Marie Dowd of Glenview, of the local Committee for Freedom of Choice in Cancer Therapy.

Byline report

Other doctors may be able to supply them with the substance, Mrs. Dowd says, but it probably will become more difficult.

"THERE ARE QUITE a few other doctors," she says, "but nobody was really as big in the operation as she was."

Ms. Calvin originally became interested in the possibilities of Laetrile about four years ago when she read an article on the subject. a spokeswoman in her office said Tuesday.

"She just felt that people should have freedom to do what they want with their bodies," said the spokeswoman, who refused to identify herself.

Then, Ms. Calvin wrote a letter to the local newspaper questioning why the substance should be not available. Within hours, her office was flooded with calls from South Bend residents who already had been using Laetrile.

From then on, she became one of the state's biggest advocates of Laetrile. She formed a local chapter of the Committee for Freedom of Cancer Research and led lobbying efforts to legalize it in Indiana.

"She was a fighter," Mrs. Dowd recalled. "She used to give these motivating talks."

HOWEVER, SHE began running into trouble this fall, the office spokeswoman said.

In August, she filled out the affidavits for about $28,000 worth of Laetrile that was shipped to South Bend from Mexico.

The FDA slapped a hold on the shipment, demanding a 100 per cent bond. The shipment, the spokeswoman said,

Israel in peace talks

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel agreed Tuesday to go to a renewed Middle East peace conference at Geneva on the basis of a "working paper" it hammered out with the United States.

Prime Minister Menahem Begin, 64, presided over a cabinet session that reached the decision only a few hours after his release from a Tel Aviv hospital where he spent 11 days undergoing treatment for a heart ailment.

"The government approved the working paper on suggestions for the resumption of the Geneva peace conference as agreed upon between the President of the United States and the secretary of state and the minister of foreign affairs of Israel on Oct. 5, 1977," cabinet secretary Arie Naor said.

IN WASHINGTON, the State Dept. immediately welcomed the Israeli decision, said it opened the way for a Geneva conference before the end of this year and said it will transmit the text of the U.S.-Israeli working paper to the Arab governments through diplomatic channels.

"We welcome the decision announced by the Israeli government . . . we note, however, that what has been accepted is still a working paper which may require further negotiation after the Arab government have given their views on it," the State Department said in a brief statement.

Begin told newsmen the five-hour cabinet meeting was "the longest this government has ever held."

"We had to discuss a very serious problem and the cabinet decision was adopted unanimously," he said.

NAOR SAID the cabinet resolution attached no conditions to acceptance of the document worked out between Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and President Carter.

He said Israel's decision to go to Geneva was communicated to Washington as soon as it was made. But he added the working paper itself will not be published because "nonpublication may advance prospects for a Geneva conference."

The cabinet met in the government's wood-paneled conference room, on the second story of the closely guarded prime minister's office block in Jerusalem, directly above Begin's office.

It got under way shortly after 6 p.m. and lasted until 11 p.m. During that time, Dayan gave the ministers a two-hour account of his dealings with Carter and other American officials on his month-long visit to the United States.

The foreign minister returned home earlier in the day and told the cabinet the U.S.-Israeli working paper could lead to peace talks and "is a good document and I will recommend it."

HOWEVER, HE reiterated Israel's hardline stand on the issue of Palestinian representation at the talks and said it was "wishful thinking" to hope Israel and the United States could reach a common policy.

"If the Arabs are not willing to go to Geneva without the PLO then there won't be Geneva," Dayan said.

"There cannot be a Geneva conference without Israel," he said. "Israel will not go if it is going to talk about a Palestinian state or if there are Palestinians who represent the PLO."

Hayter wins Thompson support for county clerk

by KURT BAER

Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates Village President picked up two important political endorsements Tuesday and appeared likely to be the next Republican candidate for Cook County clerk.

Gov. James R. Thompson and former Gov. Richard Ogilvie endorsed Mrs. Hayter's candidacy, and she was personally well received at an appearance before then GOP slatemaking committee Tuesday.

"I think Mrs. Hayter would make an excellent candidate and it was at my suggestion four or six weeks ago that she decided to run," Ogilvie said.

THOMPSON'S ENDORSEMENT came at a meeting with reporters in New Hampshire, where he was closing a meeting of Republican governors. He took time to suggest his own surprise slate of candidates for county offices.

"I was very flattered and very surprised by his comment," said Mrs. Hayter, who said she had not talked to the governor before his endorsement.

Other GOP leaders also expressed surprise at Thompson's candidates and were left wondering whether Thompson and the persons he endorsed would come before the slatemakers.

The governor identified Tyrone Fehner, Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement director, as his choice for county board president; former Assistant U.S. Atty. Dan Webb for sheriff; Assistant Illinois Atty. Gen. Donald Mulack for assessor; and Mrs. Hayter for clerk.

FEHNER TUESDAY confirmed that he is considering running for either county board president or sheriff and said that if he decides to run he will campaign with or without the party's endorsement.

Virginia Hayter

Richard Ogilvie

Mulack, who has announced his candidacy for sheriff, was to appear at the slatemaking session Tuesday but canceled at the last minute.

A Thompson spokesman said the governor announced his surprise slate because he believes Republicans have their best shot at county offices in years and because he wants to promote the most attractive candidates possible.

"It had been my understanding that the governor was not going to try to influence the slatemakers or take a position in the Cook Count yraces because he is a candidate for reelection himself," said Ogilvie, who added that he continues to support Lou Kasper, chief of records for county State's Atty. Bernard Carey, as the GOP candidate for sheriff.

THE RIFT between the present and former governors fueled speculation that Thompson might try to run an independent slate in the March primary in opposition to candidates slated by party regulars.

Ogilvie said he did not interpret Thompson's slate as the signal of a Republican primary fight, and he denied reporters' suggestions that the popular Thompson would be able to order a slate of his choice.

"Nobody in this party is going to dictate to anyone. The one fault and value we have as a party is free thinking. We are hardly a disciplined organization," Ogilvie said.

Mrs. Hayter told slatemakers she would put an end to election mismanagement in Cook County. She cited especially the disenfranchisement of thousands of suburban voters by Stanley T. Kusper Jr., county clerk, who has encountered problems delivering and counting absentee ballots in past elections.

Rochford resigns police job for private business

Police Supt. James M. Rochford, a policeman's son who rose from rookie patrolman in 1947 to command of a 15,000-member force, resigned Tuesday to go into private business.

Chicago Mayor Michael A. Bilandic accepted the resignation "with deep reluctance."

Rochford, 56, who had a reputation for personal involvement in important cases, was personally tabbed for the top spot by the late Mayor Richard J. Daley and succeeded James B. Conlisk Jr., who resigned after one of the department's periodic scandals.

AS A DEPUTY superintendent, Rochford directed police response to the 1968 Martin Luther King Jr. riots and to street demonstrations during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

In the latter role, he personally led police in their nationally televised clash with demonstrators outside the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

He was praised for holding fatalities in the fiery King riots to nine but became the focus of charges of police brutality and "police riot" after the convention.

Bilandic said many top city workers 'are constantly receiving offers from private industry and the police are no exception.

"He has received one that he feels is very important to him and his family's financial future and he has reluctantly decided to leave the position to which he dedicated his entire adult life," Bilandic said.

"IT IS WITH deep reluctance that I have accepted this resignation," the mayor said. "Supt. Rochford has been the primary force behind the department's national reputation as one of th most progressive and innovative police department in the nation."

JAMES M. ROCHFORD

"I have a lump in my throat and a very heavy heart," Rochford said after Bilandic announced the resignation.

He said it took him "several weeks" to make up his mind to leave the department.

Bilandic said Michael A. Spiotto, 63, Rochford's first assistant deputy, will take over the department on a temporary basis. The Chicago Police Board will screen candidates for permanent superintendent and recommend three to the mayor.

Protest postpones clubhouse vote

A decision on whether to spend $620,000 for a golf course clubhouse and maintenance building was postponed Tuesday by Arlington Heights park district officials following objections from about 40 residents.

After more than two hours of debate, the park board agreed to have its facilities committee conduct another meeting to review bids for the two buildings. A date for the meeting was not set.

Most of the opposition centered on the park board's plans to include banquet facilities and a children's nursery in the clubhouse planned for the golf course now under construction at Central and Wilke roads.

VOTERS LAST October approved a $1.5 million bond referendum for the golf course, but at that time only about $200,000 was planned for a clubhouse. Plans for the building later were changed to include eating facilities, nursery, an apartment for the manager of the course and a storage room for golf carts.

Banquet facilities are needed if company golf outings are to be held at the course, park district officials said. Such events usually are good money makers, they said.

Park officials now expect to exceed the original $1.5 million golf course budget by about $200,000 if the proposed clubhouse and maintenace building are built.

Several residents urged the park board to reduce the clubhouse plans and stay within the $1.5 million budget, rather than use bank loans to supplement the cost as parks officials have discussed.

"I SEE NO REASON for the second floor of the building. It's an overkill. You're not going to get golfers to walk upstairs in their spikes to get a beer or eat," said Tom McDonnell, co-chairman of the former Citizens Committee for the Utilization of the Nike Base. The committee was the main force behind the U.S. Army's donation of the 90 acres for the golf course.

Strong opposition also came from Ed Keim, a member of the Taxpayers Action Group recently formed by leaders of several Arlington Heights homeowners associations.

2 Chicagoans face drug charges

FILLMORE, Utah (UPI) — Two Chicago residents charged with possessing two pounds of cocaine have been released on bail until the state completes its analysis of the confiscated drugs.

Justice of the Peace Orvil Beckstrand Tuesday reduced bail from $200,000 each to $25,000 each for Patrick D. Wright, 29, and Constance S. McGinley, 21. Both posted bond and were released from the Juab County Jail at Nephi.

Beckstrand said he also continued a preliminary hearing without date because he had not yet received an analysis of the suspected cocaine from state laboratories.

The two are charged with felony possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

They were pulled over by the Utah Highway Patrol Oct. 2 for driving the wrong way down Interstate 15. They originally were arrested for driving under the influence, but a search of their vehicle turned up the suspected cocaine and a loaded handgun.

State narcotics agents said the cocaine had a street sale value of about $225,000. They speculated the pair may have been runners for an interstate narcotics ring.

2 Chicagoans face drug charges

FILLMORE, Utah (UPI) — Two Chicago residents charged with possessing two pounds of cocaine have been released on bail until the state completes its analysis of the confiscated drugs.

Justice of the Peace Orvil Beckstrand Tuesday reduced bail from $200,000 each to $25,000 each for Patrick D. Wright, 29, and Constance S. McGinley, 21. Both posted bond and were released from the Juab County Jail at Nephi.

Beckstrand said he also continued a preliminary hearing without date because he had not yet received an analysis of the suspected cocaine from state laboratories.

The two are charged with felony possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

They were pulled over by the Utah Highway Patrol Oct. 2 for driving the wrong way down Interstate 15. They originally were arrested for driving under the influence, but a search of their vehicle turned up the suspected cocaine and a loaded handgun.

State narcotics agents said the cocaine had a street sale value of about $225,000. They speculated the pair may have been runners for an interstate narcotics ring.

Court hears reverse discrimination case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Allan Bakke, the 37-year-old engineer who claims "reverse discrimination" against whites is keeping him out of medical school, reaches the crucial point today in his legal fight to enter the University of California.

The nine justices of the U.S. Supreme Court have set aside an hour and 45 minutes to hear his case argued.

After being deluged with 50 or more briefs, the justices doubtless have firmly in mind what they want to ask lawyers for Bakke and the university, which is fighting to keep its special admissions program for the disadvantaged.

U.S. SOLICITOR General Wade McCree also must expect some sharp queries about the Carter administration's stand on consideration of race in determining who gets into professional schools.

Attorneys equipped with a smooth typewritten statement often end with it in shreds as they attempt to satisfy legal points that bother one or more members of the court.

Numerous civil rights, labor and other groups with an interest in affirmative action programs for blacks have asked for a chance to speak, but all have been turned down.

As the final hour approached, interested onlookers continued to speak out while Bakke himself said little.

"I prefer to stay out of it in a personal sense," the Vietnam veteran said. "I'm not participating in the publicity aspect of it. I prefer to let the case stand on its own merits and let the discussion proceed."

ON THE OTHER hand Merritt Weisinger, attorney for a white registrant who won her way into the university medical school at Davis on the strength of Bakke's state court victory, called on Justice Thurgood Marshall to disqualify himself from the case.

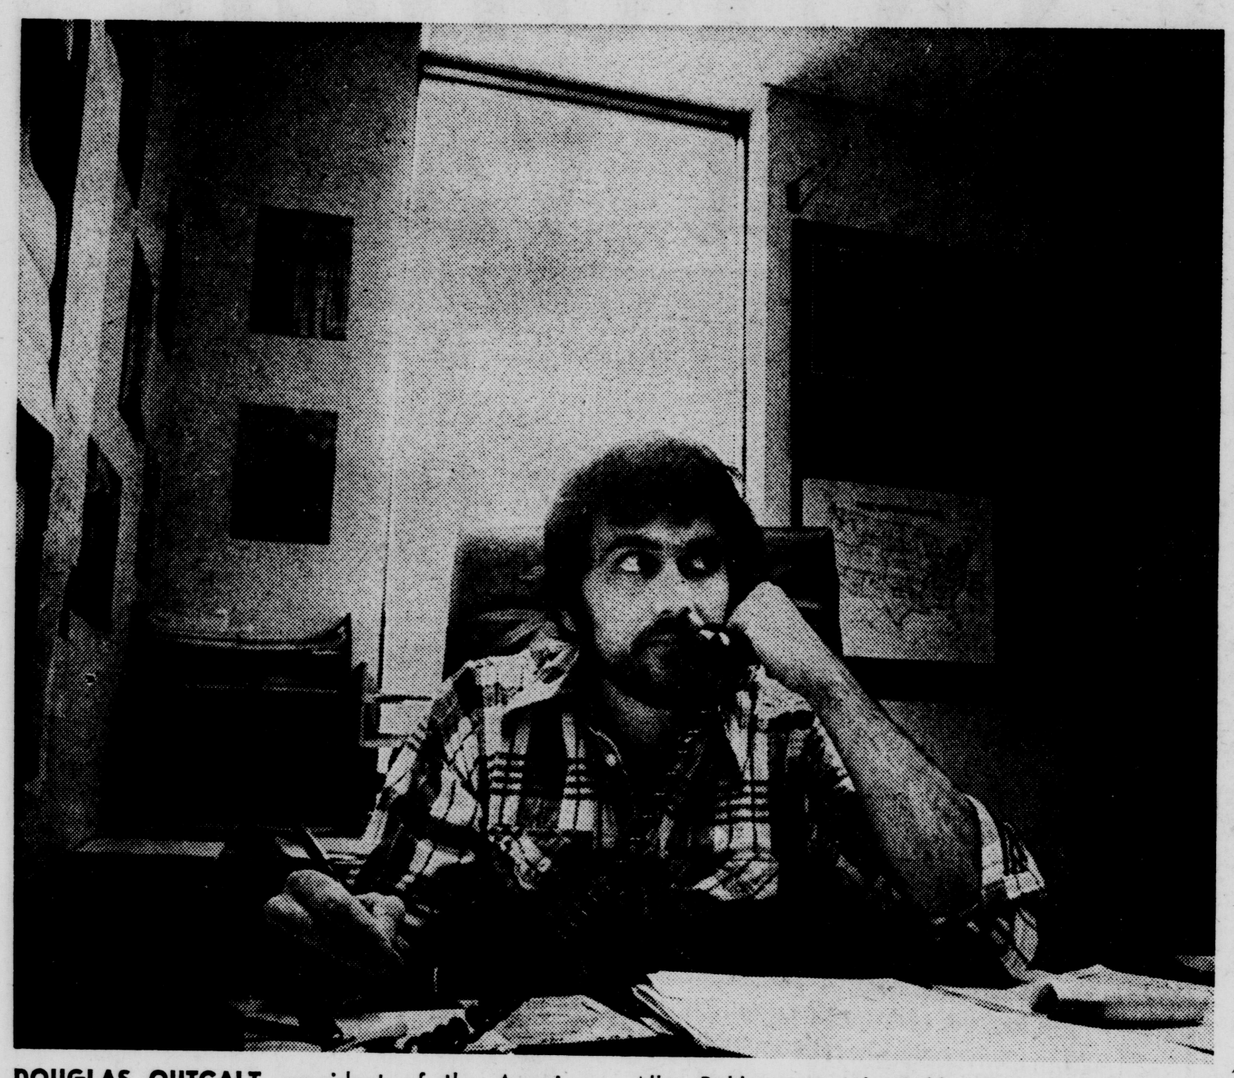
That decision will be strictly up to Marshall, a black who was chief counsel for the NAACP during racial litigation of the 1960s.

The Congressional Black Caucus released the brief it filed in the case, which says in part:

"ANY VACILLATION or hesitation by this court in reaffirming the fundamental principles at stake in this case may well sound the death knell of the progress made since this court's (1954 school desegregation) decision in Brown versus Board of Education."

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights said it will "crusade" for affirmative action programs. Chairman Arthur Fleming told a news conference "we think it is unfortunate for affirmative action to be slowed down by the semantic discussion over quotas, timetables and numbers."

Bakke probably is in for a considerable wait before the court puts its written opinion, along with any separate dissents or concurrences, in final form and announces the result.



DOUGLAS OUTCALT, president of the American Medical Student Assn., handle calls in the group's Schaumburg office, where staffers are closely watching the Supreme Court's activity today in the Allan Bakke case. Like Bakke, Outcolt was rejected twice from medical school, but he says he does not believe he was discriminated against as a white male.

Ethnic groups ask equal treatment for all

by DIANE GRANAT

Not too many years ago, says Paul Franklin, quotas were used to exclude Jews from schools, jobs and housing.

Greater enlightenment brought about by progress in the civil rights movement caused those barriers to begin to fall, says Franklin, the midwest civil rights director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

"Now people are talking about quotas again," he says. "Too many people who remember the way it was are worried about something like this happening again."

Based on this historical experience and a belief that quotas should not be used to overcome past forms of discrimination, the league has joined a number of other Jewish and ethnic groups filing briefs with the Supreme Court in support of Allan Bakke in his reverse discrimination lawsuit."

THE LEAGUE CLAIMS that admissions policies based on race are a violation of the 14th Amendment's guarantee of equal treatment for all races.

By using race to give preference to one group, the brief argues, other groups unfairly lose out.

"If you are discriminating in favor of one group, you must be discriminating against another group," says Franklin. "It has to be a mirror image."

THE LEAGUE DOES NOT object to the University of California's special admissions program at its Davis Medical School if it is intended merely to aid disadvantaged students, Franklin says.

Evaluating an applicant's socio-economic background, he says, would be no different than the current practice of considering what the student did during his summer vacations, whether he is a "star athlete" or whether "Daddy is a rich alumnus."

But if the university's plan restricts its definition of "disadvantaged" to blacks, Latinos and Asian-Americans to correct historical biases against those groups, then it is unconstitutionally using race to discriminate, Franklin says.

There also have been doubts raised about whether UC-Davis can justify its program as a measure to remedy past wrongs.

JOHN CANNON, president of the Mid-America Legal Foundation, which also filed a pro-Bakke brief, says the Davis Medical School opened only a year before it began its special admissions policy, "so it couldn't have a history of prior discrimination."

Both Cannon and Franklin say their groups strongly support the concept of affirmative action.

Wider recruiting and remedial programs to put disadvantaged people in a position to compete are acceptable, but they should be administered on a "color blind" basis, Franklin says. But this is where he says affirmative action has failed.

"Many employers and schools view their obligation as only showing they have brought in people to satisfy government requirements," he says. "They neglect to make sure once they have brought them in that they're competent."

ANOTHER POINT raised by the ADL and other pro-Bakke groups is that the use of quotas is stigmatizing for minorities.

"An individual from a disadvantaged background never knows if he's gotten what he's gotten on his own merit or if he's considered some sort of charity case," says Franklin.

And yet another question is who is entitled to reap the benefits of a special admissions program for "minorities"?

Are middle class blacks to be given an advantage over economically deprived whites?, Franklin asks. Do Asian-Americans need help because they were placed in concentration camps during World War II? "Would you include Poles and Irish, who are hardly represented in law firms around the country" in a special law school admissions plan? Franklin continues.

Cannon says a key question to be answered in the Bakke case is whether Bakke would have been selected if UC-Davis did not set aside 16 slots for minorities.

Third try med student: special admissions needed

by DIANE GRAVAT

There are several similarities between Allan Bakke and Douglas Outcalt.

They are both white. They are both men.

Both wanted to go to medical school and both were rejected twice.

But that is where the parallels end.

BAKKE NEVER MADE it to medical school. The 37-year-old engineer has gained national prominence for a lawsuit he filed against the University of California's medical school at Davis, charging that he illegally was denied admission on the basis of race.

Outcalt, 27, did get into medical school on his third try. Today he is president of the Schaumburg-based American Medical Student Assn., a national organization of 24,000 medical students.

And while Outcalt conceivably could see himself as a victim of reverse discrimination because of his early rejections, he does not see things through Bakke's eyes.

Instead, Outcalt says, "I have never begrudged an affirmative action program for denying me a spot in medical school."

OUTCALT FOLLOWS the position held by AMSA, which has joined many civil rights groups and labor unions in filing a friend-of-the-court brief in the Bakke case in support of the university's special admissions program.

AMSA's brief argues that greater acceptance of minorities in medical schools will benefit society in the long run.

The group contends that more black and Chicano doctors will lead to more physicians who will practice in minority communities. It also says that more nonwhite doctors are needed to serve as role models for minority youth.

AMSA ALSO USES its brief on the Bakke case to state that the Medical College Admissions Test (MCAT) and undergraduate grades are not the most valid admissions criteria.

Not only do tests and grades serve to exclude minorities, AMSA says, but they don't do a good job of predicting success in school or success as a doctor.

Studies show the best indicator of a person's potential as a doctor is the way a student performs during his clinical years in the hospital, Outcalt says.

OUTCALT SAYS that the way in which students are selected for medical school "is just not a clearcut thing."

"Can anyone believe that the 3.4 average of a student from a suburban high school who didn't hold a job during college makes him (or) her better than a student from a disadvantaged background who worked part or full-time in college and graduated with a 2.9?" Outcalt asked in a recent issue of AMSA's monthly journal.

Outcalt says race is not the only subjective criteria used by medical schools to admit students. For years it has been common to look at what part of the country a person comes from, to discriminate in favor of in-state residents and also in favor of sons and daughters of alumni, he says.

And the University of California at Davis did not reserve its preferential treatment just for minorities, Outcalt says. Many times, he says, the school accepted "advantaged" students through the back door because of family influence and political clout.

AMONG THE HOLES Outcalt finds in Bakke's argument is the rationale for why he was rejected.

Outcalt contends the actual reason Bakke was turned down by Davis, and nine other schools, was that he was 34-years-old when he applied. Age discrimination might have been a better battle cry, he says.

Ideally, Outcalt says, he would like to see the entire admissions procedure changed so it would look beyond grades and scores and give more weight to an applicant's commitment to society or the obstacles he has faced because of a deprived background.

When that happens affirmative action programs could be dropped, he says. "But I don't expect minorities to be asked to wait until that happens."

Rights panel backs use of racial 'goals'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Tuesday urged the use of numerical goals for racial minority admissions to professional schools and deplored the "semantic" discussion of quotas aroused by the Bakke "reverse discrimination" case.

In a 12-page statement defending affirmative action programs on the eve of Supreme Court arguments in the Bakke case, the commission said the goals and achievement timetables used in private sector affirmative action programs should be adopted also in the admission programs of medical and law schools.

The commission has been on record since May as opposing Allan Bakke, the white student who says he was denied admission to a University of California medical school because 16 places were reserved for racial minorities.

COMMISSION CHAIRMAN Arthur Flemming said the Justice Department's brief in the case, defending the principle of affirmative action without resorting to rigid quotas, was "consistent" with the commission's position.

In discussing the distinction between "quota" and "goals," the commission said "goals are not properly considered fixed quotas since determinations of compliance are not made solely on the question of whether the goals actually are reached, but on the contractor's good faith effort to implement and fulfill the total affirmative action plan."

Bomb found in city Post Office

by United Press International

A bomb was found late Tuesday in the main Chicago Post Office but failed to explode because of faulty wiring, police said.

A postal employe in the damaged mail section found the bomb on the eighth floor, police said. It was wrapped in a brown manila envelope that had been torn.

About 100 persons were evacuated from the Post Office building after the bomb was found.

A wristwatch was attacked to the timing device, which failed to work. The bomb contained four sticks of dynamite and detonating caps.

POLICE DEPUTY Supt. William Keating called the bomb an "amateurish device."

Police did not suspect the bomb was politically motivated, Keating said. No one immediately claimed responsibility for it.

The bomb was found in Chicago just five hours after a bomb exploded on the crowded steps of the New York Public Library building on Fifth Avenue, causing minor damage but injuring no one.

The explosion occurred shortly before 4 p.m., hours after a dynamite bomb was dismantled outside the General Motors Building and a letter believed to be written by the Puerto Rican terrorist group FALN was found in a west side telephone booth.

"We the members of the FALN are today engaged in a war of nerves," the letter said in part. "This war is being conducted against yanki-imperialism and all of its different forms.

"TODAY'S POLITICAL military action shows the united discipline strength of our organization in fighting yanki-imperialism."

Eugene Scott, a battalion chief for the Fire Department, said the bomb exploded on the steps on the Fifth Avenue side of the library, chipping part of a fountain near a statue of a nude woman on a horse.

"There were many people standing around when it went off," Scott said. "It went off on the carved concrete work on the steps near the library wall. But no one was injured."

A man sleeping about eight feet from the explosion said he was awakened by the blast.

"I was kind of shook up," he said. "I've been sleeping here every night when the weather was good since June 1976. I guess I'll probably go back to sleeping here tonight."

Lower bond denied in stabbing case

A 24-year-old Rolling Meadows woman, charged with stabbing a man five times during a brawl, remained in Cook County Jail Tuesday night after a judge refused to lower her bond.

Sharon M. Jurgens, of 4865 Wilke Rd., was charged with aggravated assault after she allegedly stabbled Eugene W. Corn, Jr., 19, of 4963B Algonquin Parkway, Rolling Meadows, after Corn began fighting with Mrs. Jurgen's husband, Mark H. Jurgens, 18, early Sunday.

Rolling Meadows Police Det. Sgt. Charles Smith said that the Jurgens and Corn were at the home of Arthur J. Hultin, 4886 B. Algonquin Parkway, Rolling Meadows, when Corn and Jurgens began to quarrel.

MRS. JURGENS allegedly attacked Corn as the two men began fighting on the balcony, Smith said. Corn was stabbed once in the head, twice in the back, and once in the groin severing a femoral artery.

Corn was listed in serious but stable condition Tuesday night in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Jurgens and his wife were arrested Sunday by Rolling Meadows police, but only the wife was charged, Smith said.

Corn was stabbed only after it appeared that Corn was "getting the best of" Jurgens in the fight, Smith said.

Cook County Circuit Judge John M. Breen Jr. refused a request Tuesday to reduce the $20,000 bond on Mrs. Jurgens, whom the judge said did not have "strong enough" ties to the community to ensure her reappearance in court at 9 a.m. Friday in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

ATTORNEYS SAID Tuesday that all witnesses to the stabbing will be in court to testify.

The Jurgen's two children were kept by Rolling Meadows juvenile Officers Larry Carson until the father was released by police.

Corn is the son of Arlington Heights Patrolman Eugene W. Corn Sr.

Both wanted to go to medical school and both were rejected twice.

But that is where the parallels end.

BAKKE NEVER MADE it to medical school. The 37-year-old engineer has gained national prominence for a lawsuit he filed against the University of California's medical school at Davis, charging that he illegally was denied admission on the basis of race.

Outcalt, 27, did get into medical school on his third try. Today he is president of the Schaumburg-based American Medical Student Assn., a national organization of 24,000 medical students.

And while Outcalt conceivably could see himself as a victim of reverse discrimination because of his early rejections, he does not see things through Bakke's eyes.

Instead, Outcalt says, "I have never begrudged an affirmative action program for denying me a spot in medical school."

OUTCALT FOLLOWS the position held by AMSA, which has joined many civil rights groups and labor unions in filing a friend-of-the-court brief in the Bakke case in support of the university's special admissions program.

AMSA's brief argues that greater acceptance of minorities in medical schools will benefit society in the long run.

The group contends that more black and Chicano doctors will lead to more physicians who will practice in minority communities. It also says that more nonwhite doctors are needed to serve as role models for minority youth.

AMSA ALSO USES its brief on the Bakke case to state that the Medical College Admissions Test (MCAT) and undergraduate grades are not the most valid admissions criteria.

Not only do tests and grades serve to exclude minorities, AMSA says, but they don't do a good job of predicting success in school or success as a doctor.

Studies show the best indicator of a person's potential as a doctor is the way a student performs during his clinical years in the hospital, Outcalt says.

OUTCALT SAYS that the way in which students are selected for medical school "is just not a clearcut thing."

"Can anyone believe that the 3.4 average of a student from a suburban high school who didn't hold a job during college makes him (or) her better than a student from a disadvantaged background who worked part or full-time in college and graduated with a 2.9?" Outcalt asked in a recent issue of AMSA's monthly journal.

Outcalt says race is not the only subjective criteria used by medical schools to admit students. For years it has been common to look at what part of the country a person comes from, to discriminate in favor of in-state residents and also in favor of sons and daughters of alumni, he says.

And the University of California at Davis did not reserve its preferential treatment just for minorities, Outcalt says. Many times, he says, the school accepted "advantaged" students through the back door because of family influence and political clout.

AMONG THE HOLES Outcalt finds in Bakke's argument is the rationale for why he was rejected.

Outcalt contends the actual reason Bakke was turned down by Davis, and nine other schools, was that he was 34-years-old when he applied. Age discrimination might have been a better battle cry, he says.

Ideally, Outcalt says, he would like to see the entire admissions procedure changed so it would look beyond grades and scores and give more weight to an applicant's commitment to society or the obstacles he has faced because of a deprived background.

When that happens affirmative action programs could be dropped, he says. "But I don't expect minorities to be asked to wait until that happens."

Rights panel backs use of racial 'goals'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Tuesday urged the use of numerical goals for racial minority admissions to professional schools and deplored the "semantic" discussion of quotas aroused by the Bakke "reverse discrimination" case.

In a 12-page statement defending affirmative action programs on the eve of Supreme Court arguments in the Bakke case, the commission said the goals and achievement timetables used in private sector affirmative action programs should be adopted also in the admission programs of medical and law schools.

The commission has been on record since May as opposing Allan Bakke, the white student who says he was denied admission to a University of California medical school because 16 places were reserved for racial minorities.

COMMISSION CHAIRMAN Arthur Flemming said the Justice Department's brief in the case, defending the principle of affirmative action without resorting to rigid quotas, was "consistent" with the commission's position.

In discussing the distinction between "quota" and "goals," the commission said "goals are not properly considered fixed quotas since determinations of compliance are not made solely on the question of whether the goals actually are reached, but on the contractor's good faith effort to implement and fulfill the total affirmative action plan."

Bomb found in city Post Office

by United Press International

A bomb was found late Tuesday in the main Chicago Post Office but failed to explode because of faulty wiring, police said.

A postal employe in the damaged mail section found the bomb on the eighth floor, police said. It was wrapped in a brown manila envelope that had been torn.

About 100 persons were evacuated from the Post Office building after the bomb was found.

A wristwatch was attacked to the timing device, which failed to work. The bomb contained four sticks of dynamite and detonating caps.

POLICE DEPUTY Supt. William Keating called the bomb an "amateurish device."

Police did not suspect the bomb was politically motivated, Keating said. No one immediately claimed responsibility for it.

The bomb was found in Chicago just five hours after a bomb exploded on the crowded steps of the New York Public Library building on Fifth Avenue, causing minor damage but injuring no one.

The explosion occurred shortly before 4 p.m., hours after a dynamite bomb was dismantled outside the General Motors Building and a letter believed to be written by the Puerto Rican terrorist group FALN was found in a west side telephone booth.

"We the members of the FALN are today engaged in a war of nerves," the letter said in part. "This war is being conducted against yanki-imperialism and all of its different forms.

"TODAY'S POLITICAL military action shows the united discipline strength of our organization in fighting yanki-imperialism."

Eugene Scott, a battalion chief for the Fire Department, said the bomb exploded on the steps on the Fifth Avenue side of the library, chipping part of a fountain near a statue of a nude woman on a horse.

"There were many people standing around when it went off," Scott said. "It went off on the carved concrete work on the steps near the library wall. But no one was injured."

A man sleeping about eight feet from the explosion said he was awakened by the blast.

"I was kind of shook up," he said. "I've been sleeping here every night when the weather was good since June 1976. I guess I'll probably go back to sleeping here tonight."

Lower bond denied in stabbing case

A 24-year-old Rolling Meadows woman, charged with stabbing a man five times during a brawl, remained in Cook County Jail Tuesday night after a judge refused to lower her bond.

Sharon M. Jurgens, of 4865 Wilke Rd., was charged with aggravated assault after she allegedly stabbled Eugene W. Corn, Jr., 19, of 4963B Algonquin Parkway, Rolling Meadows, after Corn began fighting with Mrs. Jurgen's husband, Mark H. Jurgens, 18, early Sunday.

Rolling Meadows Police Det. Sgt. Charles Smith said that the Jurgens and Corn were at the home of Arthur J. Hultin, 4886 B. Algonquin Parkway, Rolling Meadows, when Corn and Jurgens began to quarrel.

MRS. JURGENS allegedly attacked Corn as the two men began fighting on the balcony, Smith said. Corn was stabbed once in the head, twice in the back, and once in the groin severing a femoral artery.

Corn was listed in serious but stable condition Tuesday night in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Jurgens and his wife were arrested Sunday by Rolling Meadows police, but only the wife was charged, Smith said.

Corn was stabbed only after it appeared that Corn was "getting the best of" Jurgens in the fight, Smith said.

Cook County Circuit Judge John M. Breen Jr. refused a request Tuesday to reduce the $20,000 bond on Mrs. Jurgens, whom the judge said did not have "strong enough" ties to the community to ensure her reappearance in court at 9 a.m. Friday in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

ATTORNEYS SAID Tuesday that all witnesses to the stabbing will be in court to testify.

The Jurgen's two children were kept by Rolling Meadows juvenile Officers Larry Carson until the father was released by police.

Corn is the son of Arlington Heights Patrolman Eugene W. Corn Sr.

Thompson vows no plans for 1980

Gov. James R. Thompson said in Cleveland Tuesday night he is not a candidate for president in 1980 or 1984, but quickly added that "it would be foolish to rule out anything." "My appearance here is not an effort aimed at 1980," Thompson said before a GOP fund-raising event that grossed more than $100,000. "I'm here to raise funds for the Republican party in the 1978 elections and to help repay the debt I owe to the Republican Party, which helped me the first time I ran for office. "It is not an effort to 1980. I don't rule myself out of anything. It would be foolish to rule out anything. But before I do anything I have to win reelection in 1978."

Regarding the 1980 presidential race, Thompson said his "political people" have told him former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is the GOP front-runner, but Senate confidants say neither Reagan nor former President Gerald R. Ford will run. Thompson also discussed President Carter's performance to date, saying he thought "the honeymoon would have lasted a bit longer than it did."

Bakalis to tell plans Thursday

State Comptroller Michael Bakalis, considered by many as the last Democrat left capable of seriously challenging Gov. James R. Thompson or Sen. Charles H. Percy in 1978, will anounce his political plans Thursday, Bakalis aide Tony Abel said Tuesday. Bakalis, who has said he will not seek reelection to the post he won in 1976," "has either made up his mind or is very close," Abel said, and will reveal his decision at a series of airport press conferences beginning in Chicago. "It will be either senator or governor," Abel said. Abel did not know the flyaround schedule but said Bakalis is thinking of a two-day affair.

SIU strike has 'little effect'

The strike of custodial workers at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale means eating from paper plates with plastic utensils to some students. To some it means a lecture from a teaching assistant rather than a professor. But as the strike by custodial workers and security police went into its sixth day Tuesday and affected other union workers on campus, most students checked in a random survey said they noticed very little change in their day-to-day lives.

ICC expected to OK rate hike

A survey of votes to be cast today by the Illinois Commerce Commission indicates the ICC will grant only about half of Commonwealth Edison's 14.5 per cent rate increase request, an Edison spokesman said Tuesday. Davil Scholz, director of rates for the utility, said preliminary votes by ICC members indicate they will grant a 7.64 per cent increase in electricity rates.

A spokesman for the Illinois Action Council agreed with the assessment of Edison officials. He said, however, the commission had not decided how the rate hikes will be distributed between commercial industrial customers and residential users. A 7.64 per cent increase would generate $150 million annually for Edison according to projections based on the current year's revenue,Scholz said. ICC Commissioner Al Reichman confirmed the 7.64 figure was discussed at last Wednesday's ICC meeting in Springfield.

'Corporate tax lessens burden'

Strict enforcement of corporate personal property tax laws could lessen the tax burden of homeowners, a newly appointed commission was told Tuesday. Attorney Harold L. Perlman, one of 14 commissioners, told the Cook County Real Estate Taxation Study Commission that the county should find out why it does not collect all the corporate personal property taxes it is entitled to. County board Pres. George W. Dunne appointed the commission Sept. 19 because of protests over increases in real estate tax assessments.

Graffiti wages war on disease

If you happen to notice "immunization," "polio," "diptheria," "tetanus," "measles" and similar words written in hopscotch courts on your school playground, it's not vandalism. It's an effort to alert chilren to the need for vaccinations. Doctors' wives across the nation are painting the graffiti on specially designed hopscotch courts. What is "Sky Blue" on traditional courts is "Immunization" on their courts."This generation of young parents grew up free of the fear of epidemics of polio and of other childhood diseases, like measles, because their parents knew the ravages of the diseases. So young people just haven't been getting their children immunized the way they should," said Mrs. Chester Young, president of the American Medical Assn. auxiliary.

Construction plans announced

Mayor Michael A. Bilandic Tuesday announced plans for construction of a 28-story office building and a 500-unit apartment building east of Michigan Avenue between Wacker Drive and Randolph Street. The $60 million office building and the $25 million residential structure both were designed by Fujikawa Conterato Lohan and Associates, formerly the Office of Mies Van der Rohe.

Solar eclipse may be seen here today

A partial eclipse of the sun will be visible in the Chicago area today, weather permitting, beginning about 3:35 p.m. and continuing to about 4:30 p.m.

The eclipse will be at its maximum here, 12 per cent, about 4 p.m.

Persons are warned not to look directly at the sun, even through sun glasses or smoked glass. But there are a number of relatively simple ways to catch this astronomical act.

The eclipse easily can be projected on a white piece of paper using a telescope, binocular lens, or through a pinhole punched in a piece of cardboard.

THE ADLER PLANETARIUM, 130 S. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, will show the eclipse through its solar telescope, and at 3:30 p.m., a planetarium astronomer will explain why eclipses occur.

Today's eclipse will be visible over almost all of North America and the northwest part of South America. Scientists aboard two ocean liners in the mid-Pacific hope to see a total eclipse for 2½ minutes.

Eclipses have fascinated man for centuries, although astronomers today consider them rather ho-hum events. The ancient Chinese explained the solar eclipse as a dragon in the sky that was attempting to devour the sun.

Total eclipses of the sun occur about every two years somewhere in the world. The only total eclipse visible in this country for the remainder of the century will occur Feb. 26, 1979.

It will appear as a total eclipse only over sections of the Pacific Northwest, however, and the moon will only partially cover the sun over the remainder of the country.

Lions Clubs candy sales

Local Lions Clubs will have their annual candy sale to aid the blind and visually handicapped Friday and Saturday.

The Lions will be on street corners and shopping centers throughout the area to distribute candy rolls and seek donations.

Funds from the candy sale are used to support the mobile glaucoma screening unit, the Illinois Camp Lions for handicapped children, the eye donor registry program and other programs to help the blind.

should have been cleared within two weeks. It never was.

Instead, she said the FDA checked with every patient who was supposed to undergo the Laetrile treatment, trying to find one who received it illegally. The agency asked the daughter of one woman who died despite the treatment to sign an affidavit criticizing Laetrile.

In the last two weeks of her life, the spokeswoman said, no day went by that Ms. Calvin did not receive a phone call from a patient saying he had been contacted by the authorities.

"THERE WERE no verbal threats," the spokeswoman said. "But they checked everything out 100 per cent.

"She was upset about it because here these patients were waiting for it."

She was so "harassed," Kosarek said, that she had no chance to help her patients. Four of them died while waiting for the substance, he said, and she became despondent over it.

But on Sept. 30, she showed no signs of despondency, the spokeswoman said. She put in a long day, working with 20 patients, and she was physically tired, the woman said. However, Ms. Calvin gave no sign that she planned suicide.

Yet alone in her office, she took a surgical knife to her wrists.

When she was found, she was still alive, but in critical condition. She was taken to a hospital and placed on a life support system. But it did no good. On Oct. 5, Ms. Calvin was declared dead. the system was turned off.

"Now," Mrs. Dowd says, "I don't know what all the people are going to be doing for Laetrile."

Track transit improves 2nd night

Hundreds of patrons were stranded after the last race at Arlington Park Race Track Monday night because of the scarcity of public transportation.

Taxicabs provide the only service to nearby suburbs after the races and companies from as far away as Glenview responded to the track Monday after hearing about the problem.

"It really was pandemonium out there," said Rich Brims, co-owner of American Taxi Co. in Glenview. "There were people waiting on every corner. We'd like to help more, but because we're licensed in Skokie, we aren't really supposed to."

However, Tuesday night the transportation problems seemed to diminish and few persons were stranded after the races. Part of the reason was because there were plenty of Eagle Bus Co. buses on hand for Chicago commuters, said Thomas Rivera, publicity director for the track.

"We made sure there were enough buses here tonight," he said. "We can get an idea how many will be needed by the number of Chicago people who take the North Western Ry. up here at the start of the evening races."

Rivera said the buses make at least 20 stops in and around Chicago.

The last Chicago & North Western Ry. train leaves the track's station at 9:28 p.m. during the week and 10:28 p.m. on Saturdays. Races normally end at midnight.

The Eagle Bus Co. parks six to eight buses at the track and stops at the Loop and the south and west sides of Chicago.

But there is no public transportation to the suburbs, something that concerns Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

HE IS INVESTIGATING how many persons need rides home and where they want to go. He said he will request that the Regional Transportation Authority provide help.

"We are going to ask for a later train or buses," Hanson said. "As soon as we get a handle on the information we need we will do that."

LEON KAYE, public relations officer for RTA, said Arlington Park officials were advised before the night harness racing season opened Monday that they must initiate additional service if it is needed.

"It is on their shoulders and they have not contacted us about it," Kaye said.

Joseph Joyce, president of Arlington Park Race Track, said he considered requesting a later train but decided it was not necessary.

"THE CONSENSUS was that the train station is an inappropriate place to get off at at 1:30 in the morning and the feeling was that very, very few people would want to take it," he said.

Protests delay clubhouse vote

erendum as submitted to the voters and approved by the voters," said Keim, who also charged park officials with "insulting voters" by going over the budget approved by the referendum.

The park district's argument that tax rates won't be affected if construction loans are used to complete the golf course are "pure folly," Keim said.

"ANY SPENDING of taxpayer funds, whether by direct taxation or internally generated revenue, is using our tax dollars," Keim said. He said surpluses generated by the golf course should be used to reduce tax rates.

"You people haven't convinced me you have a financial handle on the cost of the project. I think you should conduct some market and financial surveys to find out your clubhouse needs," Keim said.

Jacqueline Gruenewald and Robert Rohleder, park commissioners, called Keim's charges "low blows." Estimates on the cost of the course constantly were revised during park board discussions, Rohleder said.

Parks Director Thomas Thornton said the 18-hole golf course scheduled to open in May 1979 is "the best buy this village is ever going to get."

'Taming of Shrew' at high school

Rolling Meadows High School students will present William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" as their first dramatic production of the season.

Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the school theater, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

"The Taming of the Shrew" is Shakespeare's approach to the ancient theme of the battle of the sexes. Petruchio comes to Padua in search of a wealthy wife and finds himself marrying and taming Kate, a shrew.

The play director is Ron Raben; designer, Tom Schuler; student director, Mary Monroe; and stage manager, Harry Henderson. Reserved tickets are $2 and general admission is $1.50. For information, call 259-9640, ext. 20.

Petruchio is played by Dennis Nykiel and Katherine by Anne Lewis. The cast also includes: Scott Drain, Theresa Brown, Joe Schaedel, Kevin Cuthbert, Tim Cage, John Bottiglieri, Joe Marich, Emery Pepin, Tom Waldron, Scott Vanna, Bill Casurella, Scott Mullen, Dave Nielsen, Nicki Bicknase, Scott Mercer, Rich Olszewski, Dan Taylor and Randy Townsend.

Track transit improves 2nd night

Hundreds of patrons were stranded after the last race at Arlington Park Race Track Monday night because of the scarcity of public transportation.

Taxicabs provide the only service to nearby suburbs after the races and companies from as far away as Glenview responded to the track Monday after hearing about the problem.

"It really was pandemonium out there," said Rich Brims, co-owner of American Taxi Co. in Glenview. "There were people waiting on every corner. We'd like to help more, but because we're licensed in Skokie, we aren't really supposed to."

However, Tuesday night the transportation problems seemed to diminish and few persons were stranded after the races. Part of the reason was because there were plenty of Eagle Bus Co. buses on hand for Chicago commuters, said Thomas Rivera, publicity director for the track.

"We made sure there were enough buses here tonight," he said. "We can get an idea how many will be needed by the number of Chicago people who take the North Western Ry. up here at the start of the evening races."

Rivera said the buses make at least 20 stops in and around Chicago.

The last Chicago & North Western Ry. train leaves the track's station at 9:23 p.m. during the week and 10:28 p.m. on Saturdays. Races normally end at midnight.

The Eagle Bus Co. parks six to eight buses at the track and stops at the Loop and the south and west sides of Chicago.

But there is no public transportation to the suburbs, something that concerns Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

HE IS INVESTIGATING how many persons need rides home and where they want to go. He said he will request that the Regional Transportation Authority provide help.

"We are going to ask for a later train or buses," Hanson said. "As soon as we get a handle on the information we need we will do that."

LEON KAYE, public relations officer for RTA, said Arlington Park officials were advised before the night harness racing season opened Monday that they must initiate additional service if it is needed.

"It is on their shoulders and they have not contacted us about it," Kaye said.

Joseph Joyce, president of Arlington Park Race Track, said he considered requesting a later train but decided it was not necessary.

"THE CONSENSUS was that the train station is an inappropriate place to get off at at 1:30 in the morning and the feeling was that very, very few people would want to take it," he said.

Pregnancy detection kits to be sold soon in stores

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warner-Lambert plans to market a simple and reliable do-it-yourself pregnancy test that will be available in drugstores for about $10, the company said Tuesday.

A spokesman said the "test is as easy to use as a home permanent" and has been found to be 97 per cent accurate in detecting pregnancy following the first missed menstrual period.

No date has been set for marketing the kits, but a spokesman said Warner-Lambert, which has headquarters in Morris Plains, N.J., wants them on drugstore shelves "as soon as we can next year."

THE SPOKESMAN said drugstores would set the retail price, but added the company "hopes the price is under $10." The kits will be sold only in pharmacies and not in "the health and beauty sections of major grocery stores."

But the plexiglass kits, about the size of a package of king-sized cigarets, will be available over-the-counter in pharmacies.

There are about 45 million women of child-bearing age in the United States.

A similar home pregnancy test has been marketed in Europe for several years, but the Warner-Lambert test will be the first reliable one available to American women, the company said.

A few years ago a pregnancy test was sold in the United Sttes by another company, but it was only about 50 per cent accurate and was pulled off the market.

THE WARNER-Lambert kit "has been tested with literally hundreds of women from all educational backgrounds and found to be very easy to use and reliably accurate," the spokesman said.

The purpose of the home pregnancy test is to "help a woman get to a doctor sooner," he said. "Most women miss the second period before they are fairly certain they are pregnant."

"The sooner that she can find out if she is pregnant, the sooner she can get started on proper health habits," he said. "The first 60 days of pregnancy are critical in fetal development. It's important to get on a proper diet and establish proper health habits. Drugs, certain medicines, even aspirin, alcohol and cigarets, all can be harmful."

The pregnancy kit will contain simple directions and pictures on how to use it. There are three components to the kit — a small eye dropper, a vial containing a chemical and a test tube with an angled mirror at the bottom.

THE DIRECTIONS instruct women to use the test on the ninth day after missing the first menstrual period.

The instructions state: "Put three drops of (early morning) urine into the test tube and add contents to the plastic vial. Shake test tube and place in holder. After two hours, if dark brown ring is visible at the bottom, it is an indication of active pregnancy."

The insert explains that "as soon as a woman becomes pregnant, her body starts to produce HCG, a special hormone which appears in urine. The early pregnancy test lets you know whether or not the urine contains any of the special hormones."

Was 'con' involved in King killing?

The House Select Committee on Assassinations confirmed Tuesday it is investigating reports a Virginia convict may have been involved in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. A committee spokeswoman said Randolph E. Rosenson has been questioned, but refused to say if the committee believed he participated in the 1968 slaying of the civil rights leader in Memphis, Tenn. "We'll have no comment on that at this time," she said, but added the committee might make a statement in two or three weeks. The committee questioned Rosenson last week in response to a recent interview in Playboy magazine in which King's convicted killer, James Earl Ray, implied a man named Rosenson participated in the assassination.

Nixon welcomes estate bus tours

Former President Richrd Nixon, who has lived the life of a recluse since his resignation in 1974, will open the grounds of his estate to one day of public bus tours next Feb. 26, it was disclosed Tuesday. The Chamber of Commerce said Nixon had agreed to the tours of the former "Western White House" area as part of the town's 50th birthday celebration. "We appreciate this offer from the Nixon family and we want the public to know we are not paying them anything for the privilege," said Chamber of Commerce president William Kendall. "All proceeds from the ticket sale will go to cover expenses for the birthday celebration."

Bill would limit phone advertising

Legislation to limit unsolicited commercial advertising by telephone was proposed Tuesday in the House and Senate, with backers branding such "junk calls" the "ultimate invasion of privacy to millions of Americans." The authors, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., and Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., said they were introducing their identical bills because the volume of advertising calls already is too high and is "likely to soar" soon with a fully automated "telephone selling machine" on the market that will make calls even cheaper than mail. Under the measure, telephone companies would have to give their subscribers at least one chance a year to indicate if they do not want to get such calls.

New trial for Zamora sought

Ronny Zamora's defense attorney filed a motion for a new trial Tuesday, claiming the 15-year-old youth was denied a fair trial because the judge refused to permit testimony on the general effect of television violence on children. Zamora was found guilty last Thursday of first degree murder, armed robbery, burglary and possession of a weapon for the June 4 shooting death of his neighbor, Elinda Hart. The nine-day trial received widespread attention because of the unusual plea that Zamora was insane at the time of the crime because of "prolonged and involuntary subliminal intoxication with television violence." It also was the first murder trial to receive gavel-to-gavel television and still photo coverage as part of a year-long experiment ordered by the Florida Supreme Court.

Cosmonauts return safely to earth

The Soyuz 25 cosomonauts returned safely to earth early Tuesday to conclude in failure a mission that opened the Soviet Union's third decade of space exploration. The Soyuz 25 mission by cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalenok and Valery Ryumin lasted just over 48 hours from the time it lifted off the launch pad at the Baikonur Cosmodrome before dawn Sunday to the parachute-assisted soft landing on the Central Asian steppe at dawn Tuesday. The cosmonauts arrived Tuesday afternoon in Star City ,the space center outside Moscow, for meetings with engineers and scientists. Barely 24 hours into the mission, Soviet ground control ordered it canceled because of unspecified troubles during an attempt to dock Soyuz 25 with the new Salyut 6 orbital space station. It was the third failure of a Soyuz mission due to docking problems in the last three years.

New trial for Zamora sought

Ronny Zamora's defense attorney filed a motion for a new trial Tuesday, claiming the 15-year-old youth was denied a fair trial because the judge refused to permit testimony on the general effect of television violence on children. Zamora was found guilty last Thursday of first degree murder, armed robbery, burglary and possession of a weapon for the June 4 shooting death of his neighbor, Elinda Hart. The nine-day trial received widespread attention because of the unusual plea that Zamora was insane at the time of the crime because of "prolonged and involuntary subliminal intoxication with television violence." It also was the first murder trial to receive gavel-to-gavel television and still photo coverage as part of a year-long experiment ordered by the Florida Supreme Court.

Cosmonauts return safely to earth

The Soyuz 25 cosomonauts returned safely to earth early Tuesday to conclude in failure a mission that opened the Soviet Union's third decade of space exploration. The Soyuz 25 mission by cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalenok and Valery Ryumin lasted just over 48 hours from the time it lifted off the launch pad at the Baikonur Cosmodrome before dawn Sunday to the parachute-assisted soft landing on the Central Asian steppe at dawn Tuesday. The cosmonauts arrived Tuesday afternoon in Star City ,the space center outside Moscow, for meetings with engineers and scientists. Barely 24 hours into the mission, Soviet ground control ordered it canceled because of unspecified troubles during an attempt to dock Soyuz 25 with the new Salyut 6 orbital space station. It was the third failure of a Soyuz mission due to docking problems in the last three years.

Court OKs street parking limits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Tuesday gave cities and communities the go-ahead to restrict commuter parking on congested neighborhood streets while allowing residents to park there on a free permit.

The justices overruled the Virginia Supreme Court, which struck down an Arlington County, Va., parking ordinance on grounds it unconstitutionally discriminated against nonresidents.

Their brief, unsigned opinion said:

"TO REDUCE air pollution and other environmenal effects of automobile commuting, a community reasonably may restrict on-street parking available to commuters, thus encouraging reliance on car pools and mass transit.

"The same goal is served by assuring convenient parking to residents who leave their cars at home during the day.

"The Constitution does not outlaw these social and environmental objectives nor does it presume distinctions between residents and nonresidents of a local neighborhood to be invidious."

Such laws have been supported by the Environmental Protection Agency as a way to reduce pollution of the air by motor vehicles.

CHARLES FLINN, Deputy attorney for the county that borders the nation's capital, said Tuesday's decision "removes the major barrier" to cities wanting to implement such residential permit parking plans.

But he said the Virginia Supreme Court still has to decide some state constitutional issues before the Arlington plan can be put into effect. The ordinance bars commuter parking on designated neighborhood streets during weekday business hours but grants free street-parking permits to residents and their visitors.

Localities that have adopted similar ordinances include the District of Columbia, Atlanta, Baltimore, San Francisco, Boston and Cambridge, Mass., Charlottesville, Va., and Wilmington, Del.

The District of Columbia plan already is in effect on Capitol ready is in effect on Capitol Hill where the Supreme Court is located. But some laws — in Richmond, Va.,, Montgomery County, Md., and New Boston, Ohio, for example — have been ovrturned by courts.

IN OTHER ACTION Tuesday, the high court agreed to rule on a case involving congressional immunity from lawsuits.

It stems from a $50,000 damage suit filed against Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., by political activists Alan and Margaret McSurely, whose personal papers were copied during his subcommittee's investigation of civil disorders in the 1960s.

The Justice Dept. appealed to the Supreme Court on the senator's behalf after the full U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia voted 5 to 5 to let the suit proceed.

Appeals court Judge Harold Leventhal said the Constitution's grant of immunity from suit to members of Congress does not apply to unlawful activity.

17 hurt on bus carrying fans from race track

The driver of a chartered bus carrying harness-racing fans from the Arlington Park Race Track lost control of his vehicle in Hillside early Tuesday, crashing into a warehouse and seriously injuring a Chicago man.

Seventeen persons were hurt when an Eagle Bus Lines vehicle, chartered in Skokie, went out of control on an exit ramp from the Eisenhower Expressway to southbound Mannheim Road, crashed through a fence, bounced over railroad tracks, narrowly missed an electric transmission pole and struck a paper products warehouse.

Donald White, 42, of 38 W. Harrison St., Chicago, was listed in serious condition at the Loyola University Medical Center, Maywood, Tuesday. White suffered severe head, chest and abdominal injuries.

POLICE SAID White was one of 25 passengers who had attended the inauguration of harness racing Monday night at Arlington Park.

No one at the Chippewa Paper Products warehouse, at 50 S. Mannheim Rd., Hillside, was reported injured.

Takashi Momyame, 28, of 525 W. Stratford Ave., Chicago, also was hurt. He was reported in good contition with leg injuries Tuesday at Westlake Community Hospital, Melrose Park.

Fifteen other passengers received minor injuries in the crash. All were treated at nearby hospitals, and released Tuesday.

Police are investigating, but said brake failure and wet road conditions may have caused the crash.

'Windgate should be put on probation'

The Windgate home for Children, in Woodstock, should be placed on one year of probation and be required to eliminate some of its disciplinary practices, a hearing officer for the Dept. of Children and Family Services said Tuesday.

The home for developmentally disabled children should stop putting hot sauce on children's tongues, forcing children to take cold showers and tying their shoelaces together, hearing officer Oliver Spurlock said. Those methods of behavior modification are "cruel, severe, unusual and unnecessary punishment," he said.

Spurlock's report was submitted to department Director Margaret M. Kennedy. She has until early November to make a decision.

2 Czechs hijack jet to Frankfurt

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — A young Czechoslovak couple Tuesday hijacked a Soviet-built jetliner with 29 persons aboard and forced it to fly to West Germany where they asked for political asylum.

West German police took the hijackers into custody and legal authorities said they will be tried in line with the government's determination to end air piracy.

Police said a 29-year-old man and a 21-year-old woman friend, both ground employes of the state-run Czechoslovak Airline, flew as passengers on a domestic flight and forced the Soviet-made Yak40 to cross the border and land at the Frankfurt International Airfield. It had 26 passengers and a crew of three.

"THEY HAVE ASKED for political asylum," Frankfurt Police Chief Knut Mueller told an airport news conference. "They gave political motives for their action."

"It is certain charges will be preferred against them," Mueller said. "They have committed a serious crime."

Police said the pair, wearing their airline ground crew uniforms, brandished a pistol and a revolver to take over the aircraft after it took off from Karlovy Vary, formerly Carlsbad, enroute to Prague.

THE COUPLE surrendered after two hours and 15 minutes of negotiations with West German authorities, after being persuaded to drop their original plan to fly on to Munich before leaving the plane, police said.

In Prague, airport authorities said the man was wanted on a charge of stealing a large sum of money and a camera from his pregnant mistress. They said an arrest warrant had been issued for him Tuesday morning.

This raised the possibility Czechoslovakia would ask for his extradition, but legal authorities said no extradition agreement exists between Czechoslovakia and West Germany.

IN THE PAST, Czechoslovakia made similar charges against hijackers and asked for their extradition. West German authorities refused to send them back but tried and sentenced them in German courts for hijacking.

Democratic candidates sought for 3rd district

Persons interested in running as a Democratic candidate in the 3rd State Legislative District are invited to meet with Democratic committeemen from the district at 8 p.m. Oct. 19 at the Heritage Bank Building, Schaumburg and Springinsguth roads, Schaumburg.

The 3rd district includes all of Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships and parts of Palatine and Wheeling townships. John F. Morrissey, Schaumburg Township Democratic committeeman, is party chairman of the district.

Democrats are looking for a candidate to run with incumbent State Rep. Eugenia Chapman against the two Republican incumbents.

Three legislators are elected from each state house district.

The committeemen also are interested in hearing from Democrats interested in running for U.S. Congressman in the 12th Congressional District against incumbent Republican Phillip M. Crane.

Cancer center open house

An open house to mark the first anniversary of the cancer care center at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, will be at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26 in the hospital's chapel-auditorium.

Dr. Leonard Kosova, medical director of the center, will discuss cancer in today's society and the types of medical treatment available.

Other members of the 20-bed cancer center also will be present. The center uses a team approach with a physician, primary nurse, chaplain, social worker and others working together to meet the needs of the patient and his or her family.

Young Republicans award party Oct. 19

The Young Republican Organization of Cook County will have its fourth annual awards party at 6 p.m. Oct. 19 at the Swedish Club, 1258 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

The group plans to honor party chairman Harold L. Tyrrell, Maine Township Committeewoman Margaret Wilson and Paul Randolph, Republican committeeman of the 42d ward in Chicago.

Tickets for the cocktail party are $10 and may be purchased at the door. Reservations also can be made through the Republican county central committee at 641-6400.

Child infections to be discussed

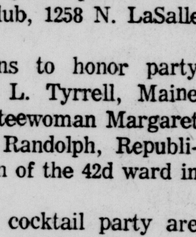
A free community program, "Common infections in childhood and their significance," will be presented at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Paluch Hall of Our Lady of Ransom Church, Greenwood and Norman avenues, Niles.

Dr. Prudence Krieger, a specialist in pediatric infectious diseases at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, will be the featured speaker.

Biofeedback program

A free program on relaxation techniques and biofeedback will be presented at 7 p.m., Oct. 26 in the cafeteria of the Niehoff Pavilion, Alexian Brothers Medical Center, 955 Bisner Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Color Fiddling



by Ed Landwehr

All those old, old black and white movies you watch into the wee hours of the morning will probably be rerun in full color pretty soon. They have an electronic process now that converts these old films to color. It's an electronic manipulation using a combination analog and digital technique. The operators can color a whole scene.

We hope at Landwehr's TV & Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights that they do a good job. We get too many calls now about red faces, pink grass and green skies. You would be surprised that many folks still do not know how to adjust their color sets. Of course, our customers don't have this trouble. We take the time to make this correction on maintenance service calls. We even show you how to be an expert dial fiddler when you phone 255-0700.

2 Czechs hijack jet to Frankfurt

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — A young Czechoslovak couple Tuesday hijacked a Soviet-built jetliner with 29 persons aboard and forced it to fly to West Germany where they asked for political asylum.

West German police took the hijackers into custody and legal authorities said they will be tried in line with the government's determination to end air piracy.

Police said a 29-year-old man and a 21-year-old woman friend, both ground employes of the state-run Czechoslovak Airline, flew as passengers on a domestic flight and forced the Soviet-made Yak40 to cross the border and land at the Frankfurt International Airfield. It had 26 passengers and a crew of three.

"THEY HAVE ASKED for political asylum," Frankfurt Police Chief Knut Mueller told an airport news conference. "They gave political motives for their action."

"It is certain charges will be preferred against them," Mueller said. "They have committed a serious crime."

Police said the pair, wearing their airline ground crew uniforms, brandished a pistol and a revolver to take over the aircraft after it took off from Karlovy Vary, formerly Carlsbad, enroute to Prague.

THE COUPLE surrendered after two hours and 15 minutes of negotiations with West German authorities, after being persuaded to drop their original plan to fly on to Munich before leaving the plane, police said.

In Prague, airport authorities said the man was wanted on a charge of stealing a large sum of money and a camera from his pregnant mistress. They said an arrest warrant had been issued for him Tuesday morning.

This raised the possibility Czechoslovakia would ask for his extradition, but legal authorities said no extradition agreement exists between Czechoslovakia and West Germany.

IN THE PAST, Czechoslovakia made similar charges against hijackers and asked for their extradition. West German authorities refused to send them back but tried and sentenced them in German courts for hijacking.

Democratic candidates sought for 3rd district

Persons interested in running as a Democratic candidate in the 3rd State Legislative District are invited to meet with Democratic committeemen from the district at 8 p.m. Oct. 19 at the Heritage Bank Building, Schaumburg and Springinsguth roads, Schaumburg.

The 3rd district includes all of Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships and parts of Palatine and Wheeling townships. John F. Morrissey, Schaumburg Township Democratic committeeman, is party chairman of the district.

Democrats are looking for a candidate to run with incumbent State Rep. Eugenia Chapman against the two Republican incumbents.

Three legislators are elected from each state house district.

The committeemen also are interested in hearing from Democrats interested in running for U.S. Congressman in the 12th Congressional District against incumbent Republican Phillip M. Crane.

Cancer center open house

An open house to mark the first anniversary of the cancer care center at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, will be at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26 in the hospital's chapel-auditorium.

Dr. Leonard Kosova, medical director of the center, will discuss cancer in today's society and the types of medical treatment available.

Other members of the 20-bed cancer center also will be present. The center uses a team approach with a physician, primary nurse, chaplain, social worker and others working together to meet the needs of the patient and his or her family.

Young Republicans award party Oct. 19

The Young Republican Organization of Cook County will have its fourth annual awards party at 6 p.m. Oct. 19 at the Swedish Club, 1258 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

The group plans to honor party chairman Harold L. Tyrrell, Maine Township Committeewoman Margaret Wilson and Paul Randolph, Republican committeeman of the 42d ward in Chicago.

Tickets for the cocktail party are $10 and may be purchased at the door. Reservations also can be made through the Republican county central committee at 641-6400.

Child infections to be discussed

A free community program, "Common infections in childhood and their significance," will be presented at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Paluch Hall of Our Lady of Ransom Church, Greenwood and Norman avenues, Niles.

Dr. Prudence Krieger, a specialist in pediatric infectious diseases at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, will be the featured speaker.

Biofeedback program

A free program on relaxation techniques and biofeedback will be presented at 7 p.m., Oct. 26 in the cafeteria of the Niehoff Pavilion, Alexian Brothers Medical Center, 955 Bisner Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Color Fiddling

by Ed Landwehr

All those old, old black and white movies you watch into the wee hours of the morning will probably be rerun in full color pretty soon. They have an electronic process now that converts these old films to color. It's an electronic manipulation using a combination analog and digital technique. The operators can color a whole scene.

We hope at Landwehr's TV & Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights that they do a good job. We get too many calls now about red faces, pink grass and green skies. You would be surprised that many folks still do not know how to adjust their color sets. Of course, our customers don't have this trouble. We take the time to make this correction on maintenance service calls. We even show you how to be an expert dial fiddler when you phone 255-0700.

Police stop Mexican prison riot

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) — Police Tuesday ended rioting between rival groups of inmates at the Oblatos State Penitentiary during which at least 14 prisoners were killed.

Prison spokesman Jose Luis Almanzor said police standing guard outside the prison since the rioting began Monday entered the jail and quelled the disturbance at midmorning Tuesday.

He said wardens and guards had returned to their posts and "Everything is apparently calm."

A SPOKESMAN for the U.S. consulate in Guadalajara said consular officials from the embassy in Mexico City were allowed to enter the prison and speak with the 10 American prisoners held there.

"The 10 are all right," the spokesman said.

Authorities said 14 inmates were beaten or stabbed to death Monday in fighting which started when inmates belonging to two leftist groups, the September 23 Communist League and the People's Armed Revolutionary Forces, attacked another gang known as the "Jackals" in a battle for control of the prison's narcotic trade.

A reporter for the Jalisco state news agency said he was told by prisoners that two more inmates had been hung in their cells, bringing the death toll to 16.

THE REPORTER said he saw one of the 14 victims of Monday's fighting being removed from the prison grounds.

"They had put out his eyes, scalped him and castrated him and then burnt him. He had more than 140 stab wounds," the reporter said.

Members of the two leftist groups later circulated a statement which said, "The dead were put to death by the (prison) population because we could no longer support their abuses and arbitrary behavior. This is not a crime but an act of justice."

The prisoners' statement also demanded "jobs, medical service, better food and an end to injustice. We are human beings and we want to be treated as such."

The Oblatos Penitentiary, built 40 years ago to house 800 prisoners, now has a population of almost 3,000. The state has set aside funds to build a new prison within a year.

Family most important to successful: study

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Families are more important than jobs as a source of lifetime satisfaction to bright, successful men who took part in a Stanford University study.

The men, in their 60s and participants in a survey of gifted individuals, "set a very high store on family life," said psychology Prof. Robert Sears.

Sears said he was "surprised that family life satisfaction" rated higher for the men than their professions "because a very large proportion of this group has been extremely successful.

"AVERAGE INCOME in 1972 was $33,000. They are first-rate scientists, educators and corporation presidents."

Sears said the study was surprising because there is "widespread belief that middle-class men are obsessed with their work and get most of their life's satisfaction from it."

The psychologist said "age 62 seemed a good time to ask these men to focus on both the past and the future.

"With a long life of accomplishment already behind them, they would be in a position to evaluate its joys and sorrows, its successes and failures and its might-have-been as well as its was.

"And they were nearing the time, if they had not already reached it, when a hard look at the future was necessary.

"PARTIAL OR complete retirement was approaching for most, and the inevitable social and physical consequences of aging were part of the near future for all."

The survey questionnaire asked the men to rate feelings of satisfaction and success not only in occupation and family life but in friendships, richness of cultural life, service to society and joy of living.

"We found there were predictors all along the way," Sears said. "If the men in their 30s were satisfied, ambitious and healthy, then they tended to be satisfied with work at 60 and were still working.

"If they had a well-adjusted childhood, good mental health, positive attitudes toward parents at age 40 and reported themselves happily married, then at age 60 they would have high family life satisfaction and success in marriage.

"Income, however, was a nonsignificant predictor of satisfaction in most cases," he said.

Energy use gets test in monitors showing its cost

It looks like a digital clock, but the Fitch energy monitor does more than click off the minutes.

It is part of a test program designed to see if comsumers will cut down their energy use at home if they are reminded continually how much it costs.

Starting this fall, 70 homes in the Washington D.C. area will be equipped with the monitor, which provides up-to-the-monute readings of the cost of electricity being used.

THE DEVICE CAN be placed in the kitchen or other location so consumers can tell at a glance how much it will cost if they continue to use the same amount of energy during the next hour. The monitors also serve as digital clocks, alternately giving the electricity cost per hour and the time of day every four seconds.

Financed by the U.S. Energy and Research Development Administration, the units will cost about $75 each. A person wishing to buy a monitor probably would have to pay about $125, but ERDA officials said the cost could drop to $25-40 if the devices are mass produced.

The monitor was developed by R.B. Fitch, a Chapel Hill, N.C. builder who has incorporated energy saving features into the houses he builds.

"CONSUMERS USUALLY are not aware of their electricity consumption until they get their monthly bills — and then it is too late to do much about it," said Maxine Savitz, director of ERDA's Division of Buildings and Community Systems.

"Even after they get their bills, consumers are not able to see which equipment uses the most power," she said. "The energy monitors will allow consumers to have instantaneous information on electricity consumption and hopefully this constant feedback of information will spur them to cut back use."

The Potomac Electric Power Co. will install the devices and keep track of electricity consumption. Princeton University researchers, who have been carrying out consumer studies for ERDA, will study and evaluate the project.

If the project is successful, a larger scale demonstration involving several utilities may be planned for next year.

Energy use gets test in monitors showing its cost

It looks like a digital clock, but the Fitch energy monitor does more than click off the minutes.

It is part of a test program designed to see if comsumers will cut down their energy use at home if they are reminded continually how much it costs.

Starting this fall, 70 homes in the Washington D.C. area will be equipped with the monitor, which provides up-to-the-monute readings of the cost of electricity being used.

THE DEVICE CAN be placed in the kitchen or other location so consumers can tell at a glance how much it will cost if they continue to use the same amount of energy during the next hour. The monitors also serve as digital clocks, alternately giving the electricity cost per hour and the time of day every four seconds.

Financed by the U.S. Energy and Research Development Administration, the units will cost about $75 each. A person wishing to buy a monitor probably would have to pay about $125, but ERDA officials said the cost could drop to $25-40 if the devices are mass produced.

The monitor was developed by R.B. Fitch, a Chapel Hill, N.C. builder who has incorporated energy saving features into the houses he builds.

"CONSUMERS USUALLY are not aware of their electricity consumption until they get their monthly bills — and then it is too late to do much about it," said Maxine Savitz, director of ERDA's Division of Buildings and Community Systems.

"Even after they get their bills, consumers are not able to see which equipment uses the most power," she said. "The energy monitors will allow consumers to have instantaneous information on electricity consumption and hopefully this constant feedback of information will spur them to cut back use."

The Potomac Electric Power Co. will install the devices and keep track of electricity consumption. Princeton University researchers, who have been carrying out consumer studies for ERDA, will study and evaluate the project.

If the project is successful, a larger scale demonstration involving several utilities may be planned for next year.

Group seeks to stop RTA gas tax

Area motorists are being asked to join a last ditch effort to stop the Regional Transportation Authority's new 5 per cent gas tax.

Petitions, posters and leaflets are being distributed to gas stations in the RTA's six-county area. Members of the Chicago Metro Illinois Highway Users Conference hope this effort will pressure legislators into killing the gas tax.

"Our intent is to take the petitions to the legislature," said William Schmitz, executive secretary of the conference, which consists of organizations that depend on the highways for their livelihood. Among the conference's ranks are gas dealers, rural letter carriers and truckers.

THE GAS TAX was approved by the RTA board in June and originally was to go into effect Nov. 1. That date has been pushed back because of a legal challenge to the tax.

Money from the gas tax is intended to prevent a $55 million RTA deficit, which would result in massive service cuts throughout the region. The tax is estimated to add 2.8 cents to the cost of a gallon of gas.

Schmitz said his organization opposes the tax because it makes highway users pay for mass transit. He said these funds instead should be used to repair roads and bridges throughout the state.

"Do you know Downstate there are some bridges where school buses have to stop and be unloaded before they can cross?" Schmidt said to underscore the need for more highway funds.

THE ONLY WAY the legislature could kill the gas tax would be to rewrite the original legislation that created the RTA. That legislation funded the RTA with three-thirty-seconds of the state sales tax and also gave the agency the power to levy gasoline and parking taxes. The parking tax has never been enacted because it is considered impossible to collect.

Schmitz said his group testified against the RTA gas tax before it was approved.

Moore faces trial on jail beating

Acting Cook County Jail head Winston E. Moore went on trial Tuesday on charges of beating a mentally retarded inmate.

The trial is the second Moore has faced this year on brutality charges. He was acquitted earlier on charges of beating two other prisoners.

Cook County Sheriff Richard Elrod has promised to replace Moore whatever the outcome of the trial.

*When is an Original Oil Painting not "original"?

Dutch Flower Market by Christian Jereczek

Christian Jereczek was born on November 7, 1935 in Berlin. He studied at the Berlin Academy of Fine Arts under Prof. Dake, Prof. Worner and Theo Balden. He later turned to specializing in oil painting under the direction of the well-known Frankfurt artist, Warun-Sekret. His exhibits in France, Italy, Spain and the United States have been widely accepted.

by Harriet Braun and Lithia Pavalon

When you see fine art advertised, it is not presented as "sofa-size, under $35." Original oil paintings are not sold and priced by square inch. Also, if you expect your painting to be one of a kind do you really think an artist could afford to be that creative for the low - low prices that you have seen advertised?

The ART AND BOOK GALERIE located in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center in Buffalo Grove feature the finest original oil paintings that are available. The best of contemporary European artists are now on exhibit and you're really in for a treat.

Prices range to fit every budget and your investment is guaranteed. This is no traveling art show where you will never see the mass merchandiser again.

The ART AND BOOK GALERIE guarantees your investment for 5 years and you may exchange your painting for full value. Also, if you would like to see a painting in your home you may have it "on approval" for 5 days. If you are not completely satisfied it may be returned for a cash refund.

If you are thinking about owning an original oil painting, you deserve just that - an original. Why not invest in a painting that will appreciate in value over the years? The ART AND BOOK GALERIE guarantees you will not see duplicates wherever you go.

Browsers are welcome. So, why not visit the ART AND BOOK GALERIE located on Dundee and Arlington Heights Road, in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center in Buffalo Grove. Their new manager, Michael Wavra will be very happy to show you around and answer any of your questions. They are open on Sundays from 12 to 4, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday from 10 to 5:30, Thursday and Friday from 10 to 8:30.

They are closed on Mondays.

Joint effort can aid park district

Officials of the Buffalo Grove Park District must take positive steps toward restoring public confidence in their agency so Buffalo Grove residents will have adequate parks.

To do this, park officials ought to begin concerted efforts to work both with the village government and with community groups to develop the eight park sites that have been donated by developers but which have not been deeded to the park district and to improve existing parks.

The park district has not accepted title to the 37.5 acres of park land because of the poor condition of the sites. The village has been negotiating with grading and seeding done on the developers to get minimum sites before they are turned over to the park district.

In some neighborhoods, residents near park sites have become involved in improvement projects for their neighborhood parks.

The problem facing the Buffalo Grove Park District is twofold. On the one hand, growth in the village has been so rapid it has outstripped the park district's ability to meet it. At the same time, however, the park district has not been able to rally public confidence in their ability to meet the problems if more money was available.

To overcome the first problem, park officials must first deal with the second. The lack of public confidence in the district was clearly exemplified last year when voters turned down a hastily-drawn and poorly explained park development referendum.

The best way for park officials to build confidence is to enlist both the village and community groups in volunteer efforts to improve the parks. Once that is done the district will have the base to present well thought-out plans for park development to the voters for a referendum.

With the large number of young families moving into Buffalo Grove, a good park system is essential. At this point, the park district is far enough behind in keeping up with growth that it cannot overnight develop an excellent system.

However, there are things that can be done to improve Buffalo Grove's parks. Park officials must be creative in searching for answers.

School day care needed

The problems of working parents are being partially alleviated by two different programs in Northwest suburban school districts.

Stevenson School in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 offers a breakfast program from 7:30 a.m. until school starts and an afternoon program from 3:30 to 6 p.m.

And at John Jay School in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 an afternoon day care program is serving 25 children.

At both schools, the programs are supported entirely by fees paid by parents, so taxpayers aren't footing the babysitting bill. And, as the response to the programs indicates, the day care service fulfills a real need for many suburban families.

Officials at both schools say the programs help working parents who must leave home before their children are due in class and who return from work two or three hours after the end of the school day.

Without the day care programs, these parents would have to rely either on expensive — and perhaps unreliable — private babysitters or leave their children alone for extended periods.

Using the elementary schools as a headquarters for day care has been proposed before, but it has taken Jay and Stevenson officials to demonstrate that it can work.

Other schools should consider such a program, provided, of course, that it can be supported by fees. Such programs can provide a valuable service for parents who are working hard to make ends meet.

Quinlan tragedy continues long past its expected end

Jim Bishop

There are patients in comas in thousands of hospitals. Only one has stirred the country: Karen Ann Quinlan. She has been unconscious for two-and-a-half years. Millions of peoople have strong opinions about whether she should live or die.

The parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, have endured a private hell. They sued to have the life support systems removed. They won. But Karen Ann did not die. She rasps each tortured breath on her own.

The stories about this girl have been so dramatic, so misinformed, that the Quinlans looked around for someone who could write a book truly and well. They asked Phyllis Battelle to do it.

I FLINCH FROM superlatives. But Battelle is a journalist of the old Who? What? When? Where? Why? school. She has the quiet, confident approach of the consummate craftsman. I sat up all night reading "Karen Ann."

Karen Ann was a dark-haired, dark-eyed daughter. Life, at the age of 21, was a ball. She endured the frowns of her religious parents when she left home in April, 1975, to rent a room 10 miles away. As she explained it: "Dad, if you can't make it on your own at 21, you'll never make it."

She didn't make it. The Quinlans got a pre-dawn phone call to hurry to Newton Memorial Hospital. Karen was unconscious in intensive care. In the gleaming corridor, the Quinlans were introduced to Tom French and a girl, Terry O'Neill, friends of Karen.

They had celebrated Terry's birthday at a tavern called Falconer's with a boy named Bill Zywot. It wasn't much of a party. She began to list as though she were drunk.

PARTY-POOPER. They brought her back to her room and placed her on her bed. Some time later, Tom French said he'd check on Karen. He listened for sleep breathing. There wasn't any.

He yelled for help. They tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. They called an ambulance. A cop arrived. He peeled her eyelids back, yanked her off the bed, and gave her resuscitation. Karen began to breathe.

No one knows how long breathing was suspended. Anything more than 240 seconds will induce brain damage. Karen Ann Quinlan's mind was beyond repair. Her body continued to function.

The doctors made exhaustive tests for narcotics. Nothing. Someone said she had taken a tablet of valium. The doctor admitted that it could have a bearing on the girl's condition — taken in concert with alcohol — but he doubted it.

FOR ALMOST TWO years, the Quinlans have stared at their struggling Karen, and listened to the pump-thump of the machines. Sometimes Karen stares wildly from left to right. At others she pops up in bed, her head twisting. The hands, the feet, keep turning inward and drawing upward.

She was beyond torturing. Her parents weren't. One night Julia said to Joe, "I hope to God she either makes it or she dies." The father was shocked. The mother sensed that Karen already had one foot in another world.

The doctors talked again to Tom French and the cop. They felt that Karen had stopped breathing for two periods of almost 15 minutes. For this girl, there is no road back. The Supreme Court of the State of New Jersey authorized the pulling of plugs which kept her alive.

But the heart continues. If a nurse bumps the bed accidentally, Karen jumps up, terror in the empty eyes. She is fed intravenously. Her wastes are removed mechanically. She has faced pneumonia a dozen times. On each occasion medical science has brought Karen from death to nothing.

SOMETIMES SHE appears to be "awake," at others "sleeping." Her dark hair became matted with sweat on her cheeks, Nurses cut it. Sometimes her jaws chew. At others she emits a loud moan.

No one, it seems, will know why Karen fell unconscious on her bed. Or why no one sat beside her when she stopped breathing. The intensive care room she occupied was estimated at $465 a day. For 900 days that would come to $418,500.

Karen is a broken doll. She writhes, she moans, she sweats, the eyelids flicker. Most doctors agree that decortication is her true injury. This is the death of the cortex of the brain. Without it consciousness is impossible.

It is long past Karen's bedtime . . .

Is regional library needed?

A recent Daily Herald story documented how the Arlington Heights Memorial Library loaned more than 90,000 books to nonresidents of Arlington Heights last year under the reciprocal borrowing arrangement. The Arlington library receives such heavy out of town use because it is a larger, better stocked facility than many of its neighbors. Library taxes in Arlington Heights are also higher than in other communities.

One possible solution to this problem would be to form a regional library district covering all the Northwest suburbs, with present local libraries serving as branches. Library taxes could be equalized throughout the area. Is this a good idea? Or would local libraries lose too much local identity? Should residents of communities which pay less library tax than Arlington Heights be charged if they use the Arlington library? Or are there other solutions to this problem?

Send your views to Forum, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Letters should be limited to 150 words and include address and phone number for verification. Replies should be received in our office by Saturday, Oct. 15 and will run on Oct. 20.

He defends Crane image

In reply to Mr. William H. Anderson's letter of October 6: Mr. Anderson does not seem to think Congressman Philip Crane's "style" is too "inspiring." My interest in leadership has very little to do with inspiration.

People like Congressman Crane who base their actions upon principles and upon lessons learned from the past are far more effective in achieving worthwhile goals than those who are inspirational but intent on trying to make an old idea work that is known to be a bad risk.

I do not believe Congressman Crane is overly intellectual. I think he is terrific. Incidentally, I find him inspiring too; never dull, never boring or monotonous, just accurate.

Many of the ideas Congressman Crane believes in have inspired people for years. I do not think it made much difference where they lived or what political party they belonged to.

A conservative in the White House is not a bad idea, but maybe what we need most are more Phil Cranes next door, as well as in Congress.

Firemen lauded

My name is Allen Stensland and I'm 13 years old. I would like to express my views of the Arlington Heights Fire Dept.

Last summer there was a truck and trailer on fire at Windsor Drive and Palatine Road. I live near there so I went to see what was happening. When I got there, there was an engine on the scene. I was talking to a woman who had seen it happen and to my surprise she made the comment that we have bad fire protection in Arlington Heights because it took them so long to get on the scene. I told her that maybe the reason they didn't get there fast was because the call was late or they got stuck in traffic.

I think the people of Arlington Heights should be proud of their fire department. Another thing good to know is that the paramedics are ranked one of the best in the country. I know that I'm very proud of them.

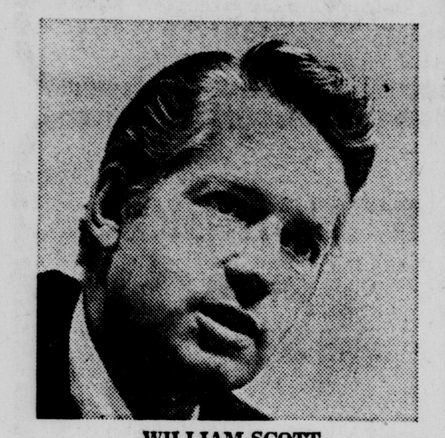
Scott could lose 'Mr. Clean' image slushing about in $50,000 fund

With 1977 rushing to a close, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott appears to have the inside track on winning the not always annual "Otto Kerner You Can't Keep Your Mr. Clean Image Forever" award.

The honor is awarded on a haphazard basis to public servants normally held in high esteem by the public, who somehow are besmirched. The distinction was created in the name of the late governor-jurist who was caught with his hands in the starting gate in the race track stock scandal.



WILLIAM SCOTT

Steve Brown

From our Springfield bureau

The only other previous winner came last year when former Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett was tagged for his characterization as a scrap iron consultant while on the public payroll in the memorable Sun Steel story.

SCOTT HAS FORGED into a commanding lead for this year with his sheepish confirmation of the existence of a $50,000 slush fund. The fund, which existed in Scott's early political career, apparently had fewer records that the ledger books of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee. The attorney general maintains the money was used solely for political purposes.

It should be noted such funds were not illegal. Why, Scott even recalled that the legendary bandit Paul Powell had his own cash horde.

The A. G., who has built an image of political purity with his relentless pursuit of polluters and other bad guys, has lamely suggested the fund was used for activities like buying stamps for Christmas cards mailed to precinct captains.

A cynic might suggest this explanation strains the definition of the word credibility.

BUT IT IS NOT just the existence of the fund that makes Scott the choice for the award. The fact that he kept the money in a safe deposit box rather than a checking account clinches his front-runner status.

Yep, that safety deposit box removes all doubt. Those little devices rank just below numbered Swiss bank account and holes in mattresses in casting suspicions about the use of money.

If the General had had a checking account, the existence of the fund might not have been questioned. But a safety deposit box leaves room for possible scenarios like this.

"Quick, go grab $1,000 from the slush fund for stamps for the Christmas cards," the General said to a trusted lieutenant one Sunday morn.

"BUT MY LEADER, we can't because the bank is closed with the box locked tight inside," the worshipping aide responded.

"Drats, well I guess we will just have to wait until Monday to send those cards. I hope the captains don't mind too much," said the General with an eye on the calendar.

So without hestitation Scott wins. The slush fund easily eclipses the year's only other possible nominee, Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon, the owner of several Wendy's Hamburger franchises, who deftly rushed through legislation this spring transferring the authority to regulate the franchises from his office to the attorney general.

While the early reaction is that Scott's fund problem is one that will linger for awhile, at least one reactor, Gov. James "I've Disclosed All Contributions" Thompson, says Scott has done nothing wrong.

Thompson might be right, but unless Scott has some answers to the questions raised about the fund, the public is only left to wonder if they are stuck with another Mr. Clean politician who has been playing in the mud puddle behind their backs.

Abortion bill veto 'mistake'

A Daily Herald editorial (Thompson Veto Of Abortion Bill Courageous Act, Sept. 19) praises Gov. James Thompson for his courage in vetoing HB333 to stop state funding of abortions. The implication is that if enough people are against you you must be right.

But Gov. Thompson made a grave mistake in vetoing HB333. He flew in the face of too many well-informed individuals and government bodies for his veto to be more than exercise of raw executive power.

Thompson's appeal to conscience overlooks the fact that the conscience of the executive must be rightly formed and take into account all elements involved in a decision. Thompson's explanation ignores the existence of the unborn child in the abortion funding debate. It is precisely this issue that has the taxpayers' concern. They do not want to pay for the extermination of the children of the poor.

Thompson's reference to self-induced and back alley abortions if welfare funds are not available is an emotional ploy lacking substance. Since Aug. 4 there have been no federal funds for abortions, and 28 states have stopped welfare abortion payments. Yet there has not been one case of self-induced or illegal abortion complications or deaths reported. The abortion crowd would have these figures in print immediately if they had any.

Concentration on dangers of illegal abortion ignores the fact that legal abortion is equally dangerous. Gov. Thompson turned a deaf ear to reports on deaths and complications from legal abortions, and ignored a recent abortion death in Granite City, Ill., involving a legally operated abortion clinic.

Throughout his press conference Gov. Thompson referred to all abortions covered by Medicaid as "therapeutic." House Bill 333 deals only with elective abortions. Thompson's misleading reference led some to wonder if he is fully aware of the nature and content of this bill. Further, holding a "mini-poll" in a local restaurant following his veto and asking diners there what they thought of his move smacks of levity in this important life and death issue.

INSIGHT

THE DAILY HERALD

Scott could lose 'Mr. Clean' image slushing about in $50,000 fund

WILLIAM SCOTT

Steve Brown

From our Springfield bureau

With 1977 rushing to a close, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott appears to have the inside track on winning the not always annual "Otto Kerner You Can't Keep Your Mr. Clean Image Forever" award.

The honor is awarded on a haphazard basis to public servants normally held in high esteem by the public, who somehow are besmirched. The distinction was created in the name of the late governor-jurist who was caught with his hands in the starting gate in the race track stock scandal.

The only other previous winner came last year when former Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett was tagged for his characterization as a scrap iron consultant while on the public payroll in the memorable Sun Steel story.

SCOTT HAS FORGED into a commanding lead for this year with his sheepish confirmation of the existence of a $50,000 slush fund. The fund, which existed in Scott's early political career, apparently had fewer records that the ledger books of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee. The attorney general maintains the money was used solely for political purposes.

It should be noted such funds were not illegal. Why, Scott even recalled that the legendary bandit Paul Powell had his own cash horde.

The A. G., who has built an image of political purity with his relentless pursuit of polluters and other bad guys, has lamely suggested the fund was used for activities like buying stamps for Christmas cards mailed to precinct captains.

A cynic might suggest this explanation strains the definition of the word credibility.

BUT IT IS NOT just the existence of the fund that makes Scott the choice for the award. The fact that he kept the money in a safe deposit box rather than a checking account clinches his front-runner status.

Yep, that safety deposit box removes all doubt. Those little devices rank just below numbered Swiss bank account and holes in mattresses in casting suspicions about the use of money.

If the General had had a checking account, the existence of the fund might not have been questioned. But a safety deposit box leaves room for possible scenarios like this.

"Quick, go grab $1,000 from the slush fund for stamps for the Christmas cards," the General said to a trusted lieutenant one Sunday morn.

"BUT MY LEADER, we can't because the bank is closed with the box locked tight inside," the worshipping aide responded.

"Drats, well I guess we will just have to wait until Monday to send those cards. I hope the captains don't mind too much," said the General with an eye on the calendar.

So without hestitation Scott wins. The slush fund easily eclipses the year's only other possible nominee, Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon, the owner of several Wendy's Hamburger franchises, who deftly rushed through legislation this spring transferring the authority to regulate the franchises from his office to the attorney general.

While the early reaction is that Scott's fund problem is one that will linger for awhile, at least one reactor, Gov. James "I've Disclosed All Contributions" Thompson, says Scott has done nothing wrong.

Thompson might be right, but unless Scott has some answers to the questions raised about the fund, the public is only left to wonder if they are stuck with another Mr. Clean politician who has been playing in the mud puddle behind their backs.

HIGH ON THE MANAGEMENT ladder, Aina Holland of Arlington Heights, manager of business affairs for NBC Radio, tells young women: "Decide what you want to do; find a woman who holds that position, a role model; talk to her to see what it takes. Set your goal each step of the way."

Committed to success

She minds NBC's money

As manager of business affairs for NBC Radio, Aina Holland of Arlington Heights, a hardheaded business woman who handles corporate purse strings, is high on the managerial ladder. To her, "communications" means two well-known radio stations — WMAQ-AM and WKQX-FM.

From her private office in the Merchandise Mart in downtown Chicago, Aina handles financial reporting, budgeting, personnel, credit. She reports directly to NBC's general manager. She has been with NBC about eight months.

Poised, fashionably dressed, her tiny trace of accent merely adding distinction to her voice, Aina radiates self-confidence and the satisfaction of a woman who has conquered tremendous obstacles to reach her goal.

COULD THIS possibly be the same woman, the displaced person who came to the U.S. 26 years ago from Riga, Latvia, with three children less than 3 years old clinging to her, her husband forced to help paint the ship to pay for their passage?

Indeed it is. Those were difficult days. After staying six months in northern Michigan with the family who sponsored them, the Hollands moved to Chicago. In 1952, Aina joined the night shift of a small manufacturing company as a punch press operator, earning $1 an hour.

A succession of factory jobs followed, until one day Aina reached a turning point. "When I saw how hard I had to work to make $1.50, I decided I had to do something with my life," she said.

THE "SOMETHING" she did was to get as much education as possible — first at a commercial high school, then two years of night school at Wright Junior College, then at Burrough's Billing School, all the while continuing to do assembly line and piece work.

Through Burrough's placement service, she became a Christmas replacement at Trans-Union Corp. She stayed 10 years.

"The most significant things happened to me while I was with Trans-Union," she said. "I took my first course in accounting at Northwestern. It convinced me that finance was the only thing I should go into. I transferred to DePaul and took business administration nights, with Trans-Union paying my tuition."

Aina is grateful to those persons at Trans-Union who recognized her total commitment to success. She was the first woman in that company to have a private office. When she left, she was working in economic research as assistant to the controller.

SHE HAD SET her goals. As her children grew up, she taught them to cook and look after themselves. While she was working days and taking 15 to 17 credit hours at the same time, her husband helped with the children and shared the housework.

"I never thought of working as a job, but as a career," she said. "My career always came first, with the exception of Sundays. While the children were growing up, Sundays always belonged to them. They grew up to be very independent."

When Aina was hired as bookkeeper for Charles A. Stevens Retail, she told her interviewer she wanted eventually to be controller of the company. Seven years later, she was assistant controller. Realizing she could go no farther, she resigned. With no plans, no prospects.

"BUT I KNEW for sure I must have a management decision-making position," she said.

It was the relatively new executive search company, Women's Inc. in Hinsdale, that sent her to NBC to see Charles Warner, who had flown in from New York to interview her.

Later she asked him, "Why did you hire me? I had no broadcasting experience." He answered, "To quit a job at age 48, that's a very gutsy thing to do. That's why I hired you."

Aina savors the sweet feeling of success, as well as the additional satisfaction. "WMAQ is terrific," she said. "And WKQX-FM, the little station that was just getting started when I joined the company, is now the No. 1 rock station."

HAS SHE MADE it all the way? "Well, I would like to be vice president of a broadcasting company some day," she smiles.

In addition to her career, she finds time to serve as treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women. Actively involved with the Metropolitan YWCA, she recently chaired its "LeaderLuncheon," in which companies honored their employes. She actively supports the women's movement and is on the credit and finance committee of the Illinois Commission on the Status of Women.

"If we are to be successful in management in numbers, we must set our goals, be committed and above all, start supporting each other," she says. "It's the only way we can do it. The 'in' word for women in business is 'network.' If we don't build our own network, we will never succeed."

TO WOMEN WITH management goals, she counsels: "Don't sit around and wait because it might never happen. Set your priorities. Be ready to relocate. Don't be reluctant to make a change. Learn to take things as they come, win or lose. Find out what's going on and, most important, let someone know you want to be in management."

She added, "If, in 26 years, I could get from where I was to where I am right now — if I could do it with all those difficulties — not speaking a word of English, raising three children, going to the university — if I could do it, there is not a woman in the United States who could not do it if she made up her mind."

Eleanor Rives' series on successful Northwest suburban career women continues with profiles of two in the field of communications.

Words fascinate 'idea person'

Joy of communication

When Mary Edgren of Schaumburg mentions "communications," she is referring to what used to be called "public relations." As communications director of the Chicago Lung Assn., she is an "idea" person, always capable of generating the creative spark that ignites the minds of those working with her and insures the success of a public health program.

"The majority of my work is creative direction and campaign planning," she said. With four persons under her supervision, she is responsible for all written material concerning the association: two newsletters, the bimonthly magazine, news releases, pamphlets and brochures, as well as radio and TV public service announcements.

"WE CONVEY health messages to the public," she said. This is her first experience in public health, or indeed with any nonprofit organization. "It's like going back to college," she said. "I've learned about asthma, lung cancer, tuberculosis, air pollution — all these from the experts. If you keep your mind open, you're constantly learning."

When Mary finished high school, she became a stenographer, in line with the thinking at that time that "every woman should be a secretary or get married." She found she had a fascination for words and decided to be a copywriter. Her first actual writing experience was doing catalog copy for Butler Brothers.

"Then I decided to get more education," she said. "I went to Drake University — they waived any prerequisites. I took advertising, marketing, economics. I came back to Butler Brothers and went to Northwestern University night school for what must have been 1,001 nights! I took English, advertising, journalism, all the courses I thought would help with my career."

THOUGH SHE didn't quite get her degree, Mary did get the educational background she would need in the future — a bank of knowledge to draw upon. She already had the gift of creativity — "you don't get that out of school or out of books. It's something you're blessed with," she explained.

She began piling up experience. At International Minerals and Chemical Corp., she helped launch a new product, Ac-cent, and with a new TV personality, chef Eddie Doucette.

At Rand McNally, Mary promoted children's books and nonfiction, wrote book jacket copy, met the authors and got them on TV and radio shows.

When she decided that a hotel would be a nice place to work — "It's like a little city" — she sent letters to major hotels and, after an interview in the Empire Room, landed a job as assistant publicity director for the Palmer House.

"WHAT A riotous experience!" she exclaimed. 'I met all the entertainer-there — Sophie Tucker, Carol Channing, Liberace, Maurice Chevalier — now there's a fabulous gentleman!"

From 1959 until 1974, Mary stayed in the hotel field, advancing to director of communications at the Edgewater Beach, then the Pick-Congress and finally, jointly for Arlington Park Towers and O'Hare International Tower.

In 1974, she established her own business, Edgren Enterprises, doing public relations and marketing counseling for a number of restaurants, motor inns and places of entertainment. She became volunteer consultant for the village of Schaumburg, putting together its quarterly newsletter, "The Cracker Barrel," and writing news releases on village happenings.

..A LITTLE more than a year ago, she established her affiliation with the Chicago Lung Assn., a new and stimulating experience. "Are you successful?" I asked. "What is success?" she countered, then added, "Money doesn't make you successful. Everybody has his own idea. To me a person is a success if he is happy. My career makes me happy, my friends make me happy, my family makes me happy — so I guess I'm a success."

Mary's effervescence is infectious, her ambitions for the future exciting. "I want to write — to do my own writing," she bubbled. "I have some short stories completed, some plots outlined for a novel or two. I'd like to do a book of poetry. And I'd like to get into photography.

"My ultimate of ultimates is to travel all over, take my own pictures, write about it and support myself that way."

FROM HER FIFTH floor Schaumburg apartment, Mary Edgren looks toward Chicago's Loop, where she travels each day to her job as communications director of the Chicago Lung Assn. "I'm sorry for people who are bored with their work," she says. "I've enjoyed every job I ever had."

Senile man can make out a valid will

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

Is a will made by a senile person valid? My grandfather is 85 years old and is talking about making his will. But sometimes he is forgetful and acts very strange. For instance, he lets his dog sit at the table and eat with him, and sometimes he passes out dollar bills to strangers who see him as an easy touch. He does not keep himself clean anymore and sometimes he doesn't seem to recognize people he's known all his life. — O.G.

Dear O. G.

The fact that a person is old, weak and shows signs of forgetfulness doesn't in itself render that person mentally incompetent to make a will.

His competency to make a will would depend on the following: Is he rational enough at the time of making it to know what he owns? Does he have a kind of over-all plan? Does he know (remember) the persons to whom he is leaving his estate?

AVERAGE MENTALITY is not required. "Such a requirement," a noted judge once said, "might disqualify one half of the population."

The doctor says

Diet will help lower high blood pressure

I am a 28-year-old man, 6 feet and 180 pounds. My blood pressure is 160. My doctor told me it was a little high but I did not need to take pills.

He put me on a diet to lower it. What is your opinion? Will a diet lower blood pressure? Is my pressure too high?

Yes, your pressure is too high. However, pressure fluctuates and you need several determinations at different times when you are calm to determine if you have persistently elevated blood pressure.

Diet will help lower moderately elevated blood pressure. Your doctor is starting out right. The two things that help the most are eliminating any excess body fat you can and decreasing or eliminating salt intake.

At your age your pressure should not be more than 135 and in young men in good physical condition it often is much lower. Usually the lower it is — within the normal range — the less chance you have of developing heart or vascular disease in later life.

I often have problems with a corn on my foot. I would like to know what causes it to grow, how to prevent it if possible and how to get rid of it in a better way. I use corn remover medicine from the local drug store but still it grows.

Corns are simply thickened hard skin, somewhat like a callous, with a cone-shaped core that presses on living tissues and causes pain. The corn litelf is dead skin tissue.

You'll understand what to do about corns better if you appreciate they are caused by friction or continued pressure. The most common cause of the friction is a poorly fitting shoe or even stockings that allow pressure on the area. You'll never be rid of them until you remove the source of pressure any more than you will be rid of a callus on the palm of your hand if you continue to do the work that caused it in the first place.

Usually the problem is with shoes that are too tight and do not allow enough toe room. A shoe with a pointed toe is a major factor. Get some shoes that you can wiggle your toes in.

You can soak your feet in warm water, which softens the corn and trim the surface with a razor blade. The superficial hard tissue also can be removed with a pumice stone.

Those drugstore preparations usually contain salicylic acid that softens the corn. They may help relieve pressure, but there is no way they can compensate for poorly fitting shoes that don't provide enough toe room.

I might mention that diabetics should be particularly careful with their feet. So should anyone who has poor circulation to the feet for any reason. An infection can be dangerous and has even resulted in amputation in such cases.

Apple Nut Crisp is tasty autumn treat

The appetizing aromas wafting through the house when this Apple Nut crisp is baking summon up sweet memories of childhood goodies, chill autumn nights outside and a warm kitchen inside. The dish is easily prepared, and sure to please. Pare, core and slice thinly four firm, tart, cooking apples. Arrange them in a well-greased shallow baking dish. In a mixing bowl stir together two-thirds cup packed brown sugar, three-quarters cup quick-cooking oatmeal, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half cup sifted flour and one-third cup coarsely chopped pecans. Pour one-half cup melted butter into dry ingredients, and blend until crumbly. Spread crumb mixture over apples, and bake at 350 for 45 minutes, or until crust is golden brown and apples are soft. Serve warm with light cream, vanilla ice cream or cheddar cheese on the side. Makes six servings.

The doctor says

Diet will help lower high blood pressure

I am a 28-year-old man, 6 feet and 180 pounds. My blood pressure is 160. My doctor told me it was a little high but I did not need to take pills.

He put me on a diet to lower it. What is your opinion? Will a diet lower blood pressure? Is my pressure too high?

Yes, your pressure is too high. However, pressure fluctuates and you need several determinations at different times when you are calm to determine if you have persistently elevated blood pressure.

Diet will help lower moderately elevated blood pressure. Your doctor is starting out right. The two things that help the most are eliminating any excess body fat you can and decreasing or eliminating salt intake.

At your age your pressure should not be more than 135 and in young men in good physical condition it often is much lower. Usually the lower it is — within the normal range — the less chance you have of developing heart or vascular disease in later life.

I often have problems with a corn on my foot. I would like to know what causes it to grow, how to prevent it if possible and how to get rid of it in a better way. I use corn remover medicine from the local drug store but still it grows.

Corns are simply thickened hard skin, somewhat like a callous, with a cone-shaped core that presses on living tissues and causes pain. The corn litelf is dead skin tissue.

You'll understand what to do about corns better if you appreciate they are caused by friction or continued pressure. The most common cause of the friction is a poorly fitting shoe or even stockings that allow pressure on the area. You'll never be rid of them until you remove the source of pressure any more than you will be rid of a callus on the palm of your hand if you continue to do the work that caused it in the first place.

Usually the problem is with shoes that are too tight and do not allow enough toe room. A shoe with a pointed toe is a major factor. Get some shoes that you can wiggle your toes in.

You can soak your feet in warm water, which softens the corn and trim the surface with a razor blade. The superficial hard tissue also can be removed with a pumice stone.

Those drugstore preparations usually contain salicylic acid that softens the corn. They may help relieve pressure, but there is no way they can compensate for poorly fitting shoes that don't provide enough toe room.

I might mention that diabetics should be particularly careful with their feet. So should anyone who has poor circulation to the feet for any reason. An infection can be dangerous and has even resulted in amputation in such cases.

Apple Nut Crisp is tasty autumn treat

The appetizing aromas wafting through the house when this Apple Nut crisp is baking summon up sweet memories of childhood goodies, chill autumn nights outside and a warm kitchen inside. The dish is easily prepared, and sure to please. Pare, core and slice thinly four firm, tart, cooking apples. Arrange them in a well-greased shallow baking dish. In a mixing bowl stir together two-thirds cup packed brown sugar, three-quarters cup quick-cooking oatmeal, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half cup sifted flour and one-third cup coarsely chopped pecans. Pour one-half cup melted butter into dry ingredients, and blend until crumbly. Spread crumb mixture over apples, and bake at 350 for 45 minutes, or until crust is golden brown and apples are soft. Serve warm with light cream, vanilla ice cream or cheddar cheese on the side. Makes six servings.

Alan E. Kaminski Anne Marie Nieland—

While Anne Marie Nieland and Alan E. Kaminski were working as auditors for Blue Cross in Florida a romance started, which culminated in their marriage Sept. 4 in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights.

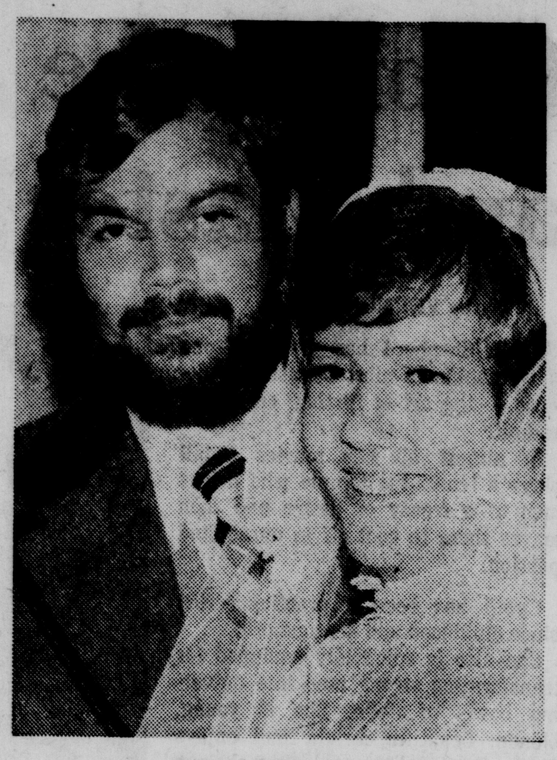
Anne Marie is the daughter of the Robert Nielands of Arlington Heights and Alan the son of the Edmund Kaminskis of Chicago. They are now making their home in Los Angeles where Alan is associated with Blue Cross of Southern California and Anne Marie with National Medical Enterprises in Santa Monica.

She graduated from Prospect High School and Loyola University; Alan from Lewis University, Lockport.

THE BRIDE CHOSE an ivory gown accented with Venise lace and pearl beading and a matching headpiece with flowing veil. Her bouquet was of white and yellow roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Vicki Thornberg, Minneapolis, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Cindy Lemke, the bride's cousin from Minneapolis; Joanne Henrikson, Appleton, Wis.; and Linda Murvine, the groom's sister from Brookfield.

Robert Paplaski, Chicago, served as Alan's best man. His groomsmen were Nick Tokarski, Steve Peca and Wally Dano, all of Chicago. Ushers were the bride's cousin, Kevin Sass of Waseca, Minn. and the groom's brother-in-law, Douglas Murvine, Brookfield.



Mr. and Mrs. Alan E. Kaminski

A dinner reception at Old Orchard Country Club followed the double-ring ceremony, and the newlyweds honeymooned for two weeks in Hawaii.

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

All summer long our new next door neighbor, a widow, was out in the yard gardening and sunning herself. She seemed friendly and lonely so my husband and I have been very nice to her . . especially my husband, who spent quite a bit of time cutting her grass and repairing things in her garage. I must say this woman is very attractive as revealed by the scanty shorts and halter she wore all summer. But I'd hate to think what would happen if she sneeezd! She was the talk of the neighborhood.

NOW WITH THE change of weather, she has been asking my husband to come over and help her inside her house. I'm not a jealous woman, but I am uneasy about the situation. — Call me Cautious.

Dear Cautious,

I see your point. How long can you dangle a mouse in front of a cat? As an ounce of prevention, I suggest you accompany your husband every time your neighbor invites him over. Then set your own trap. Find her an eligible man who'll appreciate her attributes with an easy conscience.

Networks offer intelligent kids shows

All the while that television has been blamed for gratuitous violence in prime-time programming, for nonsensical action in cartoons and misleading sugar-coated advertising on Saturday mornings, ABC quietly has been instituting a new form and pace for children's programming.

It is called "Afterschool Specials" and it began six seasons ago when some thoughtful, daring persons at ABC decided they could do one better for youngsters.

They decided a perfect time slot for their experiment would be after school, during the hours when television most often serves as a pre-dinner babysitter and offers little more than abbreviated movies and soap operas, game shows and talk shows carried over from daytime programming.

THE HOUR-LONG, once-a-month specials are about and star children who experience emotions of death, divorce, discouragement and friendship.

While headlines were declaring that television was abandoning its responsibility to children, ABC quietly gathered awards for its after-school efforts and sparked a whole new thought on children's programming.

NBC picked up on the idea a few seasons ago, creating its own momthly after-school drama, "Special Treat," and this season, CBS premieres its version of monthly late afternoon theatrics for young people called "The Winners."

The NBC "Special Treat" series, which premiered Tuesday afternoon, dramatized a student strike in a grade school prompted by an inaccurate story presented on the school's closed circuit television. An aspiring student newscaster passes along an unsubstantiated story to his classmates about a student who ran away because an English teacher flunked him, making him ineligible to play team basketball.

ONLY AFTER the student body and the runaway boy's parents demand the English teacher's resignation, does the true story come out. The teacher is vindicated, although his reputation is irrevocably tarnished, and the student reporter and his friends learn a lesson about fanning unconfirmed gossip.

ABC's "Afterschool Special," which airs today at 4:30 p.m. on Channel 7, is the story, "Hewitt's Just Different," which deals with mental retardation.

Hewitt, a retarded teen-ager with a passion for baseball, helps his 12-year-old neighbor win a spot on the baseball team with coaching tips on how to pitch a knuckleball. Once Hewitt's friend, Willie, makes the team he becomes cold and impersonal when the other boys on the team taunt him for befriending a retarded youth.

When Willie has a sudden mishap, Hewitt's unfaltering loyalty and compassion teaches all members of the team a lesson.

In the process of what would appear to be a simple, one-hour drama, children are taught how to cope with and approach the problem of mental retardation with sensitivity and openness.

IN CBS' "The Winners" series, which premieres Thursday at 4 p.m. on Channel 2, 17-year-old Debbie Phillips stars in her own real-life story of how she overcame a birth defect (one of her legs is half as long as the other) to become a champion equestrian and all-around athlete.

The half-hour series will focus on the actual experiences and accomplishments of youths throughout the country.

Each of the three networks is making some positive contribution to what traditionally has been an undernourished arm of television programming. They are offering youngsters an alternative to the "chewing gum for the eyes," fare to which they are so often limited.

PERRY LANG STARS IN "HEWITT'S JUST DIFFERENT"

Along with such other noteworthy programming as special Saturday afternoon children's films and festivals on CBS, Saturday short stories on ABC, the locally produced "Bubble Gum Digest" of news for children on NBC's Channel 5, and public broadcasting's educational series and "Sesame Street," children's programming finally is coming into its own.

TELEVISION FOR KIDS is becoming more than funny, animated creatures chasing each other in a fairyland.

It has become a Muppet teaching mathematics, a youngster delivering a synopsis of the week's news, a renowned musician demonstrating the basics of Brahams and constructive drama offering simple, heart-felt lessons about life without preaching.

While the momentum for first-rate children's programming is picking up, let's hope networks and parents will continue to support the movement to keep it on track.

Richard S. Salant, president of CBS news, maintains that the changes were not instigated by the news show's poor ratings against NBC's "Today" show and ABC's "Good Morning, America."

• Programming you can look forward to includes a Dec. 21 look at "The Presidency of Gerald R. Ford" with one of NBC's newest political employes, Ford himself, talking about his administration. Also coming up is a special on the world-wide tour of Paul McCartney and Wings on ABC in January, Helen Hayes and Fred Astair in the love story of an older couple called "A Family Upside Down," and a six-hour CBS mini-series of the Dasheill Hammett mystery, "The Dain Curse."

Cybill—the artful dodger and master of flirtation

by VERNON SCOTT

Cybill Shepherd has mastered one of womankind's most devastating devices — the art of flirting, on screen and off.

In almost all her movies Cybill plays a tease, the female who drives men to a frenzy of desire and then leaves them to cool off in unrequited passion.

Cybill has been a practicing flirt since childhood and is proud of it.

She also is splendidly equipped for transforming strong men into quivering bowls of Jello. She is young, blonde, beautiful, bright and enjoys displaying her legs and other charms with devilishly naive abandon.

JUST THE OTHER day Cybill gamboled on the lawn of her Bel Air mansion posing for photographs. She wore only a set of one-piece, see-through cotton underwear, the briefest of denim cutoffs and socks. The costume constituted outrageous flirtation by itself.

"I look like a good girl," she said, "but I've never played the part in a movie. I guess it would be boring.

"I play flirtatious girls. Flirtatious and naughty. You could say I am wicked vanilla. My roles generally play against my appearance.

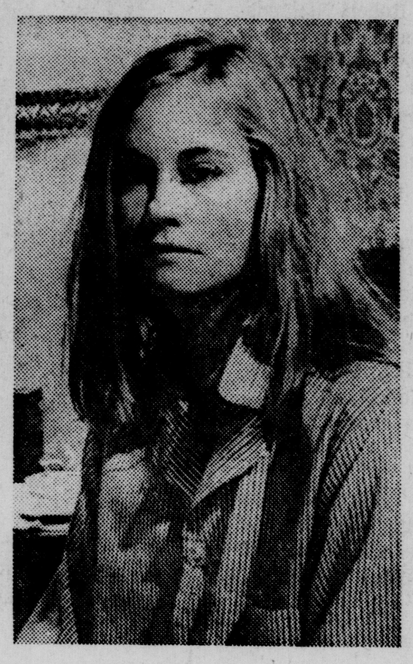
"Wicked vanilla is being sweet and bad at the same time. But I have to be funny or vulnerable when I'm wicked or else it doesn't work. I've turned down a lot of parts where I'd be wicked and without any redeeming qualities."

In her first major movie, "The Last Picture Show," Cybill played a tantalizing high school girl who left the hero in a cold frustrated flummox.

SHE STUCK TO her appealing ways in "The Heartbreak Kid," "At Long Last Love" and "Taxi Driver."

Cybill turns her teasing and elusive charms on Michael Caine in her newest movie, "Silver Bears," which she recently completed in England and Switzerland.

But it was in "Daisy Miller" that Cybill reached the height of her artful sex dodging. Daisy was a doozy when it came to turning guys on.



CYBILL SHEPHERD

"In 'The Heart Break Kid' I was the ultimate WASP flirt," Cybill said, lowering her eyes in a demure flirt. "But 'Daisy Miller' had a line I'll never forget. She asks, 'Did you ever know a nice girl who didn't flirt?"

"I'm all for girls flirting as much a they can. Some guys get hostile about it. But I think flirting is a way of finding out how well you want to know a man or if you want to get to know him better.

"I"m very much a feminist and in favor of the movement. I don't see flirting as anti women's lib. Some women object because they say it's a means of leading men on.

"A lot of men feel victimized when they try to follow up on a flirtation and discover the girl has nothing more in mind than just having fun. They are the guys who allow themselves to be taken advantage of. They want to be victims."

Cybill clearly has given the matter some thought. She reckoned that flirting might be defined as a conscious effort to attract favorable attention from the opposite sex.

There are obviously sexual overtones in the practice, but no promises.

"Flirting is an invitation to an invitation," she said, laughing. "Some men mistake it for an outright invitation.

"IN ONE WAY or another all women flirt. And I guess you could consider it manipulative. If a girl knows how to flirt she can usually get what she wants, or close to it.

"But I make sure my flirting doesn't lead anywhere I don't want to go."

Cybill, born and reared in Tennessee, is certain she was blessed with a head start in the complicated practice of flirting.

She said both men and women have elevated flirtation to a polished art in Dixie. Northerners and westerners, as she sees them, are more selfconscious about it.

"I'm good at flirting because I'm a Southerner," she said. "Mother was a terrific flirt and a great beauty. Europeans are good flirts, especially the English who have a sense of humor about it."

CYBILL HAS LIVED with director Peter Bogdanovich for several years. She flirts with him and she flirts with friends and strangers as well.

"Very definitely a girl should flirt with other guys when she's out with her date or her husband," Cybill said. "It keeps your man more interesting and more interested in you."

In a flash of female chauvinism, she said it was ungallant for a man to flirt when he was with his wife or girlfriend.

"I like the double standard in that case," she said. "It's all right for me to flirt in front of my guy, but it's wrong for him to flirt when he's with me.

"I don't mind if he does it on his own time, but I don't want to know about it. What the heck, flirting is a good way to pass the time, although it is more dangerous than reading." (UPI)

"I'm all for girls flirting as much a they can. Some guys get hostile about it. But I think flirting is a way of finding out how well you want to know a man or if you want to get to know him better.

"I'm very much a feminist and in favor of the movement. I don't see flirting as anti women's lib. Some women object because they say it's a means of leading men on.

"A lot of men feel victimized when they try to follow up on a flirtation and discover the girl has nothing more in mind than just having fun. They are the guys who allow themselves to be taken advantage of. They want to be victims."

Cybill clearly has given the matter some thought. She reckoned that flirting might be defined as a conscious effort to attract favorable attention from the opposite sex.

There are obviously sexual overtones in the practice, but no promises.

"Flirting is an invitation to an invitation," she said, laughing. "Some men mistake it for an outright invitation.

"IN ONE WAY or another all women flirt. And I guess you could consider it manipulative. If a girl knows how to flirt she can usually get what she wants, or close to it.

"But I make sure my flirting doesn't lead anywhere I don't want to go."

Cybill, born and reared in Tennessee, is certain she was blessed with a head start in the complicated practice of flirting.

She said both men and women have elevated flirtation to a polished art in Dixie. Northerners and westerners, as she sees them, are more selfconscious about it.

"I'm good at flirting because I'm a Southerner," she said. "Mother was a terrific flirt and a great beauty. Europeans are good flirts, especially the English who have a sense of humor about it."

CYBILL HAS LIVED with director Peter Bogdanovich for several years. She flirts with him and she flirts with friends and strangers as well.

"Very definitely a girl should flirt with other guys when she's out with her date or her husband," Cybill said. "It keeps your man more interesting and more interested in you."

In a flash of female chauvinism, she said it was ungallant for a man to flirt when he was with his wife or girlfriend.

"I like the double standard in that case," she said. "It's all right for me to flirt in front of my guy, but it's wrong for him to flirt when he's with me.

"I don't mind if he does it on his own time, but I don't want to know about it. What the heck, flirting is a good way to pass the time, although it is more dangerous than reading." (UPI)

Steel industry is steering toward trend for light autos

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The trend toward smaller, lighter cars should not hurt the American steel industry because steel workers say auto production will increase and cars of the future will be built primarily of "high-strength, low-alloy" steel.

Much of the steel produced in America goes into autos and with the federal government pushing for lighter and more fuel-efficient cars, steelmakers are placing their hopes on HSLA steel that, pound for pound, is stronger than regular carbon steel.

"By the 1980s, you're going to find that practically everything made of steel in a car will be replaced by HSLA steel," said Stan Lore, coordinator of high strength steels for United States Steel Corp.

"We're anticipating a near tripling in HSLA steels in cars between now and 1980 or 1981, representing an increase of up to 300-350 pounds per car," added John Thornton, U.S. Steel's transportation industries coordinator in Detroit.

TECHNOLOGICAL ADVANTAGES and safety factors, the steelmakers say, will enable them to compete successfully with HSLA steel against materials such as aluminum and plastic.

Patrick J. Coletta, vice president of GM's manufacturing staff, said HSLA steel's "manufacturing technology is similar to that of conventional steels and this means existing production facilities end machinery can be used with very little modification.

"HSLA steel competes mainly with structures where strength must be combined with weight-saving," he said.

"We're presently testing wheels made from this material. They reduce total car weight significantly and the results are encouraging."..

Discussing safety. Thornton said "HSLA steel provides better a way of protecting the individual." Regular steel has a 30,000 pounds per square inch yield point; HSLA steel, 50,000-100,000 pounds per square inch; aluminum, 10,000-15,000 pounds per square inch; and reinforced plastics, 5,000-20,000 pounds per square inch, he said.

NEVERTHELESS, plastic, aluminum and fiberglass now are offering stiff competition to steel.

In 1965, the average car contained 39 pounds of plastic. That climbed to 185 pounds in today's average car and should increase to between 350 and 500 pounds by 1985, Coletta said.

Lore and Thornton said a main reason more HSLA steel is not being used now is that the auto industry is not yet designing up to HSLA steel's full capacity because of inexperience.

"The auto idnustry has only just begun to use HSLA steels," Thornton said.

Industry and financial analysts look for the auto industry to have its best year ever in 1977 with the sale of almost 15 million cars and trucks, including imports.

Your home could be overassessed

First of two parts

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — If property taxes are killing you, there may be a way to reduce the bill. Some homeowners are overtaxed in relation to their neighbors, which is unfair. Others are victims of assessment error — their homes are listed at the tax offices as being larger or more valuable than they really are. If you can show that either of these situations applies to you, you have a good shot at getting your assessment lowered.

Only a small fraction of homeowners ever challenge their assessments. But it appears that of those that do, a high percentage comes out winners.

Richard Almy, director of research and technical services for the International Assn. of Assessing Officers, says that property-tax objections are most often brought by the upper-middle classes. "Those people are savvy about the tax system and quick to spot an assessment that may be unfair," he says. "But the lower and middle classes aren't as aware." Hence, they're more likely to be overtaxed.

Every city and town has a system for appealing property taxes. When you get a new assessment, the notice should state the date and time when appeals will be heard. Or, call the village hall and ask. Normally, appeals are heard only once a year, so if you miss the date you'll have a 12-month wait.

Many appeals boards meet at night, so you don't have to lose time from work. No lawyer is necessary. You simply go before a board of your fellow citizens and state your case. All boards are different — some have to be triple-convinced, others give token tax-cuts to most of the people who come before them But in general, the process is fair.

Should the decision go against you, you can appeal further. If the case is strong and the potential tax savings large, you may want to hire a lawyer and go to court. Sometimes an entire neighborhood is overassessed in relation to similar neighborhoods, in which case the lawyer's fee could be split among a group of homeowners.

There are four common grounds for appealing an assessment:

- The assessor made a mistake — either in his description of your property or in the market value he assigned it.
- A new addition to your home was assessed at cost rather than on the basis of its contribution to your home's value. For example, if you paid $8,000 for a new room but it added only $5,000 to current market value, the basis of your assessment should be raised only $5,000.
- Pepole with similar homes in the same neighborhood pay lower taxes than you do. Information on other people's assessment is available in your town office and open to the public.
- Your assessment represents a highter percentage of market value than the assessments of other houses in town.

You might also ask the assessor's office whether you're entitled to any special tax breaks under the law. These are sometimes granted to veterans, older people and low-income people.

The best you can do with assessments, however, is to share the tax burden fairly. Says Almy, "The only way to prevent general increases in tax levies is to pay closer attention to how school boards, town government and county commissioners spend your money."

Honda sets plans for Columbus plant

Honda Motor Co., Japan's fifth largest car maker, made formal announcement Wednesday of plans for a U.S. motorcycle and automobile assembly plant near Columbus, Ohio. Honda will be the first Japanese automobile manufacturer to produce vehicles in the United States. Its plans for a U.S. assembly plant were prematurely leaked to the Japanese press Sept. 27. At that time Honda spokesmen said the firm still was negotiating final details with Ohio state officials.

The initial investment will be $25 million. The plant will initially manufacure large motorcycles and Honda hopes to begin production at a rate of 60,000 a year sometime in 1979. Automobile production is slated to begin two to four years later. Honda built 560,075 cars in 1976. Its small Civic model is popular in Japan and abroad because of its low gas consumption.

Adams backs airline deregulation

Transportation Sec. Brock Adams Tuesday reemphasized administration support for airline deregulation, saying the carriers must be allowed pricing flexibility and opportunity to enter new market areas. "Nothing I have read has shaken my belief one iota that change is needed and the time is now," Adams told a House Public Works subcommittee. Officials of two major airlines — Delta and United — took opposing stands on the pending measure, and spokesmen for several industry-related unions opposed passage. Adams said only 10 to 15 per cent of the population can use airlines because of prices.

Consumers concerned by outlook

American consumers are expeessing a growing concern over prospects for improved business conditions, University of Michigan economists reported Tuesday. A survey of the university's Institute for Social Research detected the third straight quarterly decline in consumer confidence this year and attributed the latest 1-5-point dip to a "an increasing awareness of the slow and uneven pace of economic growth." University economists said consumers hold a "less favorable opinion of business prospects, especially the longer-term outlook." They cited heightened worries over employment opportunities and continued high inflation and a flattening of personal income growth. Buying conditions again were rated good for household durables and were projected to remain so through the Christmas season, but a decline in the market for houses and cars was reported.

Spending to rise, Fed chief says

Business spending will increase enough in 1978 to sustain a "long-lived" economic recovery, Federal Reserve Governor Henry Wallich said Tuesday. "But it will take good sense on the part of business and willingness on the part of government to encourage business capital spending in order to stay on that track," Wallich said. Wallich expressed his views in remarks prepared for the annual meeting of the National Assn. of Business Economists in Philadelphia.

Dow plunges 7.88 points to surpass 22–month low

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average plunged to a 22-month low Tuesday in blue-chip selling sparked by speculation the Federal Reserve Board would reveal money supply surge later this week. Trading was slow.

The Dow average, which slipped 0.09 point Monday, dropped 7.88 points to 832.38, the lowest level since it closed at 824.15 Dec. 9, 1975. The Dow's previous 1977 low was 834.72 set Sept. 28. It is now off 172.27 points for the year.

Analysts said in addition to money-supply worries, investors were disturbed by speculation that banks soon would raise their prime lending rate to 7¾ per cent, following last week's quarter-point jump to 7½ per cent.

As a result, the New York Stock Exchange index fell 0.41 to 52.09 and the average price of a share dropped 23 cents.

Declines topped advances, 951 to 440, among the 1,846 issues crossing the composite tape at 4 p.m. EDT.

Big board volume totaled 17,870,000 shares, up from the 10,580,000 traded Monday, the slowest session since Jan. 2, 1976.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. EDT totaled 19,220,620 shares, compared with 11,338,848 Monday, which was the Columbus Day holiday.

Prices were lower in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter issues.

Midwest Economic Conference today

The economic future of the Midwest will be one of the topics addressed in the two-day Midwest Economic Growth Conference that begins today in Chicago.

Noted members of the business and academic communities will discuss how the Midwest compares to other areas of the country economically, problems being faced by large and medium size cities here and the question of energy availability for industrial growth.

Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors, will begin the conference with a luncheon speech at noon.

Dow plunges 7.88 points to surpass 22–month low

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average plunged to a 22-month low Tuesday in blue-chip selling sparked by speculation the Federal Reserve Board would reveal money supply surge later this week. Trading was slow.

The Dow average, which slipped 0.09 point Monday, dropped 7.88 points to 832.38, the lowest level since it closed at 824.15 Dec. 9, 1975. The Dow's previous 1977 low was 834.72 set Sept. 28. It is now off 172.27 points for the year.

Analysts said in addition to money-supply worries, investors were disturbed by speculation that banks soon would raise their prime lending rate to 7¾ per cent, following last week's quarter-point jump to 7½ per cent.

As a result, the New York Stock Exchange index fell 0.41 to 52.09 and the average price of a share dropped 23 cents.

Declines topped advances, 951 to 440, among the 1,846 issues crossing the composite tape at 4 p.m. EDT.

Big board volume totaled 17,870,000 shares, up from the 10,580,000 traded Monday, the slowest session since Jan. 2, 1976.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. EDT totaled 19,220,620 shares, compared with 11,338,848 Monday, which was the Columbus Day holiday.

Prices were lower in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter issues.

7-spade bid saves points

The Texas team of Curtis Smith, Dan Morse, Eddie Wold, Bob Hamman and Bobby Wolff won the grand national team championship by beating the Washington team by the smallest possible margin (1 IMP) in the finals. Here is one of the most remarkable hands played early in the match.

It is remarkable in that the bidding at both tables was identical. In each instance, East's jump to four spades put considerable pressure on South and each South solved his problem by bidding five notrump.

That bid is the old Culbertson grand slam force asking North to bid seven with two of the three top trump honors. A very dangerous bid here since if North held just six diamonds the grand slam would not make.

Actually, it would have made, but neither South got a chance to play it. Both East players elected to believe their opponents and saved at seven spades, down five doubled for minus 1400 points. That is 810 points less than the score for seven diamonds bid and made.

Hydroponics grows plants without soil

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Delayna Sturgis, 13, of Springfield, Ore., for her question:

PLEASE EXPLAIN HYDROPONICS.

Hydroponics is the science of growing crops without soil. Plants are grown in special tanks which are filled with sand, gravel or water. Nutrients in a special form, usually supplied to the plant through the soil, then are added to the water or sand.

Hydroponics also is called soilless agriculture, acquiculture, nutriculture and chemical culture. It first was tried in the mid-1800s and has been used only on a rather limited basis since. Commercial growers, for the most part, find hydroponics too limiting for their needs.

There are two types of hydroponics: water culture and gravel culture.

Using the water culture type of hydroponics, plants actually are suspended with their roots in tanks of water. Tanks are made of either plastic or metal, not wood.

Into the water goes a special brew of nutrients. A good mixture will include about 5 pounds 13 ounces of potassium mitrate, 1 pound of ammonium sulfate, 4½ pounds of magnesium sulfate, 2½ pounds of monocalcium phosphate and 5 pounds of calcium sulfate.

This amount of nutrients will be added to 1,000 gallons of water. Once each month 1 ounce of manganous sulfate and about 5 drops of concentrated sulfuric acid will be added, and once a week 4 ounces of ferrous sulfate in 1 gallon of water will be put into the tank.

Air must regularly be pumped into the water culture hydroponics tank since the new roots will require lots of oxygen.

It is easier to grow plants using the gravel culture. A nutrient solution similar to that used in water culture is pumped through sand or gravel. Material not taken up by the roots drains back into a supply tank. Another method runs tiny tubes directly to each plant. The nutrient solution is then slowly dripped and each plant receives a more direct feeding.

Plants grown without soil must receive a proper amount of artificial or natural light.

Scientists have not proven that hydroponics produce better crops than those grown in the soil. However, they can effectively study the needs of the plants. With hydroponics it is easy to vary the amount of nutrients the plants are receiving, and then scientists are able to determine the best ratio needed for proper growth.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Jeffrey Scott Slegers, 9, of Mundelein, Ill., for his question:

WHAT IS STYROFOAM?

Styrofoam is a trade name for a type of plastic polystyrene foam made by the Dow Chemical Co.

Polystyrene foam is a lightweight plastic material that contains millions of tiny air bubbles. The material, in addition to being very light, is a poor conductor of heat. It doesn't absorb water and cannot be damaged by either bacteria or molds.

Styrofoam products are useful in both industrial and household locations. Picnic ice chests, disposable drinking cups and toys are just a few of the items made from the material. It's also used for protective packaging and insulating buildings and trucks.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Methanol fuel gets '82 target

A new sysem designed to convert low-quality, high polluting coal, common in Illinois, into an environmentally clean liquid fuel, methanol, may get its first test in the far reaches of North Dakota.

The awesome project still is in its infancy, on the drawing boards of a Cincinnati design engineering firm.

But if research, development and construction go according to plan, the North Dakota facility will begin producing methanol by 1982.

THE COAL-TO-methanol conversion process is being hailed by its developers as potentially one of the most important alternative energy sources for the near future.

Wentworth Bros. Inc., the Cincinnati engineering group that created the conversion process, describes methanol as "a colorless liquid with a faint odor of alcohol."

Methanol has long been known as "wood alcohol," but it also can be made from petroleum or coal.

The proposed methanol plant "would produce 25 tons of the fuel per day, or about 7.5 million gallons," said Val Habjan, an official of Wentworth Bros. The amount of actual energy derived from 25 tons of methanol is equal to 500 million cubic feet of pipeline natural gas, he said.

"THAT WOULD BE enough fuel to provide electrical energy to two million homes a day for 20-plus years," Habjan estimated. The methanol would fuel certain types of turbine-powered generating units.

Raw material for methanol production is lignite, a low-quality, high-polluting coal when burned in its natural state. Lignite is the reason the proposed conversion plant site is in North Dakota. Deposits of the soft coal are "vast" in North Dakota, Habjan said.

As currently envisioned, the tons of methanol produced at the upper Midwest plant would be carried by pipeline to Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn., where it would be loaded on tankers and barges for distribution to industrial complexes on the Great Lakes and along the Mississippi River.

BEST FOOT FORWARD "Exclusively Adidas"

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Find out more about a whole new generation in copiers, call or write us today.

Methanol fuel gets '82 target

A new sysem designed to convert low-quality, high polluting coal, common in Illinois, into an environmentally clean liquid fuel, methanol, may get its first test in the far reaches of North Dakota.

The awesome project still is in its infancy, on the drawing boards of a Cincinnati design engineering firm.

But if research, development and construction go according to plan, the North Dakota facility will begin producing methanol by 1982.

THE COAL-TO-methanol conversion process is being hailed by its developers as potentially one of the most important alternative energy sources for the near future.

Wentworth Bros. Inc., the Cincinnati engineering group that created the conversion process, describes methanol as "a colorless liquid with a faint odor of alcohol."

Methanol has long been known as "wood alcohol," but it also can be made from petroleum or coal.

The proposed methanol plant "would produce 25 tons of the fuel per day, or about 7.5 million gallons," said Val Habjan, an official of Wentworth Bros. The amount of actual energy derived from 25 tons of methanol is equal to 500 million cubic feet of pipeline natural gas, he said.

"THAT WOULD BE enough fuel to provide electrical energy to two million homes a day for 20-plus years," Habjan estimated. The methanol would fuel certain types of turbine-powered generating units.

Raw material for methanol production is lignite, a low-quality, high-polluting coal when burned in its natural state. Lignite is the reason the proposed conversion plant site is in North Dakota. Deposits of the soft coal are "vast" in North Dakota, Habjan said.

As currently envisioned, the tons of methanol produced at the upper Midwest plant would be carried by pipeline to Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn., where it would be loaded on tankers and barges for distribution to industrial complexes on the Great Lakes and along the Mississippi River.

'Andersonville' author, MacKinlay Kantor, dies

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Novelist MacKinlay Kantor, who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1956 for "Andersonville," a portrait of the infamous Confederate prison camp, died Tuesday in a nursing home. He was 73.

Details of his death were not immediately available.

Kantor was born Feb. 4, 1904, in Webster City, Iowa, and spent most of his youth and childhood there. His mother accepted an offer to edit a daily newspaper in Webster City in the early 1920s and it was then he got his start in writing.

HE WENT TO Chicago in 1925 and worked at a variety of jobs while writing material for a column in the Chicago Tribune.

It was then he met the woman who was to be the only woman in his life, Irene Layne, a young commercial artist. One of his most recent works was "I Love You, Irene," a biographical and factual account of his love and life with his wife. It was published in 1972.

He and his young wife left Chicago and he went to work on the Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Republican, and when that newspaper was sold suddenly in 1927, Kantor lost the last regular job he ever had.

His first published novel was "Diversey," written in 1927 when he was back at Webster City, but it was not until 1934 with his novel "Long Remember" that he received any particular financial or critical success.

KANTOR moved to Sarasota, Fla., from Westfield. N.H., in January of 1936, because his two children suffered from constant colds.

An expert at playing the fife, Kantor was an honorary member of the National Assn. of Civil War Musicians.

He became a war correspondent during World War II and was considered an expert in the strategy and tactics of high altitude bombing. He wrote a detailed report at the request of the late Gen. M.M. Arnold on the coordination of aerial activities in the European Theater and after World War II returned to the Air Force at frequent intervals to keep pace with developments.

Early in the Korean war, Kantor flew many missions with the 92nd Bombardment Wing as a technical consultant.

His novel "Glory for Me," was the original story from which the award-winning movie "The Best Years of Our Lives," was made.

HE SPENT two years working with the New York Police Dept. in 1948 and 1949 learning the life and following the routine of a patrolman in that city's 23rd precinct. These experiences provided the background for his novel "Signal Thirty-Two."

Other Kantor works included Gentle Annie, (1942), Happy Land (1943), The Romance of Rosy Ridge (1937), The Noise of Their Wings (1938), Cuba Libra (1940), Midnight Lace (1948), and God and My Country, 1954.

Early in the Korean war, Kantor flew many missions with the 92nd Bombardment Wing as a technical consultant.

His novel "Glory for Me," was the original story from which the award-winning movie "The Best Years of Our Lives," was made.

HE SPENT two years working with the New York Police Dept. in 1948 and 1949 learning the life and following the routine of a patrolman in that city's 23rd precinct. These experiences provided the background for his novel "Signal Thirty-Two."

Other Kantor works included Gentle Annie, (1942), Happy Land (1943), The Romance of Rosy Ridge (1937), The Noise of Their Wings (1938), Cuba Libra (1940), Midnight Lace (1943), and God and My Country, 1954.

N.Y. takes 1st game on 12th-inning single

by FRED McMANE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Randolph, a low wattage in his club's power-packed lineup, homered in the sixth inning then doubled and scored the winning run on Paul Blair's 12th-inning single Tuesday night to give the New York Yankees a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the first game of the World Series.

The Yankees mounted their winning rally against reliever Rick Rhoden, the fifth Dodgers' pitcher, when Randolph led off the 12th with a double into the right field corner. Rhoden then issued an intentional walk to Thurman Munson and Blair, a late-inning replacement for Reggie Jackson in right field, drilled a 2-2 pitch for a single to left after failing to sacrifice twice.

Sparky Lyle, the Yankees' answer to the Red Cross, saved the victory with 3-2/3 scoreless innings to gain credit for his third straight post-season triumph. Lyle also won the last two American League playoff games against Kansas City and now has a string of 10-1/3 scoreless innings in post-season competition.

THE YANKEES, an underdog, now need three more victories in the best-of-seven series to win their first championship since 1962. The second game of the series will be played at Yankee Stadium tonight with the teams then switching to Los Angeles for the next three games beginning Friday night.

The Dodgers, who had fallen behind 3-2 on Munson's run-scoring double in the eighth inning, bounced back to tie the score in the ninth when southpaw Don Gullett finally ran out of gas after a strong effort.

Held to only four hits by Gullett over the first eight innings, Dusty Baker led off the ninth with a single and then came the play that almost cost the Yankees the game.

WITH PINCH hitter Manny Mota batting, Baker was picked off first base by Munson but eluded first baseman Chris Chambliss' tag and dived back safely to the base. Gullett retired Mota on a soft fly to right but walked Steve Yeager on four pitches and was replaced by relief ace Lyle, who was greeted by pinch-hitter Lee Lacy's single that scored Baker.

For six innings, Gullett and Don Sutton locked up in a classic pitching duel and if it hadn't been for Randolph, Sutton might have prevailed.

Randolph led off the sixth inning with a solo homer to give the Yankees a 2-2 tie.

THE DODGERS took advantage of Gullett's wildness to push across two runs in the first. Dave Lopes led off with a walk, and Russell followed with a triple to left-center. After Reggie Smith also walked, Ron Cey scored Russell with a long fly to left field.

The Yankees bounced back with a run in their half of the first on successive two-out singles by Munson, Jackson and Chambliss.

Afteer Gullett's first-inning wild spell, he settled down and gave up only three more hits through the sixth. He got a break, however, when Steve Garvey was thrown out at the plate on a controversial call by umpire Nestor Chylak while trying to score from first on Glenn Burke's hit-and-run single to right with two outs.

Yankees' Manager Billy Martin, full of more surprises than a Christmas stocking, pulled another shocker before the game when he named Jim (Catfish) Hunter to pitch the second game even though the veteran right-hander had not performed since Sept. 10.

THE CHOICE of Hunter was made because the Yankees' pitching staff is still tired from the recently concluded five-game playoff series with Kansas City. Three of Martin's starters — Ron Guidry, Ed Figueroa and Mike Torrez — pitched last weekend and have not had adequate rest.

Hunter, injured much of the year, has been out with a urological infection since Sept. 10 and was only 9-9 this year with an earned run average of better than four runs per game. However, he is regarded as one of the best post-season pitchers in the major leagues. Hunter has an 8-4 record in post-season competition, including a 4-1 World Series record.

"I haven't pitched in so long it will be like spring training for me all over again. My biggest problem will be control," Hunter said. "I definitely won't be able to go nine innings."

Hunter will be opposed by right-hander Burt Hooton in the second game.

STEVE GARVEY of the Dodgers slams into Yankees' catcher Thurman Munson in close play at the plate in sixth inning Tuesday night of opening World Series game. Garvey was called out trying to score on a single to right center.

Robertson threat to Payton draws notice of league

by BOB GALLAS

A threat by Los Angeles Rams' linebacker Isiah Robertson to get even with Bears' running back Walter Payton and "end his career," drew a response from Bears coach Jack Pardee Tuesday and also attracted the attendtion of league officials.

"We're taling about frustration there," Pardee said Tuesday after his team had upset the Rams 24-23 on national television Monday night. "There's no reason for statements like that. Walter blocked him hard a couple of times. It probably embarassed him."

League officials were vague when asked whether Robertson's post-game diatribe against Payton could draw a fine.

"REMARKS OF that nature when observed in print in the past have drawn notice from the league," said Jim Heffernan, director of information for the National Football Conference. Heffernan would not say if Robertson's comments would lead to a fine but said a fine, if levied, would not be announced.

Robertson said Payton clipped Bill Simpson and screamed at Payton as the two teams left the field after Monday's game and Payton, an extremely sensitive and somewhat shy individual, apparently was upset by the whole thing.

"Better leave him alone. He's really uptight about Robertson," said one Bears' player who was shooing reporters away from Payton's locker after Monday's game. Payton, not known for his long-windedness, was even more withdrawn than usual and sat looking into his locker.

PAYTON WASN'T the only one who faced Robertson's threats. So did Wally Chambers.

Robertson called a Chambers' sack of L.A. quarterback Joe Namath a "cheap shot," said Chambers was "the poorest excuse for an All-Pro I ever saw." Robertson vowed to get even with Chambers the next time the two teams met.

Robertson wasn't the only Ram fuming after Monday's game. His ire, along with that of his teammates, had been building during the game but came to a head when Waymond Bryant ran into Namath later in the game, knocking Namath out.

L.A. guard Dennis Harrah, who was ejected from the game, went after Bryant, who also was ejected, and a fight followed. Harrah said he resented the Bears wanting to take "cheap shots" at Namath.

"Waymond had beaten his block and Namath was back there with no place to go," said Pardee after viewing the films of the game. "He really didn't hit him that hard."

"BRYANT GAVE me a late hit," said Namath, who was hit in the Adam's apple. "A hit like that is a cheap shot."

On other subjects, Pardee said Tuesday that quarterback Bob Avellini would continue to call his own plays after making a spectacular debut at the helm of the Bears' offense Monday. After 22 games of having his plays sent in from the bench, Avellini called the game and completed 11 or 17 passes for 219 yards and three touchdowns.

"He responded to it well," Pardee said. "I've said all along I'd rather have quarterback call the signals," Pardee, in a year as head coach of the World Football League Florida Blazers and three with the Bears, never had a quarterback call the plays until Monday.

Pardee said the new arrangement gives each player including Avellini, more time to think about what his assignment on each play is. Before, there would be a delay while the play was shuttled in by a player sent in from the sidelines.

"WHEN YOU call the play yourself you picture handing the ball off and all the blocks. It's helped speed up Bob's thought process and that of the offensive linemen, Pardee said.

Pardee said Chambers and Doug Plank, making their first starts of the regular season after being out with injuries, came through the game all right physically. He also praised special teams player Art Best, who ran back kickoffs Monday against the Rams, the team that cut him in training camp.

"Art Best is doing so many good things in practice. We want to work him in there more," Pardee said. "I think he'll be a good kickoff man for us."

Pardee preparing Sunday game plan

Nobody can accuse Bears coach Jack Pardee of slacking off after a win.

Immediately after the Bears' 24-23 win over Los Angeles Monday night, Pardee went to work evaluating films of the contest before preparing a game plan for Sunday's game in Minnesota. He met with reporters Tuesday afternoon and admitted he'd only had about an nour of sleep.

But a reporter's question showed just how dedicated Pardee is to football.

"Who's going to win the World Series?" was the question.

"I dunno. Who's in it?" was Pardee's reply. His mind was clearly elsewhere.

"Anybody heard anything out of Minnesota yet?"

Fremd golfers claim 1st in final league standings

by DON FRISKE

Now that the conference meet is in the past, Fremd High School coach Len Fiocca has a first-place honor to back up his convictions that his golfers are the best group in the Mid-Suburban League.

Though Hersey took the title in the conference meet, which was held the last two days at Chevy Chase Country Club in Wheeling, the Fremd Vikings finished only two strokes behind the Huskies.

That effort, combined with their 11-2 season record, gave the Vikings sole possession of first place in the final MSL standings.

GOING INTO the conference meet, Fremd was tied with Barrington and Prospect. But the Vikings ended play Tuesday with a 36-hole team score of 632.

At the same time, Barrington came in with a 647, which gave them second place in the final standings. Prospect dropped to fourth behind Hersey as the Knights carded a 672.

The Huskies, led by Brad Hall's 151, finished with a score of 630. Hall turned in the leading score for the two days. He was followed by Conant's Randy Severinsen (152), Forest View's Steve Ford (154), Hersey's Chris Duros (155) and Fremd's Don Sullivan (157).

By winning the conference meet, the Huskies were able to move into the third spot in the final standings.

FIOCCA WAS impressed with the many low scores that ware turned in Tuesday. The golfers found themselves confronting strong winds.

"Shooting what they shot today," he said, "was like shooting 75s on a normal day, considering these conditions. Golfers, in general, have two-week cycles when they're up and down. A lot of them are just starting to peak again."

It's a good time for consistent play as the teams get ready for district tournaments, which begin Thursday.

"I'm concerned about the one day off," Fiocca said. "The trouble is figuring out how to keep the kids mentally alert, to keep them staying at the peak."

FIOCCA IS ONE coach who can't say enough about the ability of his golfers. He speaks matter-of-factly about the confidence he has in them. He thinks his top four — Sullivan, Ron Stanford, Jim Bruning and Win Bruning — are among the best 10 golfers in the conference.

In a conference as tough as the MSL, Fiocca considers that to be an impressive bit of self-reliance.

"Half the guys on the pro tour couldn't beat the top scores shot in this meet, with weather like this. I really believe that," Fiocca said.

LINE 'EM UP. Hersey's Brad Hall concentrates on a 20-foot putt during the Mid-Suburban League golf meet at Chevy Chase Country Club. Hall sank the putt on the ninth hole and went on to take individual honors with a low score of 151 for 36 holes on the par-72 course. Hersey won the meet with a team score of 630, but Fremd finished first in the conference standings.

Four NHL coaches debut tonight

Four of nine new coaches in the National Hockey League make their debuts tonight and three of the four new mentors in the World Hockey Assn. put their best skate forward in season openers for both major ice leagues.

The men behind the benches for the game in Pittsburgh are former NHL players — Leo Boivin for the St. Louis Blues and Johnny Wilson for the Penguins.

Two of the other three NHL contests scheduled for opening night have Jean Guy Talbot at the helm of the New York Rangers against the Vancouver Canucks and Ron Stewart masterminding the Los Angeles Kings against the Cleveland Barons.

MINNESOTA AT Montreal is the other game scheduled.

Going into action Thursday night are the New York Islanders at Buffalo, which has Marcel Provonost as a new coach; Chicago, with incoming coach Bob Pulford, at Philadelphia; Bobby Kromm making his debut with Detroit against Toronto and newcomer Roger Neilson and Atlanta at Boston.

Pat Kelly is the final newcomer due for his coaching baptism as he brings Colorado up against Vancouver on Friday night.

Another double debut takes place in the WHA tonight when Ron Ingram guides the Indianapolis Racers against Jacques Demer's Cincinnati Stingers and Larry Hillman has his first game as coach of the Winnipeg Jets against the Edmonton Oilers. New England at Houston rounds out the opening night schedule in the WHA.

The Birmingham Bulls and new coach Glen Sonmor hook up with Houston Friday night.

The Montreal Canadiens are coming off back-to-back Stanley Cup championship seasons and figure to again dominate the NHL. With the exception of Jimmy Roberts, who went to St. Louis, the team is intact and explosive, especially with scoring champion Guy Lafleur leading the attack.

NEXT TO Montreal, Los Angeles appears to be the most potent team in the Norris Division. The offense features Marcel Dionne, and on defense there's an outstanding goalie in Rogie Vachon.

Boston, loser to Montreal in the Cup finals, appears to be the class of the Adams Division with Jean Ratelle again leading the offense and Brad Park providing the tough checking on defense. Ron Grahame, the top goalie in the WHA last season with Houston, joins Gerry Cheevers and Gilles Gilbert to give the Bruins a strong net-minding trio.

Al Arbour's New York Islanders and Freddie Shero's Philadelphia Flyers are the Patrick Division's top teams. High scoring Clark Gillies is anxious to solidify his role as Islander captain with some spectacular shooting, an attribute Philadelphia abounds in with Bobby Clarke and Rick MacLeish on the firing line.

An infusion of money by team owners could make Boivin's job easier at St. Louis and make the Blues a modest choice to win the Smythe Division title.

The WHA, its bid to merge with the NHL turned down by the senior circuit, has a unique format in which each of the league's eight teams play one game each against a Russian and Czechoslovakian team, with the results counting in the standings.

That effort, combined with their 11-2 season record, gave the Vikings sole possession of first place in the final MSL standings.

GOING INTO the conference meet, Fremd was tied with Barrington and Prospect. But the Vikings ended play Tuesday with a 36-hole team score of 632.

At the same time, Barrington came in with a 647, which gave them second place in the final standings. Prospect dropped to fourth behind Hersey as the Knights carded a 672.

The Huskies, led by Brad Hall's 151, finished with a score of 630. Hall turned in the leading score for the two days. He was followed by Conant's Randy Severinsen (152), Forest View's Steve Ford (154), Hersey's Chris Duros (155) and Fremd's Don Sullivan (157).

By winning the conference meet, the Huskies were able to move into the third spot in the final standings.

FIOCCA WAS impressed with the many low scores that ware turned in Tuesday. The golfers found themselves confronting strong winds.

"Shooting what they shot today," he said, "was like shooting 75s on a normal day, considering these conditions. Golfers, in general, have two-week cycles when they're up and down. A lot of them are just starting to peak again."

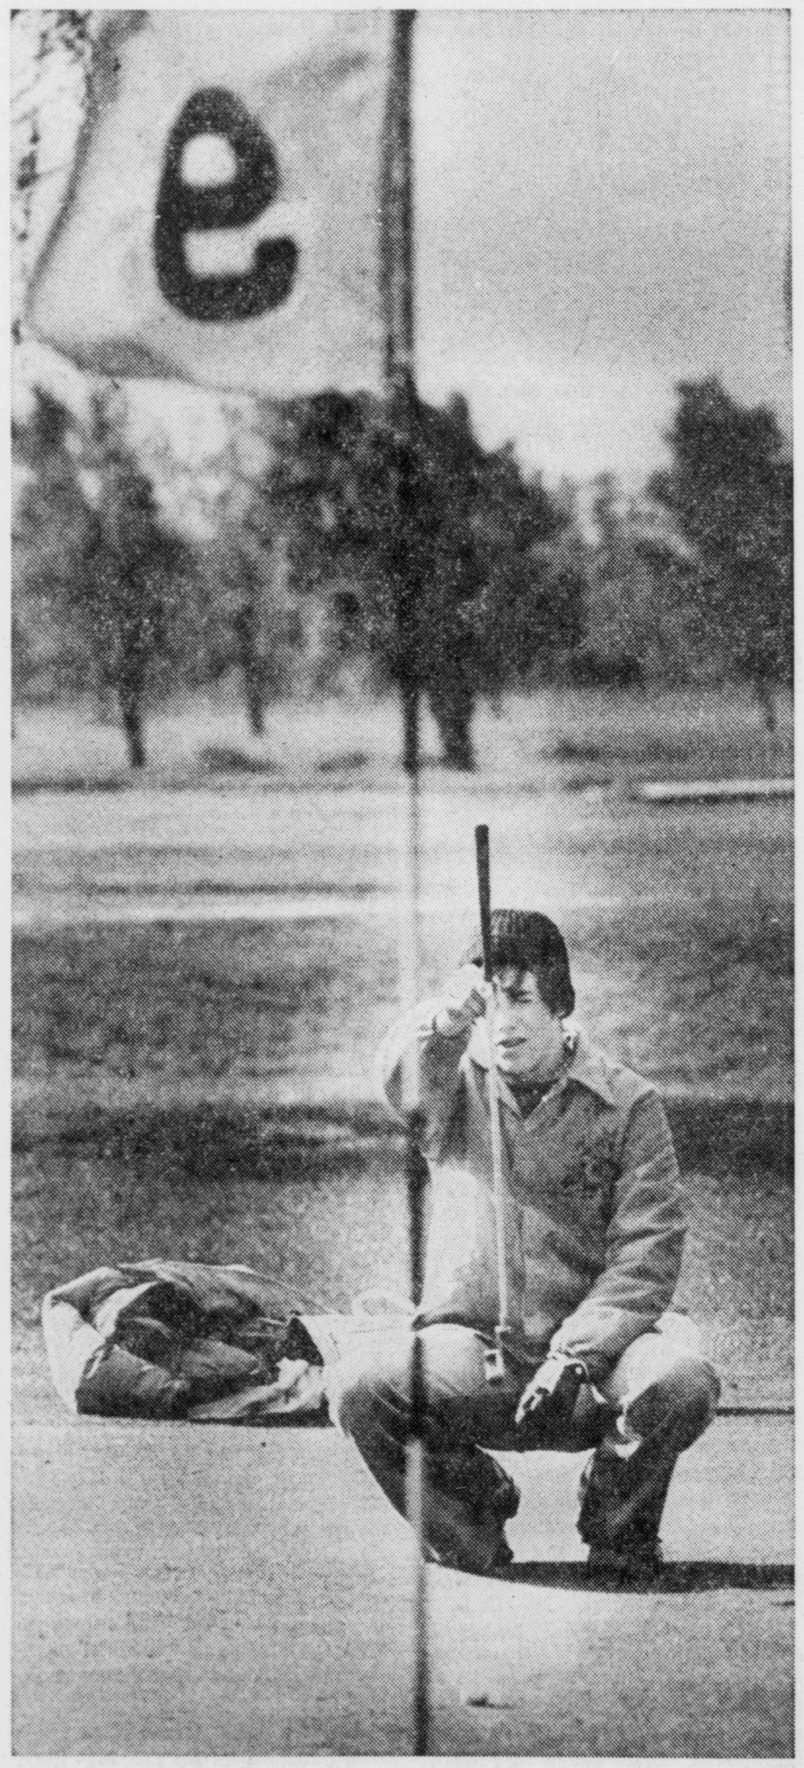
It's a good time for consistent play as the teams get ready for district tournaments, which begin Thursday.

"I'm concerned about the one day off," Fiocca said. "The trouble is figuring out how to keep the kids mentally alert, to keep them staying at the peak."

FIOCCA IS ONE coach who can't say enough about the ability of his golfers. He speaks matter-of-factly about the confidence he has in them. He thinks his top four — Sullivan, Ron Stanford, Jim Bruning and Win Bruning — are among the best 10 golfers in the conference.

In a conference as tough as the MSL, Fiocca considers that to be an impressive bit of self-reliance.

"Half the guys on the pro tour couldn't beat the top scores shot in this meet, with weather like this. I really believe that," Fiocca said.



LINE 'EM UP. Hersey's Brad Hall concentrates on a 20-foot putt during the Mid-Suburban League golf meet at Chevy Chase Country Club. Hall sank the putt on the ninth hole and went on to take individual honors with a low score of 151 for 36 holes on the par-72 course. Hersey won the meet with a team score of 630, but Fremd finished first in the conference standings.

Four NHL coaches debut tonight

Four of nine new coaches in the National Hockey League make their debuts tonight and three of the four new mentors in the World Hockey Assn. put their best skate forward in season openers for both major ice leagues.

The men behind the benches for the game in Pittsburgh are former NHL players — Leo Boivin for the St. Louis Blues and Johnny Wilson for the Penguins.

Two of the other three NHL contests scheduled for opening night have Jean Guy Talbot at the helm of the New York Rangers against the Vancouver Canucks and Ron Stewart masterminding the Los Angeles Kings against the Cleveland Barons.

MINNESOTA AT Montreal is the other game scheduled.

Going into action Thursday night are the New York Islanders at Buffalo, which has Marcel Provonost as a new coach; Chicago, with incoming coach Bob Pulford, at Philadelphia; Bobby Kromm making his debut with Detroit against Toronto and newcomer Roger Neilson and Atlanta at Boston.

Pat Kelly is the final newcomer due for his coaching baptism as he brings Colorado up against Vancouver on Friday night.

Another double debut takes place in the WHA tonight when Ron Ingram guides the Indianapolis Racers against Jacques Demer's Cincinnati Stingers and Larry Hillman has his first game as coach of the Winnipeg Jets against the Edmonton Oilers. New England at Houston rounds out the opening night schedule in the WHA.

The Birmingham Bulls and new coach Glen Sonmor hook up with Houston Friday night.

The Montreal Canadiens are coming off back-to-back Stanley Cup championship seasons and figure to again dominate the NHL. With the exception of Jimmy Roberts, who went to St. Louis, the team is intact and explosive, especially with scoring champion Guy Lafleur leading the attack.

NEXT TO Montreal, Los Angeles appears to be the most potent team in the Norris Division. The offense features Marcel Dionne, and on defense there's an outstanding goalie in Rogie Vachon.

Boston, loser to Montreal in the Cup finals, appears to be the class of the Adams Division with Jean Ratelle again leading the offense and Brad Park providing the tough checking on defense. Ron Grahame, the top goalie in the WHA last season with Houston, joins Gerry Cheevers and Gilles Gilbert to give the Bruins a strong net-minding trio.

Al Arbour's New York Islanders and Freddie Shero's Philadelphia Flyers are the Patrick Division's top teams. High scoring Clark Gillies is anxious to solidify his role as Islander captain with some spectacular shooting, an attribute Philadelphia abounds in with Bobby Clarke and Rick MacLeish on the firing line.

An infusion of money by team owners could make Boivin's job easier at St. Louis and make the Blues a modest choice to win the Smythe Division title.

The WHA, its bid to merge with the NHL turned down by the senior circuit, has a unique format in which each of the league's eight teams play one game each against a Russian and Czechoslovakian team, with the results counting in the standings.

Women's basketball clinic planned for school coaches

Beginning and advanced fundamentals and concepts of women's basketball are featured highlights of a two-day clinic for high school and college coaches Friday and Saturday at Barrington High School, 616 West Main St., Barrington.

The women's national basketball coaches clinics provide a full schedule of instruction by six of the nation's foremost coaches. During the Chicago area clinic, instructors will be: Mary DiStanislao, head coach at Northwestern University; Jill Hutchinson, Illinois State head coach; Ellen Mosher, head coach at the University of Minnesota; Deb Wilson, Ohio State head coach; Karen Langeland, Michigan State University head coach and Bea Gorton, Taylor University head coach.

Advanced topics to be covered include concepts of trapping and pressing defense, various zone and one-on-one offenses, various press offenses and special situation plays.

Beginning coaches can learn ball-handling fundamentals, techniques of shooting, two-on-two and three-on-three fundamentals, individual offensive moves, and rebounding techniques.

A panel discussion during which clinic participants can exchange ideas with the clinic staff is scheduled for Friday evening. Also on Friday's agenda are discussions on zone offenses, one-on-one offenses and several showings of a film on the 1977 national tournament.

Cost of the clinic is $25 for coaches if registration is made in advance. At the door, the fee is $30.

Top football teams still unbeaten

NEW YORK (UPI) — The list of unbeatens among the top 10 have dwindled to a precious few, but among the perfects are No. 1 Michigan and No. 2 Texas, a pair of powerhouses which collected all the first place votes in this week's UPI college football ratings.

Michigan (5-0) rose from second place to the top when the Wolverines whipped Michigan State while last week's topranker, Southern California, was losing in a squeaker to Alabama. Michigan was voted No. 1 by 31 members of the coaching board and amassed 397 points in the balloting.

College football

Texas (4-0) climbed two notches in toppling Oklahoma from the unbeaten ranks, 13-6, but the Longhorns gained most of their backing through second and third place balloting as they drew only 10 first place votes and posted a total of 363 points.

THERE ARE ONLY two other perfect teams in the top 10 — Colorado, receiving 269 points after a 29-13 rout of Oklahoma State for its fifth straight victory and rising to No. 3, and Arkansas (4-0) climbing one notch to No. 8 by garnering 145 points despite being idle.

Alabama (4-1) made the biggest gain of the week by vaulting from eighth place to No. 4 on its 21-20 win over USC. The Crimson Tide received 230 points.

Ohio State (4-1) routed Purdue, 46-0, and Coach Woody Hayes is beaming again as his Buckeyes moved up a step to No. 5 on 219 points received from the coaches.

Oklahoma (4-1) dropped three rungs to sixth place after its loss to Texas as the Sooners registered 198 points; Southern Cal (4-1) fell all the way to seventh place with 194 points; Nebraska (4-1), despite a 26-9 victory over Kansas, dropped from seventh to ninth with 134 points and Penn State (4-1) made it into the No. 10 by rising one step after beating Utah State, 16-7, and corraling a meager 26 points.

Louisiana State (3-1) headed the second ten in 11th place, Pittsburgh (3-1-1) and Notre Dame (3-1) were tied for 12th, Texas A & M (3-1) held down No. 13, Texas Tech (4-1) and Wisconsin (5-0) were deadlocked for No. 15, Houston (3-1) was in No. 17, North Texas State (5-1) and Brigham Young (3-1) tied for No. 18 and North Carolina State (5-1) was ranked 20th.

Double overtimes score in three soccer contests

by KEITH REINHARD

Double overtime was almost the rule rather than the exception in high school soccer play Tuesday.

Three contests went into extra sessions, including the crucial clash between Elk Grove and Forest View for MSL South Division supremacy. The Falcons won, 2-1, as did Rolling Meadows over Prospect by the same count and Arlington in an upset at Palatine.

In other games Tuesday Hersey toppled Buffalo Grove, Fremd dumped Barrington, St. Viator crushed Fenton, Hoffman Estates fell to Niles West and powerful Wheeling defeated Naperville North.

"It was nice to have Nick back for this one," smiled Forest View coach Al Beard of his frosh sensation Nick Rocz. Racz had not played last week when the Falcons were stunned by Hoffman Estates but he was back in time to dump in the winning goal against the Grenadiers, on a pass from Mike Hrbacek with 4:23 to go in the second overtime.

Marty Panczak had scored originally for the Falcons and Jim Wellman tied the game for Elk Grove just before halftime. Beard noted that both goalies turned in outstanding efforts, stopping 19 shots apiece.

THE VERDICT countered a Gren win earlier in the campaign by the same score and left the teams tied for first place in the South.

The Cardinals rebounded from Palatine's overtime goal with two of their own in the next session and claimed a 3-2 triumph. Dave Simons and Andy Deutschman had the Pirate scores while Brian Wachlin, Rick Erickson and Sean Florida tallied for the Redbirds.

Gary Cook had two unassisted goals to lead Meadows past Prospect. Erik Rukhaberlen scored for the Knights to send the game into overtime.

John Mantanes, playing from fullback, registered a hat trick in Hersey's 4-2 win over the Bison. John Benisek also drilled one home for the Huskies while Mark Laxgang had both Buffalo Grove goals.

Fremd tripped up Barrington 3-1 as Bob Bischoff, Jeff Randall and Tom Cornwall paced the offense. Rick Hirschmann had the only Hawk goal in a 3-1 Hoffman loss to Niles West.

Five Lions got into the scoring act as St. Viator routed Fenton 6-3. Roland Emanuel had a pair of goals while Phil Sobey. Andy Squire, Mike Kryza and Brad Reiter also scored for the winners.

The Wildcats remained unbeaten with a 6-0 conquest led by Mike McQuivey with three goals, Peter Gestrich with two and Rainer Engelmann with one. Ron Walsh meanwhile was perfect in the net for Wheeling.

Elks to host free throw contest

The Arlington Heights Elks Lodge 2048 will sponsor its annual Hoop Shoot (free throw) Contest with the finals set for 2:30 p.m. Nov. 19 at the Birchwood Gymnasium, 435 Illinois Ave., Palatine.

There are three age brackets each for boys and girls; 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13. The winners in each age group will compete against winners from other lodges in the area. From there, it is on to state tournament and finally the national finals.

All schools in the Palatine and Arlington areas are eligible to compete by conducting their own contests and submitting their winners for the final competition.

If you were a burglar, which house would you burgle?

Unlighted houses are burglars' favorite targets; so for reasons of security alone, exterior lighting makes sense for homeowners.

Perhaps the most effective protection comes from floodlights which can bathe large areas in light. These can be arranged to spotlight passageways or penetrate the darkest corner of your property, and can be automatically or manually controlled inside your house.

Other forms of outdoor lighting do more than just protect. Post lights on front and back walkways discourage unwanted visitors and make walks and stairs safer. Low-voltage garden lights provide good lighting and beautify your landscaping as well.

Exterior lighting is a real bargain when you consider all the security, safety, and beauty you get for just a few dollars. And since energy consumption goes way down at night, you won't be contributing to any energy shortages. Commonwealth Edison has a large reservoir of night-time power which is rarely tapped.

To learn more about what lighting can do for you, see your lighting dealer, hardware or department store.

Top football teams still unbeaten

NEW YORK (UPI) — The list of unbeatens among the top 10 have dwindled to a precious few, but among the perfects are No. 1 Michigan and No. 2 Texas, a pair of powerhouses which collected all the first place votes in this week's UPI college football ratings.

Michigan (5-0) rose from second place to the top when the Wolverines whipped Michigan State while last week's topranker, Southern California, was losing in a squeaker to Alabama. Michigan was voted No. 1 by 31 members of the coaching board and amassed 397 points in the balloting.

College football

Texas (4-0) climbed two notches in toppling Oklahoma from the unbeaten ranks, 13-6, but the Longhorns gained most of their backing through second and third place balloting as they drew only 10 first place votes and posted a total of 363 points.

THERE ARE ONLY two other perfect teams in the top 10 — Colorado, receiving 269 points after a 29-13 rout of Oklahoma State for its fifth straight victory and rising to No. 3, and Arkansas (4-0) climbing one notch to No. 8 by garnering 145 points despite being idle.

Alabama (4-1) made the biggest gain of the week by vaulting from eighth place to No. 4 on its 21-20 win over USC. The Crimson Tide received 230 points.

Ohio State (4-1) routed Purdue, 46-0, and Coach Woody Hayes is beaming again as his Buckeyes moved up a step to No. 5 on 219 points received from the coaches.

Oklahoma (4-1) dropped three rungs to sixth place after its loss to Texas as the Sooners registered 198 points; Southern Cal (4-1) fell all the way to seventh place with 194 points; Nebraska (4-1), despite a 26-9 victory over Kansas, dropped from seventh to ninth with 134 points and Penn State (4-1) made it into the No. 10 by rising one step after beating Utah State, 16-7, and corraling a meager 26 points.

Louisiana State (3-1) headed the second ten in 11th place, Pittsburgh (3-1-1) and Notre Dame (3-1) were tied for 12th, Texas A & M (3-1) held down No. 13, Texas Tech (4-1) and Wisconsin (5-0) were deadlocked for No. 15, Houston (3-1) was in No. 17, North Texas State (5-1) and Brigham Young (3-1) tied for No. 18 and North Carolina State (5-1) was ranked 20th.

Double overtimes score in three soccer contests

by KEITH REINHARD

Double overtime was almost the rule rather than the exception in high school soccer play Tuesday.

Three contests went into extra sessions, including the crucial clash between Elk Grove and Forest View for MSL South Division supremacy. The Falcons won, 2-1, as did Rolling Meadows over Prospect by the same count and Arlington in an upset at Palatine.

In other games Tuesday Hersey toppled Buffalo Grove, Fremd dumped Barrington, St. Viator crushed Fenton, Hoffman Estates fell to Niles West and powerful Wheeling defeated Naperville North.

"It was nice to have Nick back for this one," smiled Forest View coach Al Beard of his frosh sensation Nick Rocz. Racz had not played last week when the Falcons were stunned by Hoffman Estates but he was back in time to dump in the winning goal against the Grenadiers, on a pass from Mike Hrbacek with 4:23 to go in the second overume.

Marty Panczak had scored originally for the Falcons and Jim Wellman tied the game for Elk Grove just before halftime. Beard noted that both goalies turned in outstanding efforts, stopping 19 shots apiece.

THE VERDICT countered a Gren win earlier in the campaign by the same score and left the teams tied for first place in the South.

The Cardinals rebounded from Palatine's overtime goal with two of their own in the next session and claimed a 3-2 triumph. Dave Simons and Andy Deutschman had the Pirate scores while Brian Wachlin, Rick Erickson and Sean Florida tallied for the Redbirds.

Gary Cook had two unassisted goals to lead Meadows past Prospect. Erik Rukhaberlen scored for the Knights to send the game into overtime.

John Mantanes, playing from fullback, registered a hat trick in Hersey's 4-2 win over the Bison. John Benisek also drilled one home for the Huskies while Mark Laxgang had both Buffalo Grove goals.

Fremd tripped up Barrington 3-1 as Bob Bischoff, Jeff Randall and Tom Cornwall paced the offense. Rick Hirschmann had the only Hawk goal in a 3-1 Hoffman loss to Niles West.

Five Lions got into the scoring act as St. Viator routed Fenton 6-3. Roland Emanuel had a pair of goals while Phil Sobey. Andy Squire, Mike Kryza and Brad Reiter also scored for the winners.

The Wildcats remained unbeaten with a 6-0 conquest led by Mike McQuivey with three goals, Peter Gestrich with two and Rainer Engelmann with one. Ron Walsh meanwhile was perfect in the net for Wheeling.

Elks to host free throw contest

The Arlington Heights Elks Lodge 2048 will sponsor its annual Hoop Shoot (free throw) Contest with the finals set for 2:30 p.m. Nov. 19 at the Birchwood Gymnasium, 435 Illinois Ave., Palatine.

There are three age brackets each for boys and girls; 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13. The winners in each age group will compete against winners from other lodges in the area. From there, it is on to state tournament and finally the national finals.

All schools in the Palatine and Arlington areas are eligible to compete by conducting their own contests and submitting their winners for the final competition.

Women's basketball clinic planned for school coaches

Beginning and advanced fundamentals and concepts of women's basketball are featured highlights of a two-day clinic for high school and college coaches Friday and Saturday at Barrington High School, 616 West Main St., Barrington.

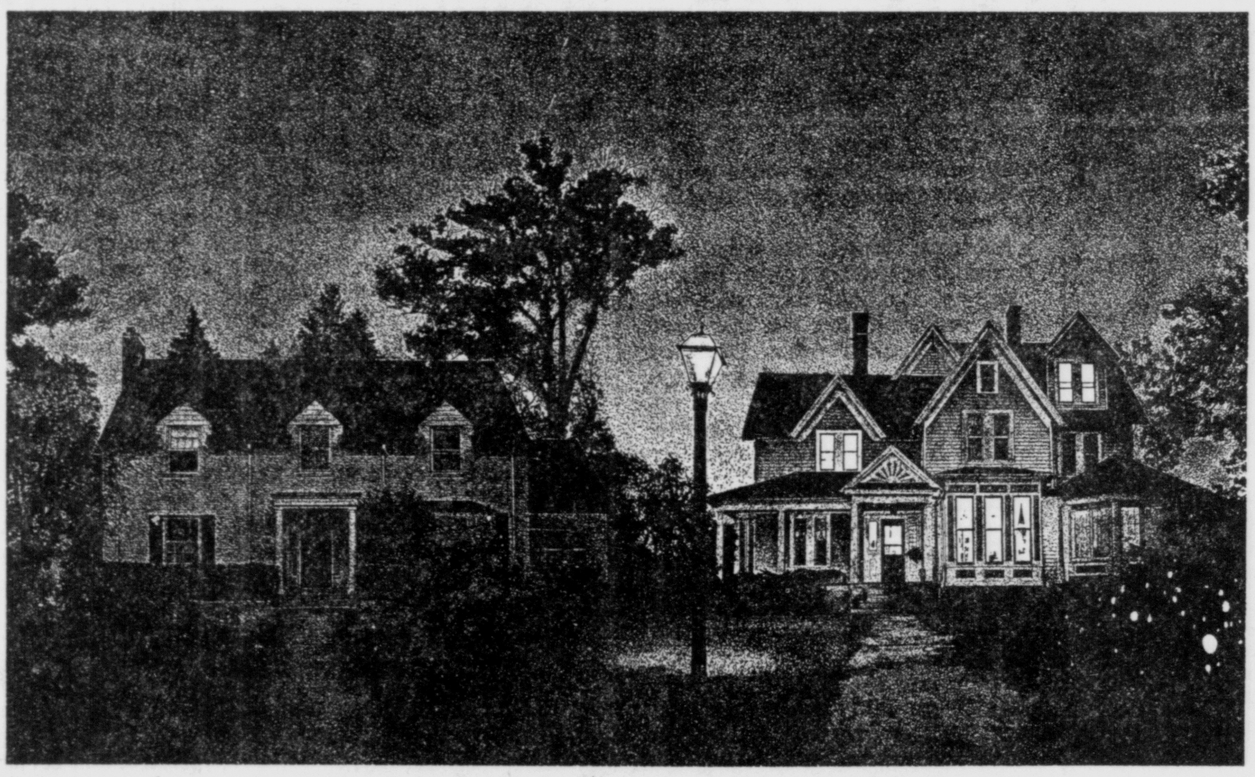
The women's national basketball coaches clinics provide a full schedule of instruction by six of the nation's foremost coaches. During the Chicago area clinic, instructors will be: Mary DiStanislao, head coach at Northwestern University; Jill Hutchinson, Illinois State head coach; Ellen Mosher, head coach at the University of Minnesota; Deb Wilson, Ohio State head coach; Karen Langeland, Michigan State University head coach and Bea Gorton, Taylor University head coach.

Advanced topics to be covered include concepts of trapping and pressing defense, various zone and one-on-one offenses, various press offenses and special situation plays.

Beginning coaches can learn ballhandling fundamentals, techniques of shooting, two-on-two and three-on-three fundamentals, individual offensive moves, and rebounding techniques.

A panel discussion during which clinic participants can exchange ideas with the clinic staff is scheduled for Friday evening. Also on Friday's agenda are discussions on zone offenses, one-on-one offenses and several showings of a film on the 1977 national tournament.

Cost of the clinic is $25 for coaches if registration is made in advance. At the door, the fee is $30.



If you were a burglar, which house would you burgle?

Unlighted houses are burglars' favorite targets; so for reasons of security alone, exterior lighting makes sense for homeowners.

Perhaps the most effective protection comes from floodlights which can bathe large areas in light. These can be arranged to spotlight passageways or penetrate the darkest corner of your property, and can be automatically or manually controlled inside your house.

Other forms of outdoor lighting do more than just protect. Post lights on front and back walkways discourage unwanted visitors and make walks and stairs safer. Low-voltage garden lights provide good lighting and beautify your landscaping as well.

Exterior lighting is a real bargain when you consider all the security, safety, and beauty you get for just a few dollars. And since energy consumption goes way down at night, you won't be contributing to any energy shortages. Commonwealth Edison has a large reservoir of nighttime power which is rarely tapped.

To learn more about what lighting can do for you, see your lighting dealer, hardware or department store.

Des Plaines Ace nails down lead

by DON CHRISTENSEN

After the dust settled at Sim's Bowl, Des Plaines Ace Hardware became the third leader in the young Paddock Classic season.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware edged Weber's Bar-B-Que Kettles 18 points to 14 to take slim point and a half lead over Weber's Kettles. Ace took the first game with a narrow four pin margin 953 to 949. Don Christensen finished with four in a row and 236 to provide the difference with the able assistance from Bill Cornelius' 209. Weber's Kettles simply ran away in the second game 933 to 865 when Joe Simonis and Jerry Ingalls exploded for 228 and 206, respectively.

In the last game Des Plaines Ace bounced back to take another close encounter 957 to 951. Rich Moores picked up the four-nine rail to spell defeat for Weber's, despite Jerry Ingalls neat 237. Jerry also ended up with a tough 641 with a lot of help from Joe Simonis' 612. Christensen paced Des Plaines Ace Hardware with 608.

SIMS BOWL wasn't a very good host when they took two out of three games from Formco Metal Products and 19 of the 32 points. Sim's buried Formco and first game 967 to 867 largely due to Tom Kehe's 221. Sim's came out on top again in the second game but this time by only nine pins, 890 to 881.

In the last game Fred Hansen personally took things in his own hands when he rolled a big 256, high for the night, which also was the springboard for the league's high series, 666.

In still another close battle Dick McFeely Pontiac prevailed, 17 to 15 points for Beverly Lanes. With every game decided in the 10th game, Dick McFeely Pontiac rolled games of 942, 940, and 933 for 2815 while Beverly Lanes scored 958, 930, and 930 for 2819. Art Okinski who after six games at Sims Bowl has averaged 217, paced Beverly's attack while Bill Palkovics' 603 led Dick McFeely to their narrow margin.

Standings:

Des Plaines Ace Hardware 92, Wever's Kettles 90.5, Formco Metal Products 80, Dick McFeely Pontiac 74, Beverly Lanes 72, Sims Bowl 17.

Kostelny fires league-high 637 series

Defending Paddock Classic Women's Traveling League champion Petterson Tire Corp. is knocking on the first-place door again. And it's anchorwoman, Bobbie Kostelny who is doing the hardest pounding.

Kostelny, a 186-average bowler, erupted for the season's top individual series — a booming 637 three-game set derived from an opening 211, middle 194 and finishing 232.

The superb effort enabled Petterson to capture a 5-2 decision from Ten Pin Bowl, lifting her squad into a second-place tie with Striking Lanes, five points behind pacesetting L-Tran Engineering.

IN OTHER MATCHES, Mason Shoes trimmed Tower Cleaners, 5-2, Ziebart Rustproofing of Des Plaines beat L-Tran Engineering, 5-2 and Striking Lanes topped Thunderbird Country Club, 502.

Lu Schoenberger registered a lofty 587 series for Striking Lanes off an opening 204 and middle 200 while Ziebart got a 558-213 and 556-210 from Peggy Harris and Irene Andrews, respectively.

On the next pair of lanes, Tower Cleaners' Jean Ladd was humming a 553 and teammate Elaine Nirva was right behind with a 552-217. Elsewhere around the league, Bette Brelle shot 548-214 and Alice Schroder 534 for Striking Lanes, Mary Lukachik a 544 for Thunderbird Country Club, Vi Douglas 550 for L-Tran and Sally Jo Gerard 548 for Mason Shoes.

Standings:

L-Tran Engineering 26, Striking Lanes and Petterson Tire Corp. 21, Mason Shoes 17, Ziebart Rustproofing of Des Plaines 15, Thunderbird Country Club 14 and Ten Pin Bowl and Tower Cleaners, 13.

NO LION'S SHARE. Two Holy Trinity players move in to intercept a pass by St. Viator's Phil Sobey (3) while Lion teammate Tom Seidl moves in to help out. Sobey later scored for the hosting Viator soccer team but it came in a 3-2 losing cause.

Synthetic oil endorsed

SYNTHETIC MOTOR oils were given a big but little noted - endorsement in Detroit last week when a Ford Motor Co. vice president said tests of the lubricants proved they were everything the petroleum companies said they were.

But Ford stopped short of recommending that motorists use the oils in their cars during the 12-month-12,000 mile warranty period.

At last week's press preview of Ford's 1978 model cars, Robert B. Alexander, vice president-car development group, said the company tested the claim of Mobil Corp. that its Mobil One oil can go 30,000 miles without change "and verified it as right."

Alexander was answering a question about extended oil change intervals recommended by Detroit. Changes, recommended every 2,000 miles not too many years ago, are now recommended every 7,500 to 10,000 miles, so Alexander was asked whether it was possible to use a synthetic and not change at all the first year.

But Howard Freers, Ford's vice president in charge of engine and chassis development, quickly added that to keep a warranty valid, Ford still recommended changing oil at 10,000 miles on subcompacts and 7,500 miles on large cars.

Lu Schoenberger registered a lofty 587 series for Striking Lanes off an opening 204 and middle 200 while Ziebart got a 558-213 and 556-210 from Peggy Harris and Irene Andrews, respectively.

On the next pair of lanes, Tower Cleaners' Jean Ladd was humming a 553 and teammate Elaine Nirva was right behind with a 552-217. Elsewhere around the league, Bette Brelle shot 548-214 and Alice Schroder 534 for Striking Lanes, Mary Lukachik a 544 for Thunderbird Country Club, Vi Douglas 550 for L-Tran and Sally Jo Gerard 548 for Mason Shoes.

Standings:

L-Tran Engineering 26, Striking Lanes and Petterson Tire Corp. 21, Mason Shoes 17, Ziebart Rustproofing of Des Plaines 15, Thunderbird Country Club 14 and Ten Pin Bowl and Tower Cleaners, 13.

NO LION'S SHARE. Two Holy Trinity players move in to intercept a pass by St. Viator's Phil Sobey (3) while Lion teammate Tom Seidl moves in to help out. Sobey later scored for the hosting Viator soccer team but it came in a 3-2 losing cause.

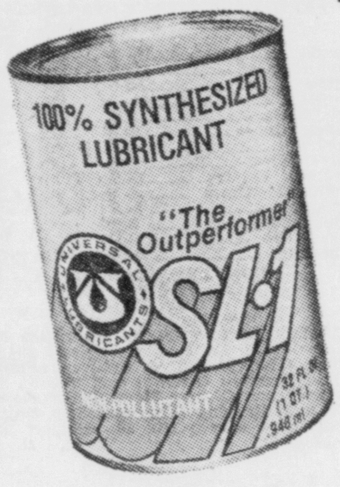
CDM LUBRICANTS PRESENTS . . .



The Synthetic Oil Clinic

Featuring SL1
"The Outperformer", not pollutant
FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Oct. 14th & 15th

It's a fact - synthetics are the lubricants of the future. Better Mileage, Longer Drain Intervals, Less Frequent Tune Ups are some of the advantages to synthetic lubricants. Detroit now confirms their tests in the article on the right which appeared in the Chicago Tribune, Sept. 5, 1977.

Drop in and have our technicians explain the facts about synthetics and why they belong in your car.

SL-1 is the premium 10W40 Synthetic Lubricant and is the only one with a written guarantee.

Have your oil changed to SL-1 today. Save Money — Save Petroleum — Save your Engine.

Synthetic oil endorsed

SYNTHETIC MOTOR oils were given a big but little noted - endorsement in Detroit last week when a Ford Motor Co. vice president said tests of the lubricants proved they were everything the petroleum companies said they were.

But Ford stopped short of recommending that motorists use the oils in their cars during the 12-month-12,000 mile warranty period.

At last week's press preview of Ford's 1978 model cars, Robert B. Alexander, vice president-car development group, said the company tested the claim of Mobil Corp. that its Mobil One oil can go 30,000 miles without change "and verified it as right."

Alexander was answering a question about extended oil change intervals recommended by Detroit. Changes, recommended every 2,000 miles not too many years ago, are now recommended every 7,500 to 10,000 miles, so Alexander was asked whether it was possible to use a synthetic and not change at all the first year.

But Howard Freers, Ford's vice president in charge of engine and chassis development, quickly added that to keep a warranty valid, Ford still recommended changing oil at 10,000 miles on subcompacts and 7,500 miles on large cars.

DOWN THE GULLETT. New York Yankees' pitcher Don Gullett takes up a role usually reserved for designated hitters in the American League. In his World Series debut at the plate Tuesday Gullett struck out.

Yankees jolt Joe; Clipper clips back

NEW YORK — Where have you gone Joe DiMaggio? Not to the World Series — because his old ballclub, the New York Yankees, gave him a royal runaround when he came to Yankee Stadium to pick up his tickets.

DiMaggio, the Yankees' Hall of Fame center fielder, flew in from Detroit to pick up his tickets for the Yankees-Dodgers World Series which opened Tuesday night. He arrived at Yankee Stadium early Monday morning to claim the tickets for which he had sent in a check well in advance.

Somehow, his tickets could not be located. Obliged to wait around for nearly two hours, "the world's greatest living ballplayer" became so incensed, he told the Yankees to keep the tickets.

He then called the Mets and they were able to provide him tickets immediately.

"The two clubs that have always showed me a lot of class are the Dodgers and the Mets," said DiMaggio.

DiMaggio was so infuriated by his treatment from his old ballclub that after the Mets did give him the tickets, he gave them away to friends, because he said he did not wish to go to Yankee Stadium.

Vilas drops out of Madrid net meet

MADRID — Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina withdrew from the $100,000 Madrid Grand Prix tennis tournament Tuesday because of a wrist ailment he said was aggravated by playing against the now-banned double-strung racquet.

The pullout by Vilas threw second-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden, this year's Wimbledon winner, into the favorite's role.

Vilas, who just Monday won the Aryamehr Cup in Tehran, went personally to the Madrid Country Club to explain the reason for his withdrawal. Tuesday was the second day of the competition and the first in which Vilas was to have played.

The first major seed to see action here was Manuel Orantes, and the fourth-seeded Spaniard defeated Howard Schoenfield, Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-1.

Rozema, Owchinko top new hurlers

ST. LOUIS — Dave Rozema of the Detroit Tigers was the overwhelming American League choice and Bob Owchinko of the San Diego Padres won a tight race in the National League as rookie pitchers of the year as chosen by The Sporting News.

Rozema gained 210 votes in the player balloting, with no other pitcher getting more than eight. The 21-year-old right hander, not even listed on the Detroit spring training roster, had a 15-7 record and 16 complete games with an earned run average of 3.10.

Ownchinko led a field of 15 pitchers who received votes, edging John Urrea of the St. Louis Cardinals and Bob Knepper of the San Francisco Giants. After starring for Eastern Michigan University he joined the Padres late in 1976 and won nine games in 28 starts in 1977, including two shutouts.

NHL chief delays Flyer fight verdict

MONTREAL — National Hockey League president John Ziegler deferred for 24 hours Tuesday a decision on what penalties to levy against the leaders of a brawl last week between the Philadelphia Flyers and Boston Bruins.

The donnybrook in the second period of an exhibition game last Thursday in Philadelphia saw 18 players ejected from the game and a record 311 minutes in penalties handed out.

By the time order was restored, 10 members of the Flyers and eight Bruins were ejected. When play resumed, there were only 10 Philadelphia and eight Boston players still eligible.

Boston's Wayne Cashman and Philadelphia's Paul Holmgren and Jim Watson appeared for a hearing before Ziegler Tuesday. Bruins General Manager Harry Sinden and Coach Don Cherry and Flyers' Coach Fred Shero were also present.

Denver gets Bo Ellis from Bullets

DENVER — Bo Ellis, a 6-9 rookie forward who led Marquette University to the NCAA basketball championship earlier this year, was obtained by the Denver Nuggets Tuesday in a trade with the Washington Bullets.

Nugget general manager Carl Scheer said Denver gave up its No. 1 college draft choice next year for the right to Ellis, who is expected to give the team additional power in the front line.

In three seasons at Marquette, Ellis averaged 14.6 points and 9.3 rebounds a game. During his senior year, he helped the Warriors to the NCAA title with a 15.6 point average.

"Ellis was a top draft choice this year," Scheer said. "And he comes from a winning tradition."

History does repeat; Chernicky wins again

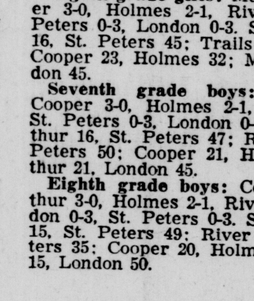
Who says history does not repeat?

Just ask Mike Chernicky, the latest winner in The Daily Herald's Weekly "Pick the Winners" Football Contest.

Two years ago, Mike won the week of his ninth birthday.

The same thing happened this year as 10-year-old Mike will become 11 on Thursday.

Mike's only mistake among the 20 high school, college, and pro games, was picking UCLA to beat Stanford. The Indians of Stanford upset the Bruins of UCLA 32-28.



Mike Chernicky

Although other entries had only one wrong, Mike is the victor because he correctly chose the "toe-breaker" winner (Wisconsin) and came closest (31) to the total number of points from the Wisconsin-Illinois game (26).

For the Chernicky family, winning the "Pick the Winners" contest is nothing new. Brother Steve, now a Palatine High School freshman, was a titlist once last year.

Younger brother Mike certainly hopes he has the same success this year as he did two years ago. Then, Mike won the contest's grand prize drawing and went to the Rose Bowl game.

This year's drawing for the Rose Bowl trip will be held at a luncheon on Dec. 3. All the winners from the previous 11 weeks are eligible, including Mike. The 1977 grand prize is a trip for two to the Rose Bowl with all expenses paid.

Additionally like every other winner, Mike will receive a Thermos Sports Kit.

Last week's high school results were St. Viator 30, Carmel 0; Glenbrook North 32, Maine West 7; Elgin 19, Maine South 3; Fremd 27, Palatine 6; Elk Grove 33, Schaumburg 0; Barrington 28, Buffalo Grove 6; Stevenson 20, Antioch 7; Rolling Meadows 28, Hoffman Estates 6; Forest View 18, Conant 0; Prospect 6, Hersey 3; and Wheeling 21, Arlington 0.

Collegiate scores were Harper 9, DuPage 0; Iowa State 7, Missouri 0; Iowa 18, Minnesota 6; Stanford 32, UCLA 28.

Professional results were Atlanta 7, San Francisco 0; Denver 13, Kansas City 7; Philadelphia 28, New York Giants 10; San Diego 14, New Orleans 0.

Wisconsin beat Illinois in the "tie-breaker" game, 26-0.

Palatine South Heavies 26, Winnetka 0
Palatine South's Heavyweight team won its fifth in a row. Mike Rosman scored 20 points on three touchdowns runs of 15, 6 and 5 yards and a two point PAT. Dave Bock scored on a three yard dive. The outstanding offensive backs were Dave Bock, Mike Rosman, Dave Chasee, Bill Morifeltis and Bill Colbert. Lineman honors went to Jerry Studley, Dave Ball, Jim Gavigan, Bill Finger and Mike Hipwell. For the defense, Bill Morifeltis saved a TD on a kickoff, and Jerry Studley made three sacks and caused three fumbles. Bryon Taylor ran back an interception to break open the game with 1:42 left in the first half.

Palatine South Lightweight Longhorns 6, Winnetka 0
The South's Longhorns finally tasted a win in their fifth outing and would not be denied even when yielding the ball to Winnetka on the six inch line with four seconds to go. Time ran out and the defense made the big difference, repeatedly turning aside Winnetka close to the goal line. Hynes, Kewin, Peterson, Grecco and Chris Rosman were the defensive standouts along with McKinney and Glasgow who recovered fumbles. Gellinger scored the lone tally through the five hole between Grecco and Milroy. A 40-yard punt by quarterback Dave O'Brien, among others, helped the Longhorns keep out of more trouble. Blocking by Carkeek and Kewin was impressive.

Palatine North Lightweights 18, Mundelein 8
The North Lights led 18-0 at the half, having scored on their first possession. This was the fifth straight win for the Lights. Scoring came on a five-yard off tackle run by Dave Andriano, 1 10-yard pass to Duane Carlile and a 30-yarder to Jim Kelly. Bret Grapenthin, Marty Geller, Jim Johnson and Mike Foote were the defensive standouts. Ed Cheatham, Dave Andriano and Duane Carlile were outstanding on offense, while the nod for line play went to Dave Goldman and Steve McTavish.

Palatine North Heavies 0, Mundelein 46

Hunting Ridge Rams 18, Lake Louise 0
The Hunting Ridge Rams scored three times in the first half, while both teams played scoreless defense in the second, to win this match, 18-0. Scott Bossong scored on a 50-yard end run and on another 15-yard scamper. He caught a pass from Dave Kruzelock for an additional 40-yards. Mitchell Kuhn, Dave Schriener, Jay Blanda and John Volk earned defensive honors, while Dave Kruzelock, Mike Farmer, Scott Bossong and Jeff Bossong were outstanding on offense. The best line play was displayed by Doug Fraley, Dean McKinney and Scott McKinzie at tackle.

Pleasant Hill Browns 6, Virginia Lake Vikings 0
Outstanding defense by the Browns preserved their fourth win and fourth shutout. Defense featured hard tackling by Mike Wallace, Ed Parsons, Dean Lavelle, Vince Sweeney, Brian Jackson and Mike Lutz. Mike Lutz had two pass interceptions. Mike Wallace recovered a fumble and Paul Preston blocked a punt. The halftime score was 0-0. The game's only touchdown came on a 40-yard burst by Doug Gavigan on tackle in the third quarter. The kick for extra point was blocked. Late in the fourth quarter Chris Johnson intercepted a Viking pass and completed all the way down to the Viking 10. The Browns ran three plays but were unable to score before the game ended. Paul Jackson, with 87 yards rushing and Gavigan were named best offensive players, while Peter Bodell, Todd Rochemont and Dan Bain got the nod for their line play.

Steelers 14, Eagles 7
The Steelers got off to a shaky start, giving up a TD on the opening kickoff but were behind only once as they got the best of the Eagles defense three times. Right back and scored after a fumble recovery by quarterback Brett Fichte and the running of Rob Sullivan and Tim Michael. The Steelers other score came on a 30-yard goal return by Rob Sullivan, Sullivan got key blocks from Ted Bonnell and Rob Kling. Both Steeler extra point attempts failed. The Eagles threatened late in the game, but the long drive was stopped by an interception by Pat Di Domenico. A review of the defensive play showed that the best efforts were by Mark Gregory, Matt Morse, Brett Fichte and Rob Sullivan. The offense keyed on the play of Tim Michael, Sullivan, Fichte and Mark Bradley. Mike Kehmer, Dan Bonkowski and Tom Bonkowski made the difference on the line.

Community Park Raiders 14, Paddock Cowboys 13
The Community Park Raiders avenged a season opening loss to the Paddock Cowboys. The Raiders scored first with a 42-yard run by Mike Maloney with a great block by Gary Marek. Paul Golec ran the option to perfection, running alone into the end zone for the PAT. The Cowboys came back to score quickly and did it again just before the half, ultimately making the difference. The score at halftime was 13-7. In the third quarter, the Raiders drove downfield with some great blocking by the offensive line. With 12 yards to go, Paul Golec faked a punt and ran for a critical 15-yard first down. Maloney ran nine yards to the 1, with Golec carrying over on a QB sneak. For the extra point, Golec faked a run up the middle, and ran around end for the winning margin. The Cowboys came back inside the Raider 20 twice, but were thwarted by the Raider defense. Ed Deluga, Scott Schenk, Frank Mazzie and Tom Voll were outstanding on defense. Steve Stunkel deserves mention for his offensive play as do Brian Abry, Phil Stander and Jim Holder.

Hoffman Estates

Rangers 68, Boys Club 0
Mark Binder led the winner's ground attack with 106 yards and three touchdowns in just four carries. Craig Yarwood had 97 yards and four scores. Pat Weadick 88 yards and three TDs, Ron Furlong with 35 yards and one score and Gary Ostopchik 55 yards in four carries. The Rangers (5-1) host unbeaten Glen Ellyn Sunday at Conant High School at 12:30 p.m.

DOWN THE GULLETT. New York Yankees' pitcher Don Gullett takes up a role usually reserved for designated hitters in the American League. In his World Series debut at the plate Tuesday Gullett struck out.

Yankees jolt Joe; Clipper clips back

NEW YORK — Where have you gone Joe DiMaggio? Not to the World Series — because his old ballclub, the New York Yankees, gave him a royal runaround when he came to Yankee Stadium to pick up his tickets.

DiMaggio, the Yankees' Hall of Fame center fielder, flew in from Detroit to pick up his tickets for the Yankees-Dodgers World Series which opened Tuesday night. He arrived at Yankee Stadium early Monday morning to claim the tickets for which he had sent in a check well in advance.

Somehow, his tickets could not be located. Obliged to wait around for nearly two hours, "the world's greatest living ballplayer" became so incensed, he told the Yankees to keep the tickets.

He then called the Mets and they were able to provide him tickets immediately.

"The two clubs that have always showed me a lot of class are the Dodgers and the Mets," said DiMaggio.

DiMaggio was so infuriated by his treatment from his old ballclub that after the Mets did give him the tickets, he gave them away to friends, because he said he did not wish to go to Yankee Stadium.

Vilas drops out of Madrid net meet

MADRID — Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina withdrew from the $100,000 Madrid Grand Prix tennis tournament Tuesday because of a wrist ailment he said was aggravated by playing against the now-banned double-strung racquet.

The pullout by Vilas threw second-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden, this year's Wimbledon winner, into the favorite's role.

Vilas, who just Monday won the Aryamehr Cup in Tehran, went personally to the Madrid Country Club to explain the reason for his withdrawal. Tuesday was the second day of the competition and the first in which Vilas was to have played.

The first major seed to see action here was Manuel Orantes, and the fourth-seeded Spaniard defeated Howard Schoenfield, Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-1.

Rozema, Owchinko top new hurlers

ST. LOUIS — Dave Rozema of the Detroit Tigers was the overwhelming American League choice and Bob Owchinko of the San Diego Padres won a tight race in the National League as rookie pitchers of the year as chosen by The Sporting News.

Rozema gained 210 votes in the player balloting, with no other pitcher getting more than eight. The 21-year-old right hander, not even listed on the Detroit spring training roster, had a 15-7 record and 16 complete games with an earned run average of 3.10.

Ownchinko led a field of 15 pitchers who received votes, edging John Urrea of the St. Louis Cardinals and Bob Knepper of the San Francisco Giants. After starring for Eastern Michigan University he joined the Padres late in 1976 and won nine games in 28 starts in 1977, including two shutouts.

NHL chief delays Flyer fight verdict

MONTREAL — National Hockey League president John Ziegler deferred for 24 hours Tuesday a decision on what penalties to levy against the leaders of a brawl last week between the Philadelphia Flyers and Boston Bruins.

The donnybrook in the second period of an exhibition game last Thursday in Philadelphia saw 18 players ejected from the game and a record 311 minutes in penalties handed out.

By the time order was restored, 10 members of the Flyers and eight Bruins were ejected. When play resumed, there were only 10 Philadelphia and eight Boston players still eligible.

Boston's Wayne Cashman and Philadelphia's Paul Holmgren and Jim Watson appeared for a hearing before Ziegler Tuesday. Bruins General Manager Harry Sinden and Coach Don Cherry and Flyers' Coach Fred Shero were also present.

Denver gets Bo Ellis from Bullets

DENVER — Bo Ellis, a 6-9 rookie forward who led Marquette University to the NCAA basketball championship earlier this year, was obtained by the Denver Nuggets Tuesday in a trade with the Washington Bullets.

Nugget general manager Carl Scheer said Denver gave up its No. 1 college draft choice next year for the right to Ellis, who is expected to give the team additional power in the front line.

In three seasons at Marquette, Ellis averaged 14.6 points and 9.3 rebounds a game. During his senior year, he helped the Warriors to the NCAA title with a 15.6 point average.

"Ellis was a top draft choice this year," Scheer said. "And he comes from a winning tradition."

History does repeat; Chernicky wins again

Who says history does not repeat?

Just ask Mike Chernicky, the latest winner in The Daily Herald's Weekly "Pick the Winners" Football Contest.

Two years ago, Mike won the week of his ninth birthday.

The same thing happened this year as 10-year-old Mike will become 11 on Thursday.

Mike's only mistake among the 20 high school, college, and pro games, was picking UCLA to beat Stanford. The Indians of Stanford upset the Bruins of UCLA 32-28.

Mike Chernicky

Although other entries had only one wrong, Mike is the victor because he correctly chose the "toe-breaker" winner (Wisconsin) and came closest (31) to the total number of points from the Wisconsin-Illinois game (26).

For the Chernicky family, winning the "Pick the Winners" contest is nothing new. Brother Steve, now a Palatine High School freshman, was a titlist once last year.

Younger brother Mike certainly hopes he has the same success this year as he did two years ago. Then, Mike won the contest's grand prize drawing and went to the Rose Bowl game.

This year's drawing for the Rose Bowl trip will be held at a luncheon on Dec. 3. All the winners from the previous 11 weeks are eligible, including Mike. The 1977 grand prize is a trip for two to the Rose Bowl with all expenses paid.

Additionally like every other winner, Mike will receive a Thermos Sports Kit.

Last week's high school results were St. Viator 30, Carmel 0; Glenbrook North 32, Maine West 7; Elgin 19, Maine South 3; Fremd 27, Palatine 6; Elk Grove 33, Schaumburg 0; Barrington 28, Buffalo Grove 6; Stevenson 20, Antioch 7; Rolling Meadows 28, Hoffman Estates 6; Forest View 18, Conant 0; Prospect 6, Hersey 3; and Wheeling 21, Arlington 0.

Collegiate scores were Harper 9, DuPage 0; Iowa State 7, Missouri 0; Iowa 18, Minnesota 6; Stanford 32, UCLA 28.

Professional results were Atlanta 7, San Francisco 0; Denver 13, Kansas City 7; Philadelphia 28, New York Giants 10; San Diego 14, New Orleans 0.

Wisconsin beat Illinois in the "tie-breaker" game, 26-0.

Palatine South Heavies 26, Winettka 0

Palatine South's Heavyweight team won its fifth in a row. Mike Rosman scored 20 points on three touchdowns runs of 15, 6 and 5 yards and a two point PAT. Dave Bock scored on a three yard dive. The outstanding offensive backs were Dave Bock, Mike Rosman, Dave Chasee, Bill Morifeltis and Bill Colbert. Lineman honors went to Jerry Studley, Dave Ball, Jim Gavigan, Bill Finger and Mike Hipwell. For the defense, Bill Morifeltis saved a TD on a kickoff, and Jerry Studley made three sacks and caused three fumbles. Bryon Taylor ran back an interception to break open the game with 1:42 left in the first half.

Palatine South Lightweight Longhorns 6, Winnetka 0

The South's Longhorns finally tasted a win in their fifth outing and would not be denied even when yielding the ball to Winnetka on the six inch line with four seconds to go. Time ran out and the defense made the big difference, repeatedly turning aside Winnetka close to the goal line. Hynes, Kewin, Peterson, Grecco and Chris Rosman were the defensive standouts along with McKinney and Glasgow who recovered fumbles. Gellinger scored the lone tally through the five hole between Grecco and Milroy. A 40-yard punt by quarterback Dave O'Brien, among others, helped the Longhorns keep out of more trouble. Blocking by Carkeek and Kewin was impressive.

Palatine North Lightweights 18, Mundelein 8

The North Lights led 18-0 at the half, having scored on their first possession. This was the fifth straight win for the Lights. Scoring came on a five-yard off tackle run by Dave Andriano, 1 10-yard pass to Duane Carlile and a 30-yarder to Jim Kelly. Bret Grapenthin, Marty Geller, Jim Johnson and Mike Foote were the defensive standouts. Ed Cheatham, Dave Andriano and Duane Carlile were outstanding on offense, while the nod for line play went to Dave Goldman and Steve McTavish.

Palatine North Heavies 0, Mundelein 46

Hunting Ridge Rams 18, Lake Louise 0

The Hunting Ridge Rams scored three times in the first half, while both teams played scoreless defense in the second, to win this match, 18-0. Scott Bossong scored on a 50-yard end run and on another 15-yard scamper. He caught a pass from Dave Kruzelock for an additional 40-yards. Mitchell Kuhn, Dave Schriener, Jay Blanda and John Volk earned defensive honors, while Dave Kruzelock, Mike Farmer, Scott Bossong and Jeff Bossong were outstanding on offense. The best line play was displayed by Doug Fraley, Dean McKinney and Scott McKinzie at tackle.

Pleasant Hill Browns 6, Virginia Lake Vikings 0

Outstanding defense by the Browns preserved their fourth win and fourth shutout. Defense featured hard tackling by Mike Wallace, Ed Parsons, Dean Lavelle, Vince Sweeney, Brian Jackson and Mike Lutz. Mike Lutz had two pass interceptions. Mike Wallace recovered a fumble and Paul Preston blocked a punt. The halftime score was 0-0. The game's only touchdown came on a 40-yard burst by Doug Gavigan on tackle in the third quarter. The kick for extra point was blocked. Late in the fourth quarter Chris Johnson intercepted a Viking pass and completed on the way down to the Viking 40. The Browns ran three plays but were unable to score before the game ended. Paul Jackson, Dan St. Dominico and Gavigan were named best offensive players, while Peter Bocker, Todd Kechemeier and Dan Lutz got the nod for their line play.

Steelers 12, Eagles 7

The Steelers got off to a shaky start, giving up a TD on the opening kickoff but then settling down and to play excellent defense the rest of the game. The Steelers offense came right back and scored after a well executed drive by quarterback Brett Preiss and the running of Rob Sullivan and Tim Hecker. The Steelers other score came on a 30-yard pass return by Rob Sullivan. Sullivan got key blocks from Ted Bennett and Bob Hennig. Both Steeler extra point attempts failed. The Eagles threatened late in the game, but the long drive was stopped by an interception by Pat Di Domenico. A review of the defensive play showed that the best efforts were by Mark Gregory, Jamie Morse, Brett Fichter and Rob Sullivan. The defense keyed on the play of Tim Hecker, Sullivan, Fichter and Mark Bradley. Mike Hennig, Dan Bellhouse and Nick Bonkowski made the difference on the line.

Community Park Raiders 14, Paddock Cowboys 13

The Community Park Raiders avenged a season opening loss to the Paddock Cowboys. The Raiders scored first with a 42-yard run by Mike Mahoney with a great block by Gary Mabrey. Paul Golec ran the option to perfection, running alone into the end zone for the PAT. The Cowboys came back to score quickly and did it again just before the half, ultimately making the difference. The score at halftime was 14-7. In the third quarter, the Raiders drove downfield with some great blocking by the offensive line. With 12 yards to go, Paul Golec faked a punt and ran for a critical 15-yard first down. Mahoney ran nine yards to the 1, with Golec carrying over on a QB sneak. For the extra point, Golec faked a run up the middle, and ran around end for the winning margin. The Cowboys came back inside the Raider 20 twice, but were thwarted by the Raider defense. Ed Deluga, Scott Schenk, Frank Mazzie and Tom Von were outstanding on defense. Steve Stunkel deserves mention for his offensive play as do Brian Abry, Phil Stander and Jim Holder.

Hoffman Estates

Rangers 68, Boys Club 0

Mark Binder led the winner's ground attack with 106 yards and three touchdowns in just four carries. Craig Yarwood had 97 yards and four scores. Pat Weadick 88 yards and three TDs, Ron Furlong with 35 yards and one score and Gary Ostopchik 55 yards in four carries. The Rangers (5-1) host unbeaten Glen Ellyn Sunday at Conant High School at 12:30 p.m.
